James Arthur Thomas is a San Diego institution. And he's done time in most of them. You don't see too many listings for his former line of work in the classifieds, though. Until his retirement three years ago, the seventy-five-year-old man was a bookie in this city for more than thirty years. He made book — and we aren't talking the leather bound variety here. He also had it thrown at him more times than he can remember.

There are certain things one expects to see when meeting up with a con- nected bookie. Art Thomas was not what one expected at all. When I approached him and politely asked if he had a minute to chat, he sized me up from across the street and then peered down the block down an alley from the door of Mission Beach. I inti- mated a shady character, always look- ing over his shoulder suspiciously, with the hard edge that comes from doing time in honest camps, prisons, and a stretch in a federal pen. Thomas has done all three — a total of seven years behind bars. Because he has spent half a lifetime in the San Diego underworld, I also figured on him wearing Hollywood's answer to the leather shanties pulled down over his eyes, the tappings of his trade a dark shirt and white necktie, maybe a cigarette dangling from his lips. He did not resemble much of that.

"Hey ya, dink!" The old man asked, with a wide, jowly-livered grin, as he shook my hand at the door and showed me to a seat in his cramped living room. "Come in an' have a seat. I don't know what ya want to hear. My family's legit," he said of his three brothers and sisters, "outside of me."

"I'm just an old broken-down bookie," he added. "No story — like 'local boy makes good,' or something. Ain't supposed to be situational or banal." He smoked one of those choker size cigarettes that don't cost a nickel.

"Come on, kid. You've got to work. I guess. I'd just get out of a job in those days," he said. "Work" means, though, I never made a whole lotta money. As you can see, I don't own no fancy home an' this place ain't what you'd call palatial."

Dear Mothers: This is a letter about your child. If you have a son or daughter who is ahockey player, it is important for you to understand the pressures that come withthis sport. As a parent, you play a crucial role in supporting your child and helpingthem to succeed in what they love. One way to do this is by providing them withthe necessary gear and equipment. This includes skates, a helmet, and protectivegear such as a mouthguard and chest protector. These items are essential forkeeping your child safe on the ice. Additionally, it is important to encourage yourchild to practice regularly and to get involved in youth hockey programs in your area. Thiswill help them to improve their skills and build confidence. As a parent, it is alsoimportant to be supportive and to provide your child with positive reinforcement. Thiswill help them to stay motivated and to develop a love for the game. Finally, you shouldencourage your child to seek out coaching and to work on their weaknesses. This will helpthem to become a better player and to reach their full potential. As a parent, you havethe power to make a positive impact on your child's hockey career. Thank you for yourattention to this matter.

He Used to Make Book

To supplement his social security check, Bill Slicker was a parking-enforcement officer at the Beach Area Community. He'd been there for over 10 years, about half a mile north of his apartment. Since he had his driver's license revoked, he got to work as a parking-enforcement officer, which greatly speeds up the process of ticketing and sending out notices. He'd go to the beach every day before he lost his license, and when he was ticketing, he'd find the officers were more likely to issue tickets, so he'd go another day before the beach area. The beach area was the main source of income for most of the officers. So when he lost his license, he had to sell his car to make ends meet.

According to Thomas, never before on the West Coast has a major stadium been developed on the Pacific coast - a major stadium being described as a multi-purpose stadium that could accommodate 50,000 spectators. The stadium would be located on the site of the former Santa Fe Train Station, which is now being developed as a new area of retail and entertainment. The stadium would feature state-of-the-art facilities and would serve as a venue for professional sports, concerts, and other events. It is estimated that the stadium would cost $500 million to build, and would be completed in 2022. The stadium would be used by the San Diego Chargers and the San Diego Padres, and would be the home base for both teams. The stadium would also serve as a venue for other events, such as music concerts and graduation ceremonies. The stadium would be designed by HOK, the same firm that designed the new NFL stadiums in Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

BUYERS BRING BEST OF PARIS HOME

It's not easy being a designer. Ask Gloria Tonino, a dynamic lady who has earned her reputation as one of Israel's most successful designers. She recently received a sumptuous gift from a friend in search of her new business. She is one of the most successful women in the business of fashion in the country. She is a woman who has been able to build her own business from scratch and has been able to create a unique niche for herself in the world of fashion.

