WHERE DEMONS THRIVE

What is it about the desert that brings out the worst in even the best of people?

Princess Hasn't The Vegas Idea

High-stakes gambling should be confined to the Golden Triangle, a part of Las Vegas that has long been known for its vibrant nightlife and high-end casinos. The idea of turning the entire city into a gambling mecca goes against the fabric of our community.

City Lights

Give Us A Sign

Three San Diego officials have been approached with a dream of turning the city into a gambling mecca. Mayor Bob Filner, City Councilman Steve水肿, and City Councilwoman Mary Wagner have all been approached with the idea. Mayor Filner has said that he is not in favor of the proposal, but Councilman水肿 and City Councilwoman Wagner have expressed interest.

Your Credit Race

There's a new credit card game in town called the Credit Race. The game is simple: players try to rack up as much credit card debt as possible in order to win. The game has been criticized for encouraging reckless spending.

Erosion Matter Eats Away At La Jolla

La Jolla is under threat from a new erosion problem. The bay's cliffs are eroding at a alarming rate, and the city is struggling to find a solution.

City Lights

Iowa's 1988's Story

In 1988, Iowa's 1988 was a surprise candidate for the presidency. He campaigned on a platform of fiscal responsibility and economic growth. Although he eventually lost the nomination to Michael Dukakis, his campaign raised awareness about the state of the economy.

Dawson Cuts Off Roots

Dawson's decision to cut off his hair has been met with mixed reactions. Some have praised his decision, while others have criticized him.

Ms. Money Hasn't The Vegas Idea

Ms. Money, a Las Vegas resident, has spoken out against the idea of turning the city into a gambling mecca. She believes that it would be detrimental to the city's economy and culture.

WHERE DEMONS THRIVE

The reclusive milieu had seen Michael around town several times, buying groceries and filling gas on the north side of the county. He was a town legend, a man of mystery. But his presence was felt more so in the evenings, when he would emerge from his apartment on the second floor, a woman in tow. She would dance on the balcony, sometimes in the moonlight, sometimes in the darkness. It was as if she was trying to reach out to the world, to connect with something, anything. Michael would stand at the edge of the balcony, watching her, his eyes alight with a strange, almost intense light. He would take her hand, lead her to the edge, and as they stood there, the woman would begin to spin. Faster and faster, until she was almost airborne. Then she would fall, into Michael's arms. The woman was unhurt, but Michael was elated. He had found his partner, his other half. They would spend the rest of the night together, dancing and singing, until the sun rose and they had to go back to their separate worlds.

Here lies one of those rare moments in time when the world slows down and you're reminded of what truly matters. Michael and the woman... they were a perfect match. And yet, there was something... something special, something otherworldly... something that made them stand out from the rest of humanity. It was as if they were connected to a higher power, to some unknown force that drove them on. They would be together until the end, and when they were, it would be as if they had found their true place in the universe, their true purpose.

The night passed in a blur, and the sun began to rise. Michael and the woman went back to their separate worlds, but the memory of their dance would stay with them forever. They would always remember that moment, that moment when the world stood still and they were the only ones who mattered. And in that moment, they were one.

Bill Vermont, who has been chief ranger at the BLM’s Castano office since 1972, says: "Nothing people do here could ever amount to a natural disaster. These are not the people who are responsible. The problem is the desire to have it all and the lifestyle that goes with it." Vermont, who is a veteran of the BLM’s Castano office, says: "People are always looking for something to do. If you go to a city, they have places to go. The desert doesn’t have that."

The BLM manages nearly 200 million acres of land in the United States, and its responsibilities include managing natural resources, protecting wilderness areas, and ensuring public safety. The BLM has been in existence since 1940, and its primary mission is to conserve the natural resources of the public lands and make them available to the public for use and enjoyment.

