I talked recently with the East Village Regional Crime Commission in behalf of the current Department of Justice study of crime and riots. The commission consists of retired police officers, civic leaders, and community members. A recent survey was conducted to determine the effectiveness of the current crime prevention programs. The results indicate that there is a need for increased funding and resources to address the issue of crime in the community. The commission is working on developing a comprehensive plan for crime prevention that includes increased police presence, community involvement, and improved communication between law enforcement and the public. The plan also includes initiatives to address the root causes of crime, such as poverty and lack of community resources. The commission is also working to improve relations between law enforcement and the community, which is essential for effective crime prevention. The commission hopes to present their findings and recommendations to the city council and other relevant authorities in the near future. The goal is to create a safer and more vibrant community for all residents. The commission encourages everyone to participate in their efforts by volunteering or offering resources. It's a time for unity and action in the community.

The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge was the first bridge to span San Francisco Bay. It was opened in 1936 and has been an iconic part of the city's skyline ever since. The bridge was designed by engineer O. W. Kennedy and constructed by the Cahill Bros. Construction Company. It is 8,300 feet long and 330 feet wide, and was the longest suspension bridge in the world at the time of its completion. The bridge is also known for its unique design, which incorporates elements from both the Gothic and Art Deco styles. It has been a popular tourist attraction and is a symbol of the city of San Francisco.
