Could one of these girls walk into a place like the Voyager over on Harbor Island, and—act like a lady?

Connie Brock

At the last end of the bar, a young woman spread her fist, like a caved-in tornado, and turned both garments into a worthless machine. She turned, looking for other girls, and began to make her way across the room. It was then that one of the girls from "The Frenzy" in her formal gown, women's rubber coat, and headphones, walked into the room. She walked over to the woman, who was still looking for other girls, and said, "Hey, hey, hey! What's going on here?"

"I'm not sure," the woman replied. "It sounds like something's going on over there."
God, After All, Also Speaks in Thunder

This music is not supposed to give you a warm, comfortable, religious feeling, the kind you have in an elegantly appointed, well-heated church on a Sunday morning amongst tastefully dressed La Jolla ladies.

Jonathan Saville

Weird Vegetables and Where to Find Them

These stores have the best selection of strange edibles I have seen in a long time.

I would never have made it through the menu of Wai Ching Cheung, the Chinese superchef at the Pacific Oyster Club, without a little help. He has a special recipe for each dish on the menu, and they are all fabulous. But I must admit, it was a bit overwhelming. I decided to go with a few of his recommendations, and I was not disappointed. The food was delicious, and I was able to get a feel for the restaurant and the culture of China.

"GOO GOO CHING" Wai Ching Cheung has the best selection of Chinese food in San Diego. His restaurant, the Pacific Oyster Club, is located in the heart of Little China and offers a variety of dishes that are sure to please anyone. From traditional Chinese dishes to modern interpretations, Wai Ching Cheung's menu offers something for everyone. I highly recommend giving him a try if you're in the area!
Monuments Hung in Effigy

Instead of screaming, these paintings maintain an easy calm with their deliberately simple logic. They buzz, whiz, purr, and hum to the limitations of their self-contained content.

Jennifer Kotter

In the past two years, the “hardboiled” fashion of the 1970s and early 1980s has given way to an easily readable pop art movement which is often seen as a reaction against the hardboiled. The art of the past decade has been characterized by a sense of revolution, a sense of change, and a sense of the personal. The style of the hardboiled is one of a set of fixed points around which everything else revolves. The style of the past decade is one of a set of flexible points around which everything else revolves.
