THE BROTHERHOOD OF OMBAC

By Neal Matthews

Clint Millard, leader of Red in hand, filed suit against OMBAC for putting up a cross. The cross was a small 10-inch stone in the Peninsula Park in South Mission Beach. The board of directors—seven men meeting in a van—were told to take the cross down and that we would have to do it. The cross was taken down, and the last meeting for OMBAC is over.

The board of directors of OMBAC has been dissolved. The cross was taken down, and the last meeting for OMBAC is over. The cross was taken down, and the last meeting for OMBAC is over.
City Lights

Under The Lights

We might understand physiologically why the City Cats, when darkness begins to fall, are often seen out in the parking lots of buildings or shopping centers. But the sudden preoccupations of our arganized community are, first of all, a psychological phe omenon. There are few who have not experienced the fear of the unknown, the sense of the night that makes us look over our shoulders, the un settled feeling that we are being watched in the darkness. These experiences are not limited to the urban environment, but can be found in the countryside as well. In this context, the City Cats become a metaphor for the collective psyche of the city, the manifestation of our fear of the unknown.

Audience Participation

We should truly value and contribute to the intellectual exchange that occurs in our community. This could be facilitated through regular discussions, debates, and forums. Such gatherings would not only strengthen our community but also provide a platform for diverse perspectives on critical issues. A successful example of this in our area is the University's 'Thinkers' series. To ensure its success, we must actively participate, contribute, and encourage others to do the same.

Kevin O. Miller's article on the success of small businesses was informative and inspiring. It highlighted the importance of community support in nurturing these enterprises. As a local entrepreneur, I understand the value of such support. It's not just about money; it's about building a network of trust and cooperation.

Tom Johnson

Chamber President

In response to the increasing number of small businesses in our area, I would like to invite everyone to participate in our upcoming event. The Chamber of Commerce is organizing a meeting where we can discuss strategies for the growth and development of these businesses. It's an opportunity to network and learn from each other's experiences.

Matthew Alice

Dear Marko Alice,

I know that you are not a regular subscriber to this magazine, but I wanted to write to you today to express my gratitude for the thoughtful and well-reasoned article you wrote last month on the subject of the upcoming presidential election. Your perspective on the candidates was refreshing and insightful, and I truly appreciated your willingness to engage with complex issues in a thoughtful and balanced manner.

I also wanted to let you know that I have recently started a new podcast where I discuss the latest developments in technology and business. I think that you might find it interesting, and I would be happy to send you more information about it.

Thank you again for your support, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Matthew Alice
The Old Mission Beach Athletic Club has one great fear — the fear of becoming respectable. Its values are the values of the beach: a kind of laissez-faire attitude toward fun and sensibilities, and a general disdain for anyone who lives east of Interstate 5. But over the years things have gotten more complicated. In short, the club has tried to remain the same, but the world has changed.

"That's right," applied to the Old Mission Beach Athletic Club, the phrase has a double meaning. "That's right" is used as a confirmation, a kind of applause. It's a way of saying that you don't have to do anything, that you can just keep doing what you're doing, and everyone will be fine. It's a way of saying that you don't have to change, that you can just keep doing what you're doing, and everyone will be fine.

Battle Fatigue

I am in a parade of strangely made-up women: we stride into the lady room like Amazons. About eighteen off-duty Marines gape up at us, pool cues and uplifted beers frozen in space, too stunned even to speak.

FRIDAYS

I am made up like a Mildred Pierce: my breasts are about 80 cubits; my mouth is broad and red; my skirt is a fuchsia chiffon, bagging at my knees, and my shoes are black satin Mary Janes. My hair is Pixie Bob, cut just above my ears, and my face is powdered and rouged to a high shine.

William warns me to help his blind cat move across the street to the car where it has been sitting for the last few hours. The cat, he says, is a good cat, but it has something wrong with its leg. I peek into the car and see the cat sitting there looking sad. I tell William that I can't help him move the cat because I have to get to work. He says it's okay, and he will come back later to help him.

The cat is a domestic shorthair, and William has had it for many years. He says that the cat is very special to him, and he feels bad because the cat is now unable to walk on its own. William tells me that he has been trying to find a new home for the cat, but so far he hasn't been successful. He says that he is going to take the cat to the animal shelter to see if they can help.

William's friends are all very helpful and supportive. They have been helping him take care of the cat and try to find a new home for it. William is a kind and caring man, and he always makes sure that the cats are well taken care of.

The cat is a beautiful animal, and it is clear that it is very much a part of William's life. I tell William that I wish I could help him, but I have to get to work. He says it's okay, and he will come back later to help him.

THE WIZARD IS AT IT AGAIN!

Once upon a time... (late last night), the WIZARD OF OZZIE’s was performing a little impromptu magic for a few hundred of his closest friends in the OZZIE’S AMPHITHEATER when things went a little astray, and OUR BOSS, who had volunteered to participate in the WIZARD’S famous DISAPPEARING WATER-TORTURE TRICK...

...FAILED TO RETURN FROM THE "OTHER SIDE"!

So, until THE BOSS can be located—All the salesmen are calling their friends and practically giving EVERYTHING AWAY AT UNBELIEVABLE SAVINGS!

The Precision Haircut Explained Precisely.

Because your hair is unique, the way you take care of it is equally unique. And there’s no one-size-fits-all when it comes to cutting, styling, and caring for your hair. For that reason, we offer a Precision Haircut service to ensure your unique hair needs are attended to.

Precision cutting is a technique for cutting hair, allowing for a seamless flow from one length to another. It’s a precise and meticulous method that requires a skilled hairstylist to execute. By working with your unique hair type and texture, a Precision Haircut can enhance your natural features and enhance your overall appearance.

At Command Performance, our hair stylists are trained to provide you with a custom Precision Haircut that meets your specific needs. Whether you’re looking for a sleek and modern style or a classic and timeless look, our stylists can help you achieve the hair you’ve always wanted.

For more information on our Precision Haircut services or to schedule a consultation, please contact us today. We look forward to helping you achieve the perfect Precision Haircut that suits your unique needs and style.
