The Fourth Photography Awards Exhibition

The Center for Photographic Arts and the Reader would like to thank San Diego County photographers who submitted entries to this contest. A total of 1140 works was received and was judged by Suda House, photography instructor from Grossmont College; Don Owens, publisher/editor of Photoshow Magazine; and Holly Howell, director of the Photography Gallery in La Jolla. Thirty-six photographs were selected for exhibition. The eight award-winning entries are presented in this issue of the Reader.

The complete exhibition may be seen at Gallery Graphics, 3847 Fifth Avenue, Hillcrest, from Saturday, May 16, through Wednesday, June 17.

First Award $100
A Winter Afternoon, black and white, Pat Gifford, East San Diego

Second Award $75

How Does This Strike You?

The response was not what I had expected. There was a moment of silence, and then a collective groan from the audience. Some people began to whisper, and a few rolled their eyes. It was clear that I had missed the mark.

I took a deep breath and tried to gather my thoughts. "I understand," I said, "that this might not be the most popular topic, but I believe it's important for us to discuss it."

There was another moment of hesitation, and then a few people started to nod in agreement. I continued, "I think it's crucial that we all approach this issue with an open mind and a willingness to learn."

The audience was silent, their expressions a mix of curiosity and apprehension. I could sense their reluctance, but I knew I had to press on. "I realize that this might be uncomfortable," I said, "but I believe it's necessary for our future."

As I spoke, the room grew quieter. I could feel the weight of their attention on me, and I knew I had to be careful with my words. "I believe that by understanding each other's perspectives, we can find a way forward that benefits everyone."

"Most of us, if we weren't in environmental planning, would be teaching in junior colleges."
The amount of paper used in EIRs has caused more than one citizen to suggest that they consume more trees than they save.
