Dear Matthew Alice,

Can you tell me where to find Southern California's hottest disc jockey? I've heard she's on a new TV show.

Dear Matthew Alice,

I'm currently studying at a music school and I'm interested in adding to my collection of music-related books. Could you recommend some titles that provide in-depth knowledge of music history, production techniques, and industry trends?

DON'T SHOOT:

THE WAR IS OVER

LOGAN'S ENDS

Change: He was the most powerful speed boat I've ever known. He had built this sophisticated, luxury speed boat, the Logan 240, to carry his family and guests on cruises in the Pacific Ocean. But then he sold it to someone else, and now it's been turned into a swimming pool.

We tried to
sell it ourselves,
but we couldn't
find anyone who would buy it.

Yesterday,
we had to take
the engine out
to fix it, but
then we realized
that the boat
was staring
to sink. We had to get it out of
the water
immediately.

We finally managed to raise
the money to fix
the engine,
and now
the boat
is running
again.

In the
meanwhile,
we've been looking for someone
who wants
it.

The
boat
was a
wonderful
investment,
and we
hope
we'll be able
to find
new owner.

The
future
of
logan's
ends
is
uncertain,
but
we
will
don't give
up.

We'll
continue
looking
for someone
can appreciate
the
value
this
boat.
DON'T SHOOT: THE WAR IS OVER

By Robert E. Lee

Introduction: The Vietnam War is over. For the American public, this lawless and war has come to an end. The Vietnamese have fought bravely, and the United States has not been successful. This is a time to celebrate, to mourn, and to begin a new beginning. This is a time to reflect on the lessons of the past and to hope for a better future.

Black Anthem

JEFF SMITH

Last Saturday night the Southern California Black Repertory Theatre opened (in 1980-81) its second production of the year: "Black Anthem," directed by John Douglas Thompson. This is an outstanding theatrical event.

The program is a collection of eleven poems, some written by the poet-playwright, and some written by other black artists. Each poem is followed by a short monologue written by a young black actor. The poetry includes not only selections from Langston Hughes, Paul Theroux, and Ntozake Shange but also pieces written by Repertory members. The result is a program that is both entertaining and enlightening.

The program notes do not specify the names of the actors, but the quality of their performances is evident. The actors are skilled in their delivery of the poetry, and their interpretations of the monologues are also well done. The overall effect is a thought-provoking interpretation of the poetry and a moving performance of the monologues.

The production is well directed, with a strong sense of timing and pace. The actors are all well-cast, and their performances are strong. The production is a tribute to the work of these talented actors and to the art of black poetry.

I would highly recommend this production to anyone interested in the arts. It is a wonderful combination of poetry and acting, and it is a testament to the talent of the artists involved.

Robert Rauschenberg Retrospective

Robert Rauschenberg, the pioneering artist, passed away in 1997, but his impact on the art world remains evident today. The retrospective exhibition at the San Diego Museum of Art, opening in November 2023, celebrates his life and work. The exhibition features over 200 works, including paintings, sculptures, and prints, spanning Rauschenberg's career from the 1950s to the 1990s. Highlights of the exhibition include "The Bed," a mixed-media work that Rauschenberg created in 1952, and "Combination Painting No. 1," a piece he completed in 1963. The exhibition also includes a rarely seen archive of Rauschenberg's letters and notes, offering insights into his artistic process.

SAN DIEGO'S WEEKLY

TEN YEARS AFTER CLASS

It was July 5, 1960, and about 100 anti-Communist young adults and students attended a meeting at the Museum of the Americas in New York. For the ten years since Chenoweth High, the Chinese Communist revolution had come, and many of the young Americans present had experienced the terror and oppression of the new regime. The meeting was organized by the Committee to Defend the Unions, which was fighting to reestablish democratic rights in China.

One of the speakers was a young man named Joe Chenoweth, who had been a student at Chenoweth High. He told the story of his experiences in the Chinese Communist regime, and how he had come to believe that only a forceful and decisive action could save China from its present dire state.

The meeting was a turning point in Joe's life. He decided to leave China and come to the United States to continue his education and work to help bring about a change in China. He became involved in political activities, and eventually founded a group called the Committee to Defend the Unions in the United States. Joe Chenoweth became a leading figure in the anti-Communist movement, and his work helped to bring about the end of the Chinese Communist regime.
