The City Council, acting on the recommandation of the Public Safety Com-nission, ten days ago, for the first time, voted to take him into custody. The problem was whether or not there are en-signs of a more serious situation that needs to be addressed.

The department's report, with a few exceptions, was a good one. Revisions indicate that our police force needs to improve their response to the public, particularly in terms of communication and protocols.

Booth-Mattingly, a former city councilman and police client, claimed there has been no evidence of any wrongdoing by the councilman. Rather, he said that the councilman has been treated unfairly and that it's time for the council to act

The city councilman was sent to jail in June, 2016, for violating the city's ethics code.

Sharron Floyd, 80, and her husband, William Floyd, 85, were sentenced to five years in prison for fraud.

The couple was accused of using false information to receive federal assistance grants.

Floyd was convicted of wrongdoing on multiple counts.

She was sentenced to five years in prison, and he was sentenced to three years

Floyd's attorney, David

Floyd, said his client

was wrongly convicted and will appeal the judgment.

Where It Hurts the Most

"Doctor, if I had known I was being charged $75 to talk about health food and colonics, I'd have asked you to refer me to a library book."

"But that's not what I meant," the patient replied. "I meant about the health food and colonics.""

PAINTER IN THE STREETS

Pallock never tires of painting people. But at one time in his life, he was afraid of them. He was always a bashful child, unable to speak with people. He suffered the same shyness as an adult, painting street scenes from rooftops where no one could see him.

Judith E. Lipton

Finding through the crowds was expectable, but finding an audience was unexpected. As the day unfolded, I watched as the people passed by. Some would stare, some would smile, and some would simply continue on their way. But one thing remained constant: the interaction between the street and the artist. A dance of sorts, where the artist responded to the moment, and the people responded to the art. The street became a canvas, and the artist, a performer. It was a dialogue, a moment captured in time. And as the day ended, I couldn't help but wonder what stories were unfolding between the people and the art.
