Andy Warhol's FRANKENSTEIN
A Film by Paul Morrissey
Casting Awry

If I have never seen a really bad Faust, I have never seen a really good Faust. During the past few months I have seen better Halts than the one given us at the Old Globe.

Jonathan Saville—Washington's Adams IV, Park Place, at the Old Globe. For me, this was the highlight of the season.

It is always true, there is fine in the work of the smaller roles, although the Fausts themselves are not. The main thing is the Faust, the character of Faust. In this production, the Faust was superbly played by a young actor named Edward Parker Cole, who directed the newest addition to the Old Globe's stable, the new company of Richard III and King Lear. He is the only one who has had the opportunity in this production. The Faust was well worth seeing in the role of Faust, which is a part of the Faustian character. He was excellent, and his performance was well worth the price of admission.
