A Message from Former American Peace Corps Volunteers

Dear Neighbors,

We have a choice to make that will echo around the world.

- The choice is to work for an American foreign policy that sees beyond the conflict to the human misery deeply rooted in poverty and injustice.
- The choice is to stand for the needs and aspirations of people beset by ignorance and exploitation.
- The choice is to seek peaceful rather than military resolution of conflicts.

Replace Reagan’s destructive foreign policies.

It doesn’t have to be a hostile world.
Vote for a new foreign policy.
Vote Democratic.

With hope, from former Peace Corps Volunteers

Sander's says it's not to be suggested that the present situation will be easy solving, but it has had the results of increasing and improving the group fairly to spend the necessary time. That was a big capital expenditure for us. Sander's says, the required less money in convincing people that the group would need to be cleared quickly. It's a food store. If you want to know what you're doing, it's that. Let's end up working eight hours a week, six days a week, and clearing the store after hours. He says, each controls, some terrible, rigorous workers would find themselves short of up to a hundred dollars at the end of a day because they would be making $15, rather than the standard practice of making each worker responsible for his or her own work. Sander's says, it's a good idea, but we shouldn't use a computer, all would have been done faster. We didn't feel that we, that someone was being left out. The problem wasn't stealing—it was mistakes or oversights.

"Things were set large eight years ago when I started that people were working in the store and living up in the roof. Retail Mann was the is to look at it. He really has been a difficult time. Sander's says, that in the days shortly after moving to the current location, responsibility of the part of some workers was questionable. Yet, the chain had been severely damaged due to the manager. He says, the first time he had to fire someone, it was a difficult decision. There's no time to backtrack. It's when I ordered them around, that's what I wanted to do."

It fell of a different way of doing business in a supermarket or a Mayfair or even a regular health food store—the companies have been more flexible, he says. His rule is to go flexible, be more relaxed. A month and a half later, the second full-time job, a flexible work schedule and practices to the, that we're talking about the freedom afforded to the work of People's Food, which has incorporated everything from making the floor department, streamlining service, to allowing someone to be flexible in their hours when we need them. There's a lot of space for mid-week meetings and group meetings. In practice, the store now offers three weeks of vacation over twelve months, with the added benefits of a forty-hour workweek, which has been cut in half; forty hours a week is not too much without them. "Along with several other changes, Lepper seems to approve of the changes that have occurred. The change is a change in the collective's youth, changing the minds and creative thinking influence. "If you're going off, you're going to be something else and start doing it."

People's Food is now open to receive new ideas and suggestions. People's Food is now open to receive new ideas and suggestions. The sound himself is how people are about new ideas and suggestions. People's Food is now open to receive new ideas and suggestions. People's Food is now open to receive new ideas and suggestions. That was a case where I was really led up with the way things had been going. For all these changes, the management process at People's Food is now open to receive new ideas and suggestions. For all these changes, the management process at People's Food is now open to receive new ideas and suggestions. A change was made, and we all jumped with the change in high sound. There were twenty-two more people involved. The management structure has been decentralized and redefined. The management structure has been decentralized and redefined.

One change that has implemented the, has been that the management now meets more often. For example, the fresh egg section at the last office meeting was resolved with unusual ease. In a subsequent investigation, it was found that the fresh egg section at the last office meeting was resolved with unusual ease. Southfield, Mich. (AP) - When the People's Food Market chain took the step of hiring an outside consultant, it wasn't just another hoop to jump. This time, the consultant was expected to bring some outside expertise to the company. The result is a new approach to the way the chain operates its 34 stores in the Detroit area.

Stanley Artis, a 34-year-old former chain executive, was brought in last year to assess People's operations.
Artis, who was at the time a consultant for the Domestic Council, a national chain, was hired by People's to help the company identify areas where it needed improvement.

Artis' report was extremely critical of the chain's operations. He found that People's lacked a clear mission statement, had poor communication to its employees, and was not incorporating new ideas into its store operations.

Artis also found that People's employees were not as informed about the company's goals as they needed to be. He recommended that People's management develop a new mission statement and communicate it to all employees.

Artis' report was presented to People's management, which agreed to implement his recommendations.

Since then, People's has implemented a number of changes.
These include:

1. Developing a new mission statement for the company.
2. Improving communication between management and employees.
3. Encouraging employees to suggest new ideas for improving the stores.
4. Implementing new training programs for employees.

The changes have had a positive impact on People's operations. Sales have increased, and employee morale has improved.

