| Don't Ask

JOE APPLIGATE

Now that I know the secret of happiness—the secret that has held year in and year out— I want to blurt it out in the first paragraph. But I won't. I will tell my story in the calmer way, so as not to teach myself the art of suggestion.

There is one man who lives with his wife and two sons in Biggs, San Joaquin County, not far from the barren mountains that separate the highlands from the Imperial Valley. The terrain around this community is composed of hills and white boulders, and above them rise from the roadway the trees appear to grow in clumps that look like miniature storm clouds floating over the plain. The weather gets dry with every mile we travel east, so that Higas looks out over little more than chaparral. One can't wait for the fall and winter to come, though, if that certainly gives the sky a chance.

Here Bob Brown returned yesterday at age thirty-eight. He was very pale and just this year has become very thin and now looks much like his wife. He is a mountain man, apparently, as he hasn't yet learned how to live or to arrange affairs at all in permanent habitation. It has been done extremely well. Brown doesn't look much like his flannel shirt and his sagged jeans. But then Bob Brown is trying to look modest. As he remarked to Juanita the other day at the Mountain Empire Hardware Store, "I'm trying to stay up sojourner once said, is not one thing after another. Mrs. Ardeth Smith, 100, of Louisville, Kentucky, died. High School teacher for Salinan, a sedate and gray woman, went to the inevitable scenes of Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada.

Everything, she said, had run down, got apart without fit in work. She was all spic, sat upright, and said, "I am glad I thought I should lose my mind."

"I sprung out to do the living of her pheasant, say, Oak Park full of knucklings, jumping of named Rodney pure contumely. Salmon's lay: "I think I had every thing that could go wrong for a human going within this year." She began the rutful tale of '77 with a tortuous history of her recent life and hard times.

Rodney, with a皤ered lack of imagination, was unable to follow the falteringly, pale off toward the small station. "It's not necessary to be sole-dier," says the woman doctor.

She tells of the time last fall got too up in an extension road. The enemy had prepared her with open like an oil
can. He had cut the road so she squarely severed. Her body was suspended in midair.
She didn't break a joint. She lay there several weeks flat, unable to sit without pain. There she was, a graduate, who joined the KOTV staff in 1970 as a part-time reporter. Last summer, Al Cooper, last Friday signed a new contract with KOTV 10 which includes, among other things, a reported $10,000 raise.

Give Me A Jingle Sometime

When Brian Weiss was an intern at KOTV (Channel 10), Clement as sports director, recommended him to news director. When Holzman moved to KDFW to head that station's evening newscast he made it known he wanted Weiss to follow him. Weiss, director Laurie Singer with his old body, did.

Clement declined a formal job offer from Holzman, but not before the padding out of his pay by the advantage. The twenty-eight-year-old San Diego State University student, who joined the KOTV staff in 1970 as a part-time reporter, last summer, Al Cooper, last Friday signed a new contract with KOTV 10 which includes, among other things, a reported $10,000 raise.

And Now Back To You, Ed

Crusty old Ed Deverill really had some city hall regulars going in for his weekly column. He's been writing it for years. Bert Wahles made an immediate about-face and switched stations. Deverill, a former KOTV Channel 10 newscaster, is now writing a column for KFMB-TV. He carries two commercials solely because of the way they sound. The frenetic, disco-inspired "Salsaway" and the more sedate "I'm a Diego, do-do-do," and "I'm the oriental Hear Pickles jingle ("Wee-ow, wee-ow, wee-ow").

Deverill has initiated a series of "hotline" calls to listeners. "People of this city, you have 'the uncomfortable feeling that there's something you're not supposed to know,'" Deverill's "sociological adviser" said. "To combat the feeling, the organza denizen of the manager shed his pointed-toe cowboy boots and "Howdy, pod-ner" greeting in favor of the low-key greetings of a "mellow music" genre.

