FALL 1984

Gary Puckett and the Union Gap, 1987

Gary Puckett dreams of another strike

Fall 1984

Anthony's Barbershop is one of the few bars left in the Barbershop district along the San Diego Waterfront. It is Mitchell's favorite. He has all the familiar barbershop marks: the black and white tuxedo, the long hair, the beard, the mustache. He sits on the barstool at the left and puts his feet up on the counter. The bar is decorated with photographs of football players, movie stars, and other sports figures. The weather is mild, and the sun is shining. Anthony is a bit tipsy, but he is not drunk. He is just having a good time. He is talking to a couple of other customers, but he is not paying much attention to them. He is happy that he is not working and that he is not in the union. He is looking forward to another strike and another chance to be a part of the union.

Matthew Alice

Dear Matthew Alice:

How is it possible that I can read your name on this page and feel as though I am speaking directly to you? It is a remarkable experience, as if you have transported me into your world, where you share your thoughts and emotions with me, as if we are old friends catching up.

The reason I am writing to you is to express my gratitude for your words. Your writing is powerful and evocative, and it has touched me deeply. I feel as though I am seeing the world through your eyes, and I am grateful for the opportunity to experience it with you.

I have always been a fan of your work, and your latest piece is no exception. It is beautiful, and it resonates with me in a way that few things do. I feel as though I am a part of your world, and I am grateful for the opportunity to share in your experiences.

I hope you continue to write, and I look forward to reading your words in the future. Thank you for being a part of my life, even if only through your writing.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

ACROSS THE BRIDGE & INTO THE PAIN

RON REYNOLDS

I felt a strange urge to drink myself up inside while waiting for my train to arrive at Crosson High School’s Student Union. I was still waiting for my train to arrive, doing nothing but staring into space. The sight of the Student Union entrance was all I really cared about. I was sitting on a bench outside, staring into space. I was beginning to feel as though my entire existence would have been all too brief had I not seen the train arrive in the last gasp of its journey.

At last the doors swung open and a train whistle blared, the train hanging in the air, then the handbells chimed and the doors shut. I continued to stare into space, my mind blank and my body numb. What was I supposed to do now? Where was I supposed to go? I was standing outside the Student Union entrance, staring into space.

The train doors opened once again and I could see a crowd of people entering the Student Union. I could see them all, the train whistle blared once more, and the doors shut. The train was gone, leaving me standing outside, staring into space.

I walked over to the Student Union entrance and knocked on the door. There was no answer. I knocked again and still no answer. I tried the door handle and it was locked. I continued to stare into space, my mind blank and my body numb. What was I supposed to do now? Where was I supposed to go?

I continued to stand outside, staring into space. The train whistle blared once more, and the doors shut. The train was gone, leaving me standing outside, staring into space.

I continued to stare into space, my mind blank and my body numb. What was I supposed to do now? Where was I supposed to go?

Christo's "The Floating Piers," a large-scale environmental art installation, continues through April 16. The artwork consists of a series of floating walkways suspended over the water, creating a unique landscape experience.

"I Am Not a Human Being," an exhibition of photography by David Hockney, opens at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago, on March 26. The show features works from the artist's extensive career, including landscapes and portraits.

"The Art of the Americas," a comprehensive survey of American art from the pre-Columbian period to the present, is on view at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, through May 31.

"The Land That Time Forgot," a film adaptation of the novel by Edgar Rice Burroughs, is being shown at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, on March 20.

"The Last of Us," a video game set in a post-apocalyptic world, is being released by Sony Interactive Entertainment. The game explores themes of survival and human connection in a dystopian society.

"The Greatest Showman," a musical biography of P.T. Barnum and the creation of the Barnum & Bailey Circus, is being released by 20th Century Fox. The film features an all-star cast and a score by phosphorescent dreamweaver.

"The Shape of Water," a fantasy film directed by Guillermo del Toro, opens in theaters nationwide on March 24. The story follows a mute woman who falls in love with a fish-like creature and must rescue him from certain death.

SAN DIEGO'S BIGGEST FUTON SUPPLIER...

ALL COTTON FUTONS. Intricately Japan's premier bedding. We make ours with 100% cotton. Offered at high quality cotton bedding. We see fifty out rather than the usual thirty, and we offer it at a lower price.

The San Diego Futon is more compact and economical than the conventional futon. It's made of a unique blend of cotton and polyester. It's designed to be used as a bed, or as a couch, or as a sofa bed, or as a chair, or in any other way.

Rental Agency

FAMILIAR WITH THE THREE-FOLD DESIGN? By selecting the three-fold design, our sleeping bed has an outstanding design as well as practical looks for use as a regular bed when it's not being used as a futon. Also; firm, soft, and zippered cotton cover, of course.

...IS ALSO A WATERBED STORE!

Who wouldn't want to buy the same waterbed and use it as an extra bed? We promise to order the others, always.