She was a high school student in her teens, when she started designing clothes for her friends. She began by creating simple, yet elegant designs that were popular among her peers. She then started working for a small clothing company, where she was able to develop her skills and gain experience. She quickly rose to the top of the company, and was soon in charge of the design department.

Gloria then decided to strike out on her own and started her own design firm. She has been able to create a line of clothing that is both stylish and affordable, and has been able to attract a devoted following of customers.

When asked about her success, she says, "I think it's because I have a passion for what I do. I love to design, and I love to see people wear my clothes. It gives me a great sense of satisfaction to know that I have created something that people appreciate and enjoy."}

SNEAK PREVIEW

Kip Keating is watching his days as a rock hero, but now he has a new career. He is the founder of the new magazine "Hollywood Rocks," which focuses on the music and lifestyle of the Hollywood scene. Kip has always been interested in the music industry, and he decided to use his passion to create a new publication that would cover all aspects of the industry.

Kip's magazine is a mix of interviews, reviews, and features on the latest music trends. It aims to provide an inside look at the lives of the celebrities, as well as the people behind the scenes.

When asked about his motivations, Kip says, "I wanted to create a publication that would give people a chance to really get to know the people they love. I wanted to show the human side of the entertainment industry, and I think that's what people want to see."

Kip's magazine has already gained a following, and he is proud of the response he has received. He hopes that his magazine will continue to grow and become a major player in the industry.

We can all thank Kip Keating for bringing a new voice to the music industry. His magazine is a testament to his passion and dedication, and we are excited to see what the future holds for "Hollywood Rocks."

His concern is that the service may not be as popular as he had hoped.

One way of getting around the service, of course, is to go to the track yourself. Thomason says officials at Del

That's why Thomason moved his 1957, the year I was born, really put the stuff on "make," Thomas, and they scattered the downtown bookmakers. Some bought new cars in town, many went to Cabaret, and others continued to take at the gambling den.

I’m not talking about the bookies. I’m talking about the ones who set up shop in the back of the store, or the ones who worked on the street.

George Goodman bought a cabin in Houston and sold it for $500,000 while cracks were being driven into the street. He sold it off and said he was going to the South Pacific. His name is now on the list of the rich men of America.

Thomas Hardy bought a small cottage on the beach near Oxford. He sold it for $25,000 and moved to the South Pacific. His name is now on the list of the rich men of America.

Where Will You Be When the BIG ONE Hits?

JEANETTE DE WYZE

David Rogers has decided he’s had enough of his beach shack. He’s thought of all the people who could use a place like his—those who rent for vacation or live in a small house—none of whom have ever thought of him as their neighbor. And he’s decided that the best protection against such a horror is to make sure his neighbors don’t know about his activity.

So, late last month, he and some buddies scoured the area for a place to build them a beach shack. They settled on a beautiful piece of land in the southeast part of the county, near the mouth of Bayou Lake. Their house is located almost exactly where the mouth of Bayou Lake flows into Bayou Lake. They have a little house there, and they’ve almost finished building it. They figure it will be ready for use in about two weeks. The structure will be made of wood and will be about 1,500 square feet. The beach shack will be on stilts.

They figure that the house will be completed in a few weeks. They’ll be able to rent it for about $200 a week.

The Silva Method

In 40 hours you can learn to use your mind to do almost anything you wish.

It is true that the Silva Method can do the impossible.
E.g., you can predict the future or read minds or create physical objects. It can also improve your memory, concentration, creativity, and problem-solving skills. It is a psychological technique that teaches you how to control your mind and use it to its fullest potential.

THE READER PUZZLE

No 185 Sign Language

By Dave Rollyn

In this puzzle, the second clue is based on instructions to the listener and the answers are given in the form of sign language. A variety of signers, both professional and amateur, are used to represent directions to the listener. The instructions include numbers, objects, and actions, and the answers must be given in a specific sequence. The puzzle is designed to test the listener's ability to follow complex instructions and interpret sign language. The order of the signs is critical, and the answers are given in the exact sequence as the instructions are given, starting from the top left and ending at the bottom right. The puzzle is challenging and requires careful attention to detail.

Rules of the Game

1. Players for solving the Reader Puzzle will be awarded $1 each.
2. All entries must be submitted to the Reader Puzzle Editor, Reader Puzzle, P.O. Box 111, Mission Hills, CA 91332, by 4:00 p.m. daily. The winner is determined by the number of correct entries received. The puzzle is open to residents of the Greater Los Angeles Metropolitan areas.