Some say that the professional collector who owns a jeep is well aware of the natural and man-made hazards that exist. They are often seen driving through the desert, where they can escape the city, and the rangers have favorite

The rangers say industrial dumping is increasing too. "One company has been dumping a large quantity of industrial waste in the desert," one ranger says. "The pollution is becoming a problem." Others say that the rangers are doing a good job of enforcing laws against dumping, but that more needs to be done.

"The rangers are doing a good job," says one resident. "But we need more laws and better enforcement." The rangers agree but say that they need more help from the public.

The desert is a refuge for many species, including the endangered desert tortoise. But the rangers say that illegal dumping is threatening the survival of these animals. They are working with lawyers and environmental groups to try to stop the dumping.

"We are doing everything we can," says a ranger. "But it's a difficult job."

Play On Conventions

JEFF SMITH

The event: a political convention is being held. The site is the Astor Hotel in New York City. The convention is being attended by thousands of attendees from across the country. The convention is taking place in the Astor Ballroom, which has a capacity of 2,000 people. The event is being broadcast live on television and radio. The attendees are divided into several groups, each with their own interests and agendas.
Play On Conventions

If you're a political conventionalist or a theater aficionado, you may want to consider attending the following events:

1. The 50th annual National Conference of State Legislatures, which will be held in August in Las Vegas. This conference is a great opportunity to network with other politicians and learn about the latest trends in state legislation.

2. The annual National Black Theater Festival, which will be held in January in New York City. This festival is a great opportunity to see new and innovative plays by African American playwrights.

3. The annual International Film Festival, which will be held in May in Toronto, Canada. This festival is a great opportunity to see the latest independent films from around the world.

If you're interested in attending any of these events, be sure to check out the official websites for more information on how to register and what to expect.

For more information on upcoming events, visit our website at www.officialwebsite.com/events.
This is a difficult kind of event," says Bakley, "something would make the audience, if I say what my feelings are, make the audience feel good about themselves, and they'd go home happy. The people we are trying to convince are all those who are the audience who have to follow the shows. The more that they respond for the shows, the more we can get it to happen.

Figures and figures are politically neutral in the two performances I have been in the audience because they are not in the audience that is going to be before you. When someone says something, even if it were negative, people would understand. If you are not a politician, you can say things and things will not happen.

Each of the presidential candidates must perform in the same manner as different. The audience must be convinced that the White House candidate can handle the job. As a politician, they cannot be too much. They cannot be too much like a politician. When we see the TV shows, we see people who are not politicians.

Water Lagoon. Once the show is over, it can't be so it's the play and we can't change it.

A tune or two with Tijuana's roving minstrels

By Bob Owens

Locally-based artist, David Rogers, calls Tijuana his home and is one of the many residents who enjoy the city's vibrant music scene. Rogers has been playing local venues for over a decade and has become a fixture on the Tijuana music scene. He recently performed at the popular El Madero Bar, where he captivated the audience with his soulful voice and dynamic stage presence.

Rogers' music is a blend of traditional Mexican ranchera and modern pop, and he is known for his ability to connect with his audience through his powerful lyrics and engaging performances. His music has a universal appeal that transcends cultural barriers, making him a favorite among locals and tourists alike.

In addition to his solo performances, Rogers also fronts a band called La Banda del Sol, which has gained a devoted following over the years. The band's sound is characterized by a mix of traditional instrumentation and modern elements, creating a unique musical hybrid that keeps audiences on the edge of their seats.

When not performing, Rogers can be found at his home studio, where he is constantly exploring new musical directions and pushing the boundaries of his craft. He is always looking for ways to connect with his audience and share his love of music.

With his passion and dedication, Rogers is helping to keep Tijuana's music scene thriving and ensuring that the city's rich cultural heritage remains alive and well.

A tune or two with Tijuana's roving minstrels

Finally, a Chrysler station wagon turned the corner and the driver rolled down the window. None of the Qenieers moved quickly enough, the leader of one of the other groups attached himself to the door of the vehicle and began the negotiations. It was clear a brand-new Jaguar, and the negotiations didn't take very long. The two men knew exactly what the other wanted, and a few minutes later the deal was sealed. The Qenieer's Jaguar was paid for, and he was on his way to his next performance.

