THE MOOD WAS DIFFERENT THIS TIME

-Thelma Burke

The day seconded me in solitude. Snow had settled a quiet on the earth, and the hush that the sun had brought had been replaced by a chill that crept into the air. I was walking through the deserted streets of Los Angeles, wondering what to do next. I had no plans and no motivation.

I passed by a small cafe, and inside, the owner was sitting at a table, sipping coffee. She looked up and smiled at me.

"Hello," she said. "What can I get you?"

I ordered a cup of coffee and sat down at a table by the window. It was quiet, and the snow outside created a peaceful atmosphere.

I took a sip of my coffee and closed my eyes, enjoying the warmth. The snow outside had a magical quality, and I felt a sense of calm.

The owner approached me again.

"Are you from around here?" she asked.

I shook my head.

"No," I replied. "I'm actually from New York. I'm just passing through.

She nodded, understanding.

"Well, welcome to Los Angeles," she said. "We're lucky to have such beautiful weather today.

I smiled, feeling content with my choice of a quiet cafe in the midst of a bustling city.

As I sipped my coffee, I realized how much I needed this moment of solitude. It was a reminder of the beauty of simplicity and the importance of taking time for oneself.

I finished my coffee and thanked the owner for her hospitality. I stepped out into the snow, feeling refreshed and at peace.

THE PLAINS AND THE ROCKIES

Loth's Press has published, on occasion, many items we have been able to find from the Wagner-Camp biographies. Plates and illustrations. We continue to search.

The first edition of R. K. Wagner's bibliography came out in 1908 after more than 25 years of compiling. In 1937 a second edition was published. From 1922 to 1937, C. C. Camp shared the work with Mr. Wagner and published the third edition of the bibliography. The fourth edition, which contains all the known material on horsemen in the American West has recently been published. It has been a labor of love for the editors, and a magazine article, Federal documents, some compilations and memorials have been noted. The Western Alliance, a national association registered in 1918, has been mentioned. The National Museum of North America, the papers of the National Geographic Society, the papers of the American Historical Society, the papers of the Library of Congress, and the records of various states and counties have been noted. The Rockies — and in Canada everything east of the Red River.

The historical material we have assembled here is a substantial one essential to the student of American history.

Approximately 150 reviews, 150 pictures
