These cities have a small number of families that have had power and wealth for some time, very tight societies that have never expanded or let in substantial amounts of new blood. A sort of ossification happens, and there's a loss of contact in how you deal with people.

This isn't to say that they aren't very nice, generous people who work for the arts — but it's a question of understanding how one uses one's power.

The current event, and a young man destined to its becoming major events in the center of San Diego, is the announcement of a major expansion coming soon in the city's arts scene: the Concert of Contemporary Music, an orchestra that has long been considered one of the top ten orchestras in the United States.

Funds are being raised to help finance the expansion, which will allow the orchestra to perform in a new, state-of-the-art concert hall. The new hall will feature advanced technology and will be able to accommodate larger audiences.

The orchestra's conductor, a well-known musician, has also been announced. He is a former student of the legendary composer, and he has been praised for his innovative and dynamic conducting style.

The expansion is significant for the city, as it will help to attract more international artists and boost the local music scene. It is also a testament to the city's commitment to the arts and its residents.

STRAIGHT FROM THE HIP
BY MATTHEW ALICE

Dear Matthew,

I love you. I love the way you walk, the way you talk, the way you make me laugh. I love the way you hold my hand, the way you kiss me, the way you love me. I love you so much that I can't imagine living without you. I love you so much that I can't imagine being with anyone else. I love you so much that I know I will be with you forever.

ROLL OVER BEETHOVEN

By the end of the piece, my heart was throbbing as though I had been spun through the solar system on a spacecraft.

—Jonathan Saville

The difference between a moderate voice and a good voice is easy to define. A good voice simply does everything better. But the difference between a good voice and a great voice is more difficult to define. A great voice is a voice that can make you feel something, that can move you, that can transport you to another place. A great voice is a voice that can make you feel the music, that can make you feel the emotion. A great voice is a voice that can make you feel alive.

—Dante Alighieri

As I was walking through the park earlier today, I noticed a group of people gathered around a monument. It was a statue of a great musician from the 19th century. I thought to myself, "This is what a great voice sounds like." It was a voice that could move people, that could transport them to another place.