Artis, who has been at People's for the past year, says that the changes are not enough. He advises People's to continue investing in its employees and operations to stay competitive in the highly competitive retail market.

People's management agrees with Artis and plans to continue making changes to improve the company's operations.

People's is one of the largest private employers in Southfield, Mich. It employs more than 1,000 people in its 34 stores.

One busy day on the streets with Tony and Karen

P^sychs and days are busy in the Project Vote office. It's 7:30 a.m. and everybody shows up promptly. At 7:30 a.m., Missy, the office manager, and Charlie, the director of voter registration, arrive. Charlie is responsible for coordinating the voter registration efforts in the city. The team includes six full-time staff members and volunteers who work on Saturdays.

The goal of Project Vote is to register at least 50,000 voters by the end of the year. They aim to register voters of all ages and backgrounds, including young people, seniors, and those who have never voted before.

Karen, one of the team members, is responsible for registering voters at a 24-hour-a-day phone bank. She spends a lot of time on the phone, talking to people about the importance of voting and how to register.

Tony, another team member, is responsible for registering voters at various community events. He is known for his energetic and enthusiastic approach, which helps to engage people and motivate them to vote.

Despite the challenges, the team remains committed to their mission. They believe that every vote counts and that by increasing voter turnout, they can make a difference in the democratic process.

How’s the Family?

JONATHAN SAVILLE

Following their charming, A. Waldron—"San Diego's Way of bookmaking hitchs to Ralston O'Neill with production of the somber," Long Day's Journey Into Night. The two plays are performed in repertory throughout this engagement. The shows are known and loved because of the artistry and sensitivity of the acting. The roles of the character study are demanding, but the acting is relaxed and natural.

It is often said that the best way to appreciate a character is to understand his point of view. This is certainly true in the case of Long Day's Journey. O'Neill painted a picture of three generations of the Wingfield family, each with his own problems and weaknesses.

The characters are not completely sympathetic, but neither are they completely unsympathetic. They are human beings, each with his own set of troubles. The play is a study of the human condition, and it is a powerful one.

As part of this initiative, Greenpeace and its partners are trying to raise $1 billion in global donations to protect the world's oceans. The campaign, called Sea the Future, is described as a "call to action" to protect marine life and the habitats in which they live.

The campaign is a partnership between Greenpeace, the Ocean Foundation, and the World Wildlife Fund. It is supported by a group of international organizations, including the World Conservation Union, The Nature Conservancy, and the Pew Charitable Trusts.

The goal of the campaign is to raise $1 billion over the next five years to protect marine life and the habitats in which they live. The money will be used to support conservation efforts around the world, including the creation of marine protected areas, the protection of endangered species, and the reduction of overfishing.

According to the campaign's website, the world's oceans are in danger due to overfishing, pollution, climate change, and habitat loss. These threats are putting marine life and the ecosystems that support them at risk.

"We are at a tipping point in the health of our oceans," said Dr. Allen J. Francis, director of the Ocean Foundation. "We need to act now to protect our oceans and the life that depends on them."

In addition to the $1 billion goal, the campaign is also working to raise awareness about the importance of protecting the world's oceans. It is using social media, public events, and other tools to reach a wide audience.

"We need to engage people from all walks of life to take action for our oceans," said Dr. Francis. "We all have a role to play in protecting the world's oceans and the life that depends on them."

READER'S GUIDE TO THE MUSIC SCENE

Music contributing is by John L. Oglesby. Photos and music information and photographs to Reader Music Scene, Box 888080, San Diego 25.

In response to a charge of 'Musical schizophrenia,' one of the leading lights of the arts is offering a solution to the present dilemma between the performing arts and the role of art in society. One of the key factors in this dilemma is the isolation of the performing arts from the rest of society. As John L. Oglesby points out, the performing arts are isolated from the rest of society because they are seen as a private club for the rich and the elite. This isolation is a result of the way that the performing arts are funded and the way that they are perceived by the public. The performing arts are often seen as a luxury that is only available to the wealthy, and this perception further isolates them from the rest of society.

Oglesby suggests that the performing arts should be more integrated into society. He argues that the performing arts have the power to bring people together and to create a sense of community. He suggests that the performing arts should be more accessible to the public and that they should be funded in a way that reflects their importance to society. Oglesby also suggests that the performing arts should be more engaged with the issues of the day. He argues that the performing arts have the power to address important social issues and that they should use this power to create a more just and equitable society.

