Whatever Happened to the Art Theatre?

—John Martin

There used to be only one Art Theatre in San Diego, the Art Theatre in Kensington. Under the ownership of Robert Brickley, who brought the repertory theatre movement to San Diego with the infamous Cuckolds and the...

The San Diego chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) and the Institute for the Study of Advertising Practices (ISA) have taken a stand against the use of women in advertising. A recent study by the ISA showed that women are often portrayed as victims or objects in advertising, which goes against the principles of NOW's fight for women's rights.

The study found that women are often depicted in a passive role, while men are shown as active and in control. This portrayal reinforces gender stereotypes and reinforces the unequal power dynamics between men and women.

NOW and ISA are calling on advertisers to use more empowering and respectful portrayals of women in their ads. The two organizations have also launched a campaign to raise awareness about the issue and encourage consumers to demand more equality in advertising.

In a statement, NOW President sauces said, "We are seeing a real opportunity to change the way women are portrayed in advertising. NOW is committed to fighting for equality and we believe that advertising should reflect our society's values."

ISA President Johnson added, "Advertising is a powerful tool, and we need to use it responsibly. We want to see a world where women are not just objects, but active participants in society."
