I'M GLAD YOU ASKED ME THAT QUESTION

Ludwig Van Mies, the late American architect and designer of influential buildings, often refused to answer the Reader's questions. He was convinced it was pointless to engage in the public's interest in his work. But occasionally, he would share his thoughts with us. In this article, Mies reflects on the nature of art, architecture, and the role of the artist in society.

It took a long time to get Fred Schnaubelt to talk. Now you can't get him to stop.

Last week, on December 14, the San Diego-based, international consulting firm of Air Force was selected to carry out a $30 million project to design and build the Nevada Test Site's new Experimental Test Range (ETR). The project, which is expected to take about two years to complete, will replace the current ETR, which has been in operation since 1960.

The ETR is a 500-acre site located in the Nevada desert, and it is one of the most important facilities in the world for testing new military weapons systems. The new ETR will feature advanced technology and increased safety measures, making it a state-of-the-art facility.

The project is expected to create about 1,000 jobs during construction, and it will provide a boost to the local economy. The new ETR will also serve as a training ground for future military personnel, ensuring they are prepared for the challenges they will face in the field.

The project is being funded by the Department of Defense, and it is a testament to the importance of the Nevada Test Site in the national security landscape. The new ETR will help ensure that our military remains at the forefront of technology, and it will be a source of pride for the state of Nevada.

Lonnie Page is a well known entertainer in the Southwest, a favorite at Louie's Hoppy Gnome, Los Angeles. His music and dance are combined with a lively display of the various musical pieces performed on the dance floor. Wednesday through Saturday, Friday and Saturday, Lonnie Page is available to entertain you. Accompanying the Lonnie Page show at Macho's, is his trusty dance partner, "Rumble" the Rhythm Dog. "Rumble" is a real show-stopper with his acrobatic displays. Thursdays and Sundays are "Lonnie's Days of Discovery."
