Jim Ellis
CLOSE-UP

Ellis says no he wouldn't disqualify himself if the Sea World lease came up for a vote by the City Council. "That would be admitting I did something wrong."

—John Hollands—

It's too bad. Someone is really going to lose. Jim Ellis is one of the city's more nearly average new City Councilmen and he simply hasn't been given the credit he deserves. He has been working hard at the job of governing San Diego, and he feels he deserves a little more recognition than he is getting. It's unfortunate that so many people are unaware of his contributions to the city.

Ellis, who represents the district including Sea World and the San Diego Zoo, has been a champion of the park's interests. He has also been a strong advocate for the city's parks and recreation programs. Ellis's efforts have helped to improve the city's parks and recreation facilities, and he has worked to increase the city's budget for these programs.

Ellis is a former mayor of San Diego and has served as a member of the City Council for several years. He is a respected member of the community and has been a valued contributor to the city's government.

Although Ellis is a man of few words, he is respected for his integrity and his dedication to public service. He is a man who works hard and does not seek the spotlight. He is a true public servant who has given his best to the city he loves.
The first holds a good, second nature, for a moment. In the beginning, the things at first: the trees, the flowers, the birds, the clouds, the sky. But it's the reason why we love them. The second is the realization that, in the past, there was a tremendous sense of contemplation and serenity that in some ways defined the essence of the natural world. It's a sense of calm, of peace, of stillness. The second is just a glimpse of the past, a reflection of what it was like to be alive in that time. It's a reminder of how everything has changed, and how much has been lost.

Certainly the deviants they were, the police turned up - junkie, stink pigeon, leather, Hell's Angel - form a gaudy parade of carneal performances.

"But I said it was a dead body. I said why doesn't anyone believe me? Why do you need to see it by the light of day when you think we're already dead anyway?"

The story of a family who believed they were dying and took measures to protect themselves. The family, in a last-ditch effort to save themselves, decided to build a dead-light to cast an eerie glow that would convinces others that they were indeed dead. The result was a chilling tale of survival set against the backdrop of a world where death is the only acceptable form of existence.
