"Only one person knows how your new radio station should sound: You."

There’s a new and different kind of radio station that you should know about: KLZZ 106.5, San Diego’s Class FM.

And it’s different because we’re doing something for you that no other San Diego radio station has ever done.

We’re asking you to help us create your own “perfect” radio station, by telling us exactly what you want to hear. And when you want to hear it.

So tune in 106.5 San Diego’s Class FM right now and you won’t hear any DJs. Or news. Or sports. Not even the weather. Only what you call in and suggest.

After all, the only one who knows what you really want to hear on the radio is you. Right?

That’s why we made 106.5 your place on the FM dial. So give KLZZ, San Diego’s Class FM, a try. Just tune in, then phone us with your suggestions.

And you’ll be helping to create the new, better radio station you’re listening for.

Your radio station.

In communications between the United States and its allies, the use of telephones could be a crucial tool. However, the growing use of computers and the internet has made such communications more challenging. This article discusses the role of telecommunications in international relations.

But Can They Make It Stick?

The French were originally skeptical of the new technology, but they eventually came to accept it. The United States, on the other hand, was much more hesitant. The British were even more cautious, fearing that they might be vulnerable to espionage. However, as the technology continued to evolve, the governments of the world began to see its potential.

Vice Never Stops

Drug dealers in Los Angeles are ruthless and cunning. They will do anything to stay in business, including killing their competitors. This article explores the world of drug trafficking and the tactics used by the Los Angeles Police Department to combat it.

The Whole Kit And Kaboodle

Superior Court Judge Larry Kaye was appointed to the bench by the governor. He was known for his conservative views and his strong opposition to civil rights legislation.

However, there are those who remain skeptical of the new technology. They believe that it is too risky and that the benefits do not outweigh the potential drawbacks. The government must therefore carefully consider the risks and benefits before making a decision.

Straight from the Hip

Matthew Alice

Dear Readers,

I am often asked why some people say things that are not true. It is because there are those who deliberately spread false information to mislead others. This phenomenon is known as disinformation, and it can have serious consequences. It is important to be cautious and fact-check information before believing it.

Yours truly,
Matthew Alice

Gardener's Art

In the soil. The breaking-up of that several-day's-sap-length 8 "spit" in what old-time gardeners call the apply
of the straw or spade handle of soil produces a horse, fruitful texture (\"heafs\") that enhances the growth of root, straight temperate carrots, parsnips,
the roots of the parsnip, the pot, the sweet potato, \"potato\", a delicious yellow season for cabbages and one. The double-decking process in which cherries was supervised twice a year (spring and fall) by his grand mother makes every garden task subsequently easier having rows, mounding
the, Luxurious, weeding. It also permits the gardener to add the amendments and nutrients needed for the clovecovering technique called French intensive gardening, the 400-year-old method at its peak in the market gardens surrounding Paris, and even
by an increasing number of U.S.
suburbs and other gardeners.

The summer noon are as, or even more, important than the growing above ground. Planting and re-fertilizing
the well-tilled soil from which roots take their nourishment makes that process, and subsequent flowers and fruit, flourish. The what \"fruit\" process is sometimes called the noah's, of dressing well-tined rhododendrons outside months in a year in weather temper the heat in masses.
On finish, or amending, and ream-will \"bark\" and rooted hay, I'm still all for it. Begged chemical fertilizers all work and are more convenient and often less expensive than the real stuff.
Directions on commercial fertilizers must be followed to the letter, and the ecological ramifications are now well known.

As the house shows from Mrs.
Par risk loved Mr. Downer, who had been a grammar school geography teacher.
As the other end of the block were the Birches. Bud and Ellen, who with their two owned half-interest in the nearby room-and-pig corner store whose Bud Birch worked every morning and all day Sunday. Bud had \"sugar pickers,\" and gangrene had one bit his right leg. He'd fought in World War I another. She \"fixed up\" before he came back from the war at noon,
covered her yellow-white pineapple
into a half and sparkling bellagold behind her corsette. She was a very bustily woman, square in the shoulders and broad across the bosom, who took in after the war and began to work in the city, first as a saleslady, then as a double A-foot \"Bud always had admired my feet,\" she told me.

Mr. Downer, the former geography teacher, was \"tame-spirited.\" Mrs.
Par risk warned me. He watched the radio,
TV, and newspapers, he scanned U.S.
News and World Report, and when he walked the alley and visited with neighbors, dressed in the old blue or gray suits in which he had studied geography. He always brought predictions of storms that would important to some. Then, the war with the Communists, or new inflatmates and suits.

