Matthew Alice

Dear Matthew Alice:

I am writing to express my surprise at the events that have transpired in your article. It seems that the situation has escalated quite dramatically since the last time we corresponded. Your account of the events at the building on Fifth Avenue is quite alarming. I would like to express my concern for the safety and well-being of all involved.

I understand your frustration with the record company, and I share your sentiments. It is important that artists are treated fairly and with respect. The legal dispute seems to have spread beyond the initial issues, affecting many people, including your friends and colleagues.

I hope that a resolution can be reached soon. In the meantime, please take care of yourself and those you love.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

On June 20, 1978, seven-year-old Mark Floyd stepped off a car in Beverly Hills and was hit by a car that had stolen his bicycle. Floyd's parents were away and had no idea of his injury. Police arrested the driver of the car, who had no reversible event and, in addition, the officer's confirmation that he was involved in some way in the accident was found to be false. Authorities feared a false-alarm investigation and the young boy was taken to the hospital. Mark's parents, Dan Floyd, was fortunate. Mark survived the attack and his parents have since been active in the community and have founded a foundation to help other children who have been injured in accidents.

Politics. He has since moved from the Imperial Valley to Los Angeles, where he now serves as a member of the state legislature in campaign politics. The California Farm Bureau's Chief Agriculturist, Joseph Bird, told the Masonic Gavel, "The governor's job is to serve the people of the state. Our budget is $1.2 billion, we have to do more with less, and we have to change things. You know, it's just not an easy job. It's tough to handle the issues when you're not there to understand and when you're not there to change things.

Two weeks ago Floyd was at the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona, conducting the recall ballot petitions in support of Proposition 86, the state's anti-pollution initiative. Floyd was in attendance at the rally against Imperial County's Kbushell. Farmers of all the people in support of the Proposition 86, but Floyd told the people that he was not there to defend his own interests. Floyd, who is a forty-six-year-old engineer and executive of a wholesale been company, responds to the criticisms by saying, "I heard some of the criticism. I understand it, and I plan to work on it today." Floyd, who is not a candidate for any political office, is also running for the state Senate in the 29th District. "I'm not sure what I'm going to say," Floyd said. "But it's going to be a good campaign."

Politics. Floyd's efforts to recall Bird have attracted more opponents than those who have run for political office. Numerous public officials, all of whom are in support of the Proposition 86, have written letters to the editor defending the campaign. Among them is San Diego Sheriff Steve Daily, who has been a strong supporter of the Proposition 86. "I've always been a strong supporter of Proposition 86," Daily said. "I think it's necessary to have a fair and balanced campaign."

There is still no time left for the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. Stopping the bus and stepping off at the first place we saw, we walked into the familiar sincerity spark in the air and saw the familiar familiar sincerity. The bus was packed, and the people inside were talking, laughing, and smiling. The air was warm, and the sun was shining. The day was perfect for a day of outdoor activities. We walked along the shoreline, admiring the scenery, and enjoying the view. The water was clear, the sky was blue, and the mountains were tall and majestic. It was a beautiful day, and we savored every moment of it. We continued walking, admiring the beauty of the mountains and the beauty of the people. The bus was full of people, and the atmosphere was lively and energetic. It was a perfect day to be out and about. We walked along the shoreline, admiring the scenery, and enjoying the view. THE READER PUZZLE

No. 177 Figures Of Speech

By Ben Mark

We've used the alphabet at the bottom of this week's puzzle for the first time. The clue is a play on words to make the puzzle more challenging. The letters are arranged in a specific sequence, like the links of a chain. You may find the terms on our instruction page on the last page.

Rules of the Game

1. Those for entering the Reader Puzzle will be Reader T-shirts.
2. All entries in the Reader Puzzle must be received by the Reader P.O. Box 834, San Diego, CA 92112 by 5 p.m., Friday, eight days following the issue date.
3. All entries must be accompanied by your name, address, and telephone number.
4. A copy of the Reader Puzzle is not required for entry, but all entries must be received before the deadline.
5. Each entry must be included on a separate sheet of paper and must be clearly marked with the Reader Puzzle name and number.
6. No entries containing obscene language or other indecent material will be accepted.
7. The names of the winners will be published in the Reader Puzzle.
8. All entries must be entered in the space allotted on the puzzle page. Any phone calls or visits to our office will not be accepted.
9. Only one entry per person.

Women's and Men's T-shirts to Reader Puzzle winners.

Women's and Men's T-shirts (which are actually a pair of sliding glass doors) will be awarded to the first three winners. The winner of the contest will receive a Reader Puzzle T-shirt in the same size as the winner's address. Any phone calls or visits to our office will not be accepted.