Oglesby's proposal is not without its critics. Some argue that the performing arts are already too integrated into society and that they are already too accessible. They argue that the performing arts should be more exclusive and that they should be protected from the excesses of the market. Others argue that the performing arts are already too engaged with the issues of the day and that they should not be further politicized.

Despite these criticisms, Oglesby's proposal is a valuable contribution to the ongoing debate about the role of the performing arts in society. It is an important reminder that the performing arts have the power to bring people together and to create a sense of community. It is also an important reminder that the performing arts have the power to address important social issues and that they should use this power to create a more just and equitable society.

WE'RE NOT HAVING A SALE.
WE DON'T HAVE THE LOWEST PRICES IN TOWN.

Instead of discount prices and pressure sales techniques, Music By The Sea offers you the expertise and equipment required to create the best audio system for your musical taste and your listening environment. This takes time—we see our clients individually during 2-3 hour appointments. This takes effort—each client hears systems designed specifically for that individual's needs. And it's all worthwhile because our clients write a lot while listening to their systems.

When you are ready for professional audio consultants to create beautiful music in your home or place of business, please give us a call. It gives us pleasure to give you pleasure. (Complete systems starting at $7,000.)

CURRENT MOVIES

The African Queen: An otherwise unmemorable 1951 film becomes a slow-paced, absurdly pretentious melodrama about an eccentric missionary and an ugly duckling who embark on a perilous journey up the Amazon in search of the elusive fcoty that they've been hired to destroy. The film is directed by John Huston and stars Humphrey Bogart and Katharine Hepburn. A, 1951.

The Shootist: John Wayne returns as the legendary western hero in a story about a dying cowboy who seeks to return to his beloved wife and son before he dies. Wayne delivers a powerful performance in this poignant western. B, 1976.

MOVIE DIRECTORY

The Ten Commandments: A grand-scale epic film directed by Cecil B. DeMille, The Ten Commandments tells the story of Moses and his journeys to Egypt, where he leads his people to freedom. This film is widely regarded as one of the most popular and influential movies of all time. A, 1956.

The Sound of Music: A musical film that tells the story of the von Trapp family, who are forced to flee Nazi Austria after their children are sent to a Nazi-run school. Julie Andrews delivers a stunning performance in the title role. A, 1965.

"RUSH TO SEE 'COUNTRY,'" the passionate, intelligent chairman that brings the thought of meaningful music to a musical world. A conceptally dissonant Patrick Foy's delivery of his song, "Country," gives a vibrant performance that is reminiscent of Oscar "Little". A, 1983.

"A solid work of intense insight and perceptiveness. It's a story about the music's two main musical worlds, the band and the composer, with an emotional intensity and a tragic note that I find very moving." A, 1983.

Out of nowhere came a story too good to be true... then came the story's inspiration: a nation became one.

The story of a nation: a nation that couldn't lose.

The story of a nation: when he could never lose.

The story of a nation: when he became a target.

This incredible story has now become an inspiring film about which Clair Franklin of CBS-10 Los Angeles says: "Excellent. I'm thinking of the New York Times calls that Lay's a four-legged Rockey."

LEMONS.

How to handle your LEMONS.

You know something is wrong with your car, you take it to the dealer for repair and it never works! What should you do next? It depends on what is wrong with the car and how serious it is. Here are some tips to help you handle the situation:

1. Communicate with the dealer: Make sure you understand what is being done and why. Ask for a written estimate of the cost of repair.
2. Keep records: Keep all receipts and correspondence related to the repair. This will be important if you need to take the car to another dealer or to a mechanic.
3. Take it to another dealer: If you don't like the repair, you can take the car to another dealer. Be sure to do this before the work is complete, so you have a chance to fix the problem.
4. Consider a warranty: If the car is still under warranty, you may have the right to have the repair done for free. Check your warranty agreement to see what is covered.
5. Consider a buy-back option: Some dealers have a buy-back option, which means they will buy the car back from you if they can't fix it.
6. Consider a car warranty: If the car is not under warranty, you may want to consider getting a car warranty to cover the repair.

THE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A five year old, when I turned six, I was invited to his party. So I had to find a present. I figured monsters would be good, but I couldn't find any decent ones.

I should have just given him ten bucks, bad gift, I am, as money is always the best present. The adults never understand.

Eventually we had cake, five children left, they would only eat one piece. The adults ate the rest.

I decided to amuse the birthday boy by acting like a monster.

I responded by getting a good look up close to six kids and he would have left me alone.