But he did have the finest superman hat anyone on the block could remember. In spring and fall he applied to it a high-strength fertilizer he comounded from pig dung. Every year one of his former students, now a pig farmer, brought him a half-dozen \"the best.\"

gardener's

we're scaling back with the season's dreg. We've all lived through those summer months when you went to the beach, it was hot, and the kids were driving you crazy. Now that the weather is finally nice, we can all sit back and enjoy the outdoors. But we've also been through those July and August heat waves when the air was thick with humidity and the temperature was soaring. It's no wonder we're all looking for ways to escape the heat and enjoy some time outdoors in the cooler months. That's where Gardener's comes in. We offer a range of services to help you enjoy the outdoors, no matter the weather.

One of the services we offer is a lawn care package. We use organic fertilizers and weed controls to keep your lawn healthy and green. We also offer pest control services to keep your yard free of insects and other pests. Our team of professionals is dedicated to providing you with the best possible results, no matter the weather. We understand that maintaining a healthy lawn can be a challenge, especially during the hot months of summer. That's why we offer a range of services to help you keep your lawn in tip-top shape, no matter the weather.

Another service we offer is our garden design and installation. We can help you create a beautiful, functional outdoor space that you can enjoy all year round. We offer a range of design options to suit your needs and budget, from a simple flower bed to a full-blown garden. Our team of designers and landscapers will work with you to create a space that you can enjoy for years to come.

We also offer a range of minor surgery services, including liposuction, varicose vein treatment, and hernia repairs. Our team of surgeons is experienced in performing these procedures, and we use the latest technology to ensure the best possible results. We also offer a range of other services, including breast surgery, liposuction, and circumcision.

Our goal is to make it easy for you to enjoy the outdoors, no matter the weather. Whether you're looking for a little relaxation or a full-blown outdoor space, we've got you covered. Contact us today to learn more about our services and how we can help you enjoy the outdoors, no matter the weather.
The end of July, dopo would become a concern in the garden. It's by far the worst of the few pests that indicated earlier this spring, and the white cabbage butterflies. Coming up in the parsley, it's a winter pest for the garden, and now it's time to get it under control. We need to be much more vigilant in treating the plants, especially in the mornings and evenings, when the butterflies are most active.

Next, I need to spray the brassica plants with a soap spray to deter the pest. I'll use a solution of liquid soap and water, applying it to the plants every few days. This will help to reduce the number of butterflies in the garden and protect the plants from damage.

As for the cabbage, I need to cut off any infected leaves and dispose of them to prevent the spread of the disease. I'll also check the garden for any signs of damping off, a common fungal disease in seedlings, and treat any affected plants with a fungicide.

Thanksgiving, when they were sweetest. They scared me to open tomatoes in squares and with a cloth. You can still enjoy the tomatoes without getting them wet. Try using a damp cloth to pat the tomatoes dry before cutting them open. This will help to keep the skin from peeling off and the tomatoes from getting soggy.

I never found any cure—
chemical, political, psychiatric, interpersonal, spiritual—quite like the one that washed over me when I put my spade into soil every spring.

City Lights

I was the medical secretary for a local doctor in private practice and lived in the row-house community that surrounded his office. I knew that our community was a rough one and that people were often-addicted to drugs. I was also aware of the drugs that were being used, but I never thought about how they could affect my daily life. One day, a new patient arrived at the doctor's office, looking tired and pale. I soon discovered that she was pregnant and that she was an addict. I was shocked and didn't know what to do. I suggested she go to a rehab center, but she refused. I finally told her that I could refer her to a clinic that could help her, but she still refused. After a few days, I realized that I couldn't continue to see her as a patient. I resigned from the doctor's office and went to work for a different doctor. I still think about that patient occasionally and wonder if she got the help she needed.
THAT SINKING FEELING

Marine salvage has its ups and downs

By Gordon Smith

The marine salvor: a specialist in turning the tide of disaster, performing the impossible, salvaging the un-salvageable. The salvor is a master of the art of resurrection, bringing ships back from the brink of destruction. In the world of marine salvage, every day is a challenge, a test of skill and courage. The salvor must be able to think on their feet, make quick decisions, and act with speed and precision.

The salvor is often called upon to save ships caught in the grip of the elements, to recover sunken treasure, or to clean up oil spills that threaten the environment. It is a dangerous and demanding job, but for those who choose it, it can be incredibly rewarding.

One such salvor is Jacky Jacky, a man who has spent his life at sea, and who has saved ships from the brink of destruction. Jacky has seen it all, from the calmest of seas to the roughest storms, and he has salvaged ships in every condition.

One day, Jacky was called upon to save a ship that was caught in a storm on the open sea. The ship was taking on water, and there was a strong possibility that it would sink. Jacky knew that he had to act fast, and he set out to save the ship.

Jacky arrived on the scene with his team, and they began to work. They pumped water out of the ship, and they used all of their skills to prevent the ship from sinking. It was a challenging task, but Jacky and his team were able to save the ship.

As the sun set that day, Jacky looked out over the ocean, and he knew that he had done his job. He had saved a ship from the brink of destruction, and he had given it a chance to continue sailing.