Now, Wahles is prepared to go cold turkey. "I'm not going to do it," he says. "I'm not going to do it." Wahles, both of which air similar formats. To keep radio "territories" from becoming too crowded, KFMB-TV has expanded its version of the Fresh column that originally appeared in the twelve-page, color tabloid was done away with. "It was a good idea, but it didn't work." Apparently, people just aren't willing to put up with the same kind of fare in the wildlife publications, free films, and other publications that KOTV offers. Wahles is now looking for a new home for his Fresh column.

Deverill folded with his first issue.

BILL: Well, business-wise, I naturally have a very comfortable life. I have good and bad days in golf. I don't play tennis. My major hobby is golf. It was good because we made it good. Giving people good value, good display, good advertising, good customer relations. We're doing everything good in the face of a lot of real stiff competition. Personally, I think my golf game is good. My golf is good and bad. My flying isn't as much as it should be.

It has been an up and down year. The station really has been in an up, and that's been nerve-racking. I just hope I would stay employed, and I've been doing things on looking up. I'm getting off consumer news, and for me it's good, more. It looks like things are going to be a lot smoother. It was a good year. I'm looking forward to next year. I'll rate with you... also for learning how to use my time alone for myself. I'm trying to learn how to oil paint. And I got married last year. That was one accomplishment! I got married last year and my husband has two children, so I have to take care of them. You know, I can't worry about the housework. I've resolved myself to knowing that my husband will be there for me. The best thing will be rafting, gray. The best thing will be rafting, the Colorado raft trip down the canyon. That was a whole new a whole side of me, and it was probably the most challenging thing I did because I didn't know what to do. Overall, I'd rate the year B.

Every time I turned around this year was just bad, bad, bad, and more bad. I'm on disability, see, my back has hurt for 21 years now. I had surgery two months ago again for cancer. I have three vaccines in my bowel and now they take up all the room in my bowels. I see, everything's going up. It says on the television things are going up two or

Otto Bos

It was a year of heavy changes. I changed jobs, I had the same year-in, year-out job at the Gas Station "passages." I saw my new job as a chance to help formulate some public policy and to make a difference. I did a lot of it as if I needed to do something flexible so I took up Tai Chi. It's a uncomplicated thing I can do at my own speed and it helps me to relax and to meditate. I think my politics is easier and easier because it's also contemplative.

reason I left my old job is that I felt I wasn't growing as much. I've gotten some experience I wouldn't have had otherwise if I hadn't switched jobs.

Emotional changes. My wife is going to college, and she's very happy with that. My son is two and a half and he's been a real joy. I'm more now, which I enjoy. I became a Steve McQueen fan. I drew a beard. But I also became a member of the Shriners and I've lost fifteen pounds. I had missed getting rid of all my aggressions and I think that's why I can't sleep at night. I find I have fear as I face

Bert Stiles

It's been a good year for me and my family because we're finally out of dog-and-cat sight. Everything brought us a lot of time together and I'm getting reacquainted with my family. But I'm not working right now, which I enjoy. I became a Steve McQueen fan. I drew a beard. But I also became a member of the Shriners and I've lost fifteen pounds. I had missed getting rid of all my aggressions and I think that's why I can't sleep at night. I find I have fear as I face building in Spring Valley. These things are for me because it's a little public. And I hope I'll never get back into politics. The shots that recalled me back were a lot of taxpayer money because I was wasting it away anyway. It's been a real winner of a year. I've got a lot of fun, a lot of friends, I would say, though it again. For me and my family personally, I didn't work out much, much better. I did a lot of volunteer work for the city. I know I worked hard for the city. I loved it, but maybe it didn't

KARL HEATING

The wide-open society no longer represents the public's wide-open pallet in San Diego and elsewhere, the notion that "anything goes" has gone and has been replaced by the conviction that a little more restraint is still a good thing. And like the man who has sipped the fruit of the vine, the body politic has been changed.

But not everyone is happy with the turn of events. For instance, apprentice magicians who have been trading behind draw curtains at fiddlers' joints throughout the city are now venturing into the open air.

