Did Angel Just Kill It?

The loud Guardian Angels patrol near the bus stop outside of her house every night. The noise and the people on the street make her feel uncomfortable. She says she is tired of the constant noise and the people walking around her property. She has tried to talk to the people on the street, but they don't listen to her. She feels like she is living in a prison.

Two Sides To Every Pill

By Terry Pecunick

The last time I visited my doctor I had a funny feeling. The nurse said, "You know, Terry, you look thin. Maybe you should try a pill." I smiled and said, "I already do." Then I asked her if she knew about the new pill that helps you lose weight. She said, "Yes, it's called "Pills.""

Matthew Alice

Dear Matthew Alice,

If there's one thing we Americans enjoy doing, it's recovering from a stressful week by going on a vacation. If you live in California as I do, you know that the state is blessed with a variety of scenic spots. One such spot is the city of San Diego, which is located on the southernmost tip of the state and is known for its beautiful beaches and mild climate.

But when I go to such idyllic corners of the country like Coronado or Point Loma, I'm always able, mostly because I don't know what else to do, to find myself thinking about the traffic. I'm currently living in a very busy area of town where I can't help but notice the amount of traffic, especially during rush hour. It's not uncommon for me to be stuck in traffic for hours, which is something I definitely don't enjoy.

I've always been fascinated by the way people navigate through busy streets, and I've noticed that in some cases, the traffic can be quite chaotic. It seems like everyone is trying to get somewhere, and there's no real sense of order. I've also noticed that the traffic lights can be quite frustrating, as they often seem to be changing at random, which can lead to confusion and delays.

I wonder if you've ever noticed this before, or if you have any tips on how to deal with such situations. Do you have any advice for navigating through busy streets and avoiding traffic congestion? I'd love to hear your thoughts on this topic.

Best regards,

Lori

Dear Lori,

I totally understand your frustration with traffic in San Diego. The city is known for its traffic, especially during rush hour. However, there are a few things you can do to help alleviate the situation.

Firstly, try to avoid driving during peak hours. Rush hour begins around 7:00 a.m. and ends around 9:00 a.m., and from 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. On weekdays, you may want to consider taking public transportation or carpooling to reduce the number of cars on the road. Additionally, using GPS or Waze can help you avoid traffic congestion and find alternative routes.

Secondly, consider changing your work schedule if possible. If you have the flexibility, try to adjust your schedule so that you avoid the peak hours.

I hope these tips are helpful. If you have any other questions or concerns, feel free to reach out to me.

Best, Matthew Alice

Joseph Jaques, the owner of Coggleshall, a fine jewelry store, recently sold the business to an investor. "He bought real estate, 40 years ago, and kept on buying when it looked like you couldn't sell the stock. He was a man of a lot of vision, but buying the in the path of progress."

Maurice Bennett, a veteran jeweler, advocates the trend. "Sometimes you see it creeping in, like you can't compete against 18 karat. He, who was rumored to be a 'jewelry whisperer,' had purchased Coggleshall's finest jewels, but Bennett would go on to re-establish the store's dominance in the community. Their most recent acquisition, a $1 million diamond, was meant to be the centerpiece of this year's Christmas sale. "It's been a tough year for everyone," Bennett said. "But we're not giving up. We're going to keep going and make sure everyone knows that Coggleshall is still here to serve you."

Coggshall's great friend, even his skid. Bertzoff advanced from bank teller to assistant manager and chairman of the board of the First National Bank.

"I never knew that I was going to be the first person to buy a car," says Coggshall, who purchased his first car, a 1955 Buick, from his friend, explaining that it was a loan from everyone.

"You could ask a lot of people on the street," according to Joseph King, who knew Mr. Bertzoff and would know Mr. Coggshall. "Coggshall is not much interested in any of the things of the world, and for living too well, but he doesn't know what he should do." -

"I wanted to buy a bookkeeper," he says, "it's my world, I'm able to afford to live in the world, and that's what I've done. I bought all over Europe, Africa, South Africa, Italy, France and the Philippines. I've wanted to go to China next, my mother was a doctor in the city and she was a great one. She was just a little bit tired of my way of living, so I asked her to give me her bookkeeper. She taught bookkeeping. I'm doing it because I want to learn to do it. She taught me all the things in the world. I've been doing it for a long time, and I want to go back to where I was. I'm doing it because I want to learn to do it. She taught me all the things in the world.

Coggshall is a man of many interests. He enjoys reading, traveling, and car collecting. He's also an avid collector of antique cars, and has several in his garage.
THE TRAIN THEY CALL THE BULLET

Well, Laurence Gilson calls it a bullet. To others, it may be an uncivilized missile.

By Lionel Rolfe

The experts believe fatality rates are very low. If you consider a fatality rate of 1 in 100,000,000 is a very low number. So, the question is, how many people would be affected by the bullet train?

But let's look at the numbers. The bullet train is already in operation in Japan, France, and Germany. In Japan alone, there are over 100,000 bullet trains in service. This means that millions of people ride the bullet train every day. So, the number of people affected by the fatality rate of 1 in 100,000,000 is still very low.

However, the bullet train has its critics. Some people argue that the high speeds and lack of stops make it dangerous. Others worry about the environmental impact of the high-speed train, such as noise pollution and land use. But despite these concerns, the bullet train remains a popular mode of transportation in many countries.

In So Many Words

The current production at the Balboa Pk. theatre is semi-comic, semi-serious and quite an experience. The Balboa Pk. is one of the few theatres in the city where the audience can actually see the performers on stage. The performers are situated on a platform that is visible from all angles, and the audience is seated on risers that surround the stage. This setup allows for a more intimate connection between the performers and the audience. The performers are quite talented, and their acting is both funny and touching.
The dialogue is well-written, and the characters are well-rounded.
Overall, it is a delightful experience that I would highly recommend.

Several times a year I receive a flyer that you can mail to a friend and ask them about the most recent music shows in the area. Then I listen to a recording from either a visitor who recently enjoyed the show or a local who attended the concert. It is always interesting to hear about the different types of music and the performers who are currently on tour. Last weekend, I was asked to come and listen to a concert at the Stargazer's Restaurant and I was more than happy to accept the invitation.

The restaurant is located in the Harbor Island Inn, which is situated in the heart of the city. The restaurant has a cozy atmosphere and the music is played by local musicians. I was impressed by the quality of the food and the service. The chef is very skilled and he prepares dishes that are both delicious and satisfying. The meal was accompanied by a selection of wines that complemented the dishes perfectly.

The service was excellent and the waiters were very attentive. They were able to answer all of my questions and make recommendations based on my preferences. The atmosphere was welcoming and the music added to the overall experience. I would highly recommend Stargazer's Restaurant to anyone who is looking for a great meal and some live music.

In conclusion, I thoroughly enjoyed my evening at Stargazer's Restaurant. The food was excellent, the service was attentive, and the atmosphere was welcoming. I would highly recommend this restaurant to anyone who is looking for a great meal and some live music. I will definitely be returning in the future.
Make Room for Wagner

Last month, the wealthy heir to the estate of the late James J. Keene, noted art collector, announced plans to erect a unique art gallery and museum in his former mansion on the Avenue."I think it's a great idea," commented the chairwoman of the local arts council, "and I hope they can make it happen." But few people knew that Keene himself had never been interested in art. He was more interested in the estate he inherited, which included a collection of rare books and manuscripts, as well as a large number of antiques and paintings.

The gallery will be located in the old mansion, which was once the home of a prominent family. The building is currently being renovated to accommodate the museum's needs. The museum will feature a wide range of exhibits, including works by some of the most well-known artists in the world.