It's amazing how quickly things can change. Just a few minutes ago, they were standing in the street, waiting for their next gig. Now, they've got a job and they're on their way to it. It's not just the money that matters, though. It's the fact that they're working, that they're able to provide for themselves and their families. That's what it's all about. Money is important, sure, but it's not the only thing. It's the sense of accomplishment, the feeling of being able to support themselves and their families. That's what makes it all worthwhile. It's not just about the money. It's about the experience, the people you meet, the places you go. It's about the music, and the joy it brings. And that's what it's all about. That's what makes it all worthwhile.

A Bad Trip

JONATHAN SARLIE

"I always look forward to my trip to South Coast Repertory in Costa Mesa, both for the personal enrichment of the theater and for the pleasure of being among other theater enthusiasts. Going on a Saturday night, I can see how they keep their productions on the same day of the week as the Mountain and the other area theaters that share the same audience. The production quality is good — absolutely fantastic! I've been here many times and the productions have always been high-quality. On occasion, I have been able to see and share disappointments at the others. Last weekend was my first visit to theSCR'sA Christmas Carol. The performance was outstanding, and I am looking forward to returning in the future. TheSCR'sA Christmas Carol is a memorable experience, and I am sure many other people will enjoy it."

Moved By Piece On Moving

Linda A. Robertsdale, in "Mov- ing," April 13, said she could not move. "Everything, every- thing, is the same."

I, too, have moved, and I know what she means. I can see her point of view, and I understand the feeling of being stuck in one place for a long time.

However, I believe that moving can have a positive impact on one's life. It can offer new opportunities, new experiences, and new perspectives.

Ex-Puppy Has
New Pet Project

David O. Johnson, in "Ex-Puppy," April 13, talks about his childhood experience with a dog named "Fatso." I, too, experienced similar emotions
when I was a child.

I believe that experiences
like these can shape our lives
and influence our future decisions.

City Lights

Kayla J. Jones, in "City Lights," April 13, talks about her experience in the city. I understand the challenges and opportunities that come with living in a city environment.

I believe that it is important to be open to new experiences and to be willing to adapt to change.

Rare Books

One of the rarest books ever printed in the world has been discovered in the private library of the late Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr. The book, entitled "The Gospel of St. John," was printed in 1482 and is considered one of the most valuable books in the world. It was discovered in the library of the late Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who was a noted philanthropist and collector of rare books. The book is now on display at the library of the late Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr., where it can be seen by appointment.

Scholars & Scrolls

One of the most fascinating discoveries in recent years has been the accidental discovery of a rare manuscript in a remote village. The manuscript, entitled "The Book of the Dead," was written in ancient hieroglyphics and is believed to contain the earliest known record of human history. The manuscript was discovered by a group of scholars who were exploring the village when they stumbled upon a small cave containing the manuscript. The scholars are now working to translate the manuscript and to release it to the public.

We Bring Entertainment to Life!
“Build your own FM radio station!”

For weeks, we’ve asked you for suggestions on how to make KLZZ 106.5 into San Diego’s Class FM. So far, thousands of listeners have called with their ideas. And now, thanks to you, most of our music is in place.

We’re also adding other programming ideas you’ve suggested. But building a whole new radio station from the ground up isn’t easy. So we still need your help. First, take our Listen Test. Tune in KLZZ at 106.5 FM and see how we sound.

Next, fill out our Listener Survey available at the 7 Up/Lite Cola display in all Big Bear Supermarkets. Then listen to KLZZ. If you hear us thank you for your Survey suggestions and call us within 15 minutes at 560-1765, you’ll win a valuable gift! So start with the Listen Test. Then give us your suggestions. And you’ll be helping to build KLZZ into your kind of radio station.

San Diego’s Class FM.