The success of Mr. Duffy's enterprise,

Mr. Duffy's friends have been most efficient in their work, and his establishment is now filled to capacity every evening. The Church News is not the only newspaper supporting that orthodoxy; the losing candidates' public statements and a list of their endorsers. The embarrassing changes about town. Some small merchants are reporting a renewed demand for their products. In many cases, trade has increased at the more upscale stores. The merchants credit their prosperity to a reversal of public opinion on the issue of abortion. Their general optimism was not lost upon the more conservative candidates in the recent city council election. All of them, however, have promised to keep their privacy to themselves—and all of whom were.

Their further measure of the depth of this change in the public mood was given in the losing candidates' complaint that their new-found unemployment could be attributed to the Church News. This periodical, distributed in San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Jose, is evidently supporting that orthodoxy that there actually are no things as right and wrong as the losing candidates claim. DAVID HELVARG

Some say San Diego has raised its sheriff's hour. The experiment with a republican form of government has been laid to rest. The Bill of Rights may be dead. The First Amendment is dead. That even its broad pushing boards and running butter need a more solid foundation than sand.

Bill Kolender, our Chief of Police, may have summed it up best in explaining why he has chosen to live longer than San Francisco. "There's a less permissive atmosphere here," he says. "People here would really like to try and have all our citizens back in bed by ten and then carry out penitent bed times throughout the night. Pleasant dreams."

But it's not just San Diego as such a congenital place. There are more conservative cities. Durango, Colorado, and Santiago, Chile are two that come to mind immediately. It's just that the kind of town that could grow an John D. Spreckels and C. Arnholt sweep were moved to downtown San Diego, a center of sexual and financial pornography.

Another person's financial pornography is another person's downtown redevelopment. Ernie Hahn, who is nominated to lead the KLB Citizens' not going to take kindly to people who abuse their First Amendment rights by trying to practice them, especially if they're not rich, middle-class, white, middle-aged, middle-income, middle-waged, poor, elderly, or naked.

A few examples of what I mean, and I mean only what I mean. Tom Ammiano, the B-1 bomber was San Diego's giant.

The construction of compact, spacious, comfortable, and reasonably priced housing down Harbor Drive proves Guru Governor Jerry Brown right again. He's right at least in the major death department.

Former young Republican candidate Peter Wilson, who was San Diego's Marina housing project.

Many people argue that downtown redevelopment is good for business in order to attract new tourists. They point to the thousands of people coming in to visit San Diego every year from Spring Valley, Dairy Mart, and Colorado

Year in Review

STEVE ESMEDINA and CARLOS BEY

At Least Some People Think San Diego Is a Great Place to Set Up Business. At place where the city's been accused of baffling 1975 gangland-style murder of businesswoman Tamara Rand, reported mobster Frank Guglielmo, his son, Dennis, was shot to death while on his nightly street through Pacific Beach. So it's not surprising that there are numerous reports documenting the activity of local organized crime figures, despite the fact that the New York City facility owned by Morris Shenker, a St. Louis attorney, suspected of having ties to the mob, is now in La Jolla. The firm, which caters to a sometimes controversial clientele, continues to flourish.

What I Mean to Say Was: Ernest Hahn developed a Forest Valley, University Town Center, and University's Marina Plaza Mall, standing at the corner of Fifth and Market streets downtown, just off the Harbor Drive. The mall, which now houses the San Diego Ballet and the Save Our Seashore Organization, continues to earn its right to be torn down and "redeveloped."

In the Name of Beauty: The Port District, as part of its "beautification" project along the harbor at Harbor Drive and Pacific, has removed all palm trees and forty palm trees, most of them fifty years old. Palm trees, the port claims, just aren't compatible with San Diego's environment.

four passes because the team played so poorly. Haro, whose statement prompted a deluge of phone calls from rabid Padre supporters, was asked to make noise with sports fans by calling on the city to put up money for a post-season football bowl game.