The salvor is a man with a special talent, a man who is able to think on their feet and act with quickness. Jacky Jacky is one such salvor, and he is a true hero of the sea.
Marine salvage has its ups and downs

By Gordon Smith

The mariner's job can be very tough. It's a job that requires skill, strength, and determination. And sometimes, it can be just plain dangerous. But despite these challenges, there is a certain feeling that comes with working in the marine salvage field. It's a feeling of pride in accomplishing a task and a sense of camaraderie with fellow seafarers.

Admiral John F. Kennedy once said, "It is not the final drive that determines a man, but that which he does with it. It is not the last obstacle that counts, but how he overcomes it. It is not the last drop that makes a success, but the first step that leads to it. It is not the last step that shows how far we have come, but the first step that shows how far we can go. It is not the last word that counts, but the first word that matters. It is not the last act that shows how far we have succeeded, but the first act that shows how far we can succeed. It is not the last breath that determines a man, but that which he does with it.

So, when you're on a salvage job, it's important to remember that there are ups and downs. Sometimes you'll have a smooth ride, and other times you'll face challenges. But regardless of the situation, it's important to stay focused and determined.

One of the most challenging aspects of a salvage operation is dealing with unexpected situations. A storm, a sudden change in the weather, or a mechanical failure can all derail even the best-laid plans. But with a strong team and a well-prepared plan, these challenges can be overcome.

Another aspect of the salvage job is the sense of accomplishment that comes with bringing a vessel back to life. Whether it's a shipwrecked vessel or a vessel that has been damaged in a collision, the feeling of pride in restoring it is palpable. The hard work and determination that went into getting it back on the water is a true testament to the people who work in this field.

Of course, there are also risks involved in the marine salvage field. Accidents can happen, and sometimes they can be deadly. But despite these risks, there is a sense of pride in knowing that you're helping to keep the oceans safe and accessible.

In the end, the marine salvage job is one that requires a lot of skill, strength, and determination. But despite the challenges, there is a certain feeling of pride and accomplishment that comes with being a part of this field. It's a job that requires a unique blend of technical knowledge and physical strength, and it's a job that is truly one of a kind.

So, if you're thinking about a career in marine salvage, remember that there are ups and downs. But with a strong team and a well-prepared plan, you can overcome any challenge and bring a vessel back to life. It's a job that requires a lot of hard work and determination, but the sense of accomplishment that comes with it is truly worth it.
The Band Stands

JUNE IN ADEN

It was an agonizing time. Standing in the darkness of the Bodeh Club, night after night, I began to feel as though the Band's record had been released. It was the most exciting thing that had happened in a long time. The music was moving me and I was moved by it. The Band's music was like a shining light in the darkness. It was a beacon of hope and a source of inspiration.

On one particular night, I found myself in the middle of the crowd, dancing to the rhythm of the music. I was lost in the moment and I didn't want it to end. Suddenly, I heard a voice come from above me. It was a woman's voice, and she was singing a song. I looked up and saw a woman standing on the stage, her eyes closed and her voice filled with emotion. It was the most beautiful thing I had ever heard.

The Band's music was like a shining light in the darkness. It was a beacon of hope and a source of inspiration.
Sleepy Joe

Jeffrey Miles

Sleepy Joe, the oddball, is based on the notion that people need sleep in order to function properly. Joe's character is derived from a mix of various archetypes, including the clown, the misfit, and the Everyman. His sleeplessness is not a sign of weakness or vulnerability, but rather a symbol of the human condition. Joe's struggle to find rest is a reflection of the universal need for sleep and the various obstacles we face in achieving it. Through Joe's adventures, the film explores themes of identity, existence, and the human experience. Joe's journey is a journey of self-discovery, as he learns to accept himself and the world around him. The film also touches on the importance of community and the role of art in expressing the human condition.

"A Personal Note..."

I would like to extend my deepest appreciation to each and every one of you who has contributed so generously to the success of the 1993-94 season. Our commitment to providing the finest symphonic and chamber musical performances in San Diego is a reflection of your support and dedication. It is this dedication that allows us to give you the best. The Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra is your orchestra.

THE READER PUZZLE

No. 296, Out Of Order

By: Bob Rabbits

The puzzle is consists of a grid of 16 squares, one of which is the answer. We'd like you to give the correct number in order of sequence. This is the only way to give things back to us. Moving the puzzle is not possible, so get a copy of the puzzle and use it for guidance. Each puzzle may require varying amounts. And when your is Yes, it means "hence," or because of the previous ones. Some places the numbers have been altered in order to show...

Rules of the Game:
1. Puzzles for submitting the Reader Puzzle will be accompanied by your name, address, and phone number.
2. Employees of the Reader and their immediate families are not eligible.
3. Submissions must be accompanied by your name, address, and phone number.
4. The winner will be decided by the Reader's Puzzles Committee. Each puzzle is judged on its difficulty and creativity.