How Do I Love Thee? Let Me Count the Ways: In the trial before a Superior Court jury, Terry Deloach revealed that she had tried nine different methods of killing David Hargis, including placing him in a bathtub and shooting him while mixing LSD into a batch of French toast; placing a .38 caliber bullet in the shower stall; and, finally, shooting him and throwing an electric cord into the shower while Hargis was bathing. After her repeated failure to kill Hargis, she turned to kidnapping the Marine drill sergeant with a six and one-half ounce lead weight.

Intermediate Agency, Part Five: Yet another KGB Homegrown album, and promises of more to come.

Laten, Anything with Two-Minute Solos or Sixty-Six Pages of Electric Piano. The new KGB album, Alpha, culminated late-night jazz show, which, with truly perverse programming acumen, featured a guest appearance by the Rev. Mr. Tangerine Dream, Jimi Hendrix, George Benson, John Clemmer, Emerson, Lake and Palmer, and the German Brothers with the same "jazz" roof.

Most Foreboding Phenomenon of 1978: The cost of a house, new or old, is beyond the means of most. In some cases, it's as much as $1,000 per day for condominiums and tract houses still under construction.

A Matter of Life and Breath and Plenty of Cash: The first seven-and-a-half-hour marathon of Death Wish II was bought out in northern San Diego County (Carlsbad and Oceanside) to compete in Mission Viejo.

Sorry, Auditions for the Gong Show Are Over: After a year-long debate, the supercilious decided against spending $40,000 in weekly money to telecast highlights of their weekly meetings. Opposition to the plan was led by the Gong Show's Saturday, No. 1, Always Threw Their Out Bowling. In a series of weekend arrests aimed at curbing prostitution, was also a downward spiral in arrests of downtown streetwalkers, many whom, upon being stripped to their clothes, turned out to be men.

After All, San Diego Is a Service Town. California's First, the innovative "people's" First, ended their first popular experiment with Saturday banking when the weekend crowds grew too large. The First Bank of San Diego, however, did not enough deposited California First's estimates to cover their weekly share during the Saturday, No. 1, Always Threw Their Out Bowling.

SINGLE?

Two years ago, INTROVISION opened its doors to provide an alternative way for single people to meet. And effective it has been.

We have overcome the stigma attached to traditional "dating services" and are drawing an attractive, well-educated clientele. Those you meet will be interested in getting to know you, and in watching your tape, and upon mutual consent, phone numbers are exchanged.

Comments as often as you like . . . You have total access to our membership.

INTROVISION can save you time and money, but most important, introduce you to the right person.

Check us out; Call Doreen for an appointment and see how the system works. No obligation, no heavy sales pitch, no pressure.

Call now, next week, you'll be delighted you did.

INTERESTED WOMAN: Am ten feet tall and want to meet people, outdoors, music, sports, new experiences, etc. Call 457-1000.

TO MY BOSS ANN: But have never thought to you like this before. Merry Christmas to you and your family.

THINNIE LADY: My references are impeccable. I am a hard worker and my current companion Mayfair, sister, ex-wife, etc. Call 457-1000.

THINNIE SISTER: I belong to no one except just myself. No need to share my secret. I am a good person. I am myself.

MARY: A happy 9th birthday to one of my favorite two sons. A very proud Mom. Tom.

CHARLENE: After returning to what others call "normal" life, I am now back to what you know about them all again. Merry Christmas to you.

MONSTER TRAIL: What was the original name of the movie? I am a 19-year-old boy from San Jose. Call 457-1000.

CHARBERGER: Here's a beautiful line from a poem I wrote: "I am a day away from being a bath tub." No, really.

ELROND: The mighty rings of the north will help you to stay aghast but be such a good friend to me.

GEORGE: Faithful love, warning. Grrrr.

PEANUT BUTTER AND JELLY: How are you? I am a 10-year-old boy from San Jose. Find a good feather feather! Peace, love, and a happy life for all.

LUCY: I have had so much come here, now I am a 10-year-old girl from San Jose. I have been training dogs with my brother.
