Dig for Dirt

Ten o'clock on a rainy morning in Oceanside and deadline approaches imminent the weakness of the story. Reporters Bob McPaul has just returned from his- early morning at the Voice office and the courthouse, and he's sat at his desk behind his video editing terminal to write two stories before the 10:00 deadline. A call from a police officer interrupts his work, and the two men continue to talk about the story. McPaul grabs a piece of paper and begins to write:

University Of Beards Crumbs
Eleanor Parker has done it again. The feisty woman made a mark in the men's room, as usual, when she announced her decision to run for mayor of a city run by men.
"I really should have opened the door wider," she said, "but I couldn't help it. I was just too excited." The announcement was made at a press conference held in the men's room of the city hall.
"I've always felt that the men's room is my natural habitat," she said. "I've been going to the men's room since I was a little girl, and I still enjoy it."
"But," she added, "I also realize that the men's room is not the place for women to be. I'm running for mayor because I want to change that." The announcement was met with a few groans from the men's room, but Parker seemed unfazed.

Gives Own Dog Knocks
Well-spoken, Dennis Brinkley of the Bread & Roses, said that he had a problem on his hands. His dog, a Chihuahua, had knocked over a pot of coffee on the floor, and the pet was now crying in a corner.
"I really need to find a way to discipline my dog," he said. "He just doesn't understand that he can't knock over things without consequences." The dog was later given a good scolding and put in a corner for being bad.

Rats Almost Synonymous
The society, which operates a shelter for stray rats, has decided to change their name to "Rats Almost Synonymous," as others have started to use the term "rats" in a derogatory way.
"We want to change the perception of rats," said the director of the shelter. "We want to show that rats can be wonderful pets, too." The shelter has also started to offer rat training classes for those interested.

Misleading Toners Strikes Sour Note
The "City Light" article in the Wednesday edition of the newspaper was misleading. The director of the city's library system said that the article was "misleading," and that the city's library system was not involved in the project.
"The article didn't mention that the city's library system was not involved," he said. "We're very upset about this." The article was later corrected and an apology was made.

Why Do You Believe That Outlawing Between Your Teeth?

An article in the Times whose editor became disabled could not attend a certain event. The Coast Guard is to be in their view, the law is changed, and the law is changed, according to the Lakota. The Coast Guard officially changed the regulations and correspondents non-sensically quoted one another. The quote is from the San Francisco Chronicle. It says, "A year later, however, all is well along the waterfront."

Bobby Strauss Less Toxic

The city council voted to ban all tobacco products in public places, effective immediately. This includes restaurants, bars, and enclosed public spaces. The vote was unanimous, with no discussion. Mayor Strauss, who was present, said, "We are making a bold move to protect the health of our citizens."

Placettes To Put Up

The city council approved a new public art program, which will feature artwork on public buildings throughout the city. Artists were selected through a competition, and the artworks will be unveiled in the spring.

Millions Lost In Mail

The U.S. Postal Service announced that it has lost over $1 million in mail this year. The losses were due to a combination of factors, including theft and mail tampering. The agency is investigating the incident and working to recover the missing mail.

This Is Jack Schaefer Talking

Schaefer was known for his outsize personality and his wild stories. He was a frequent guest on the Coast Guard radio show, and his stories were always a hit with the audience. Schaefer was a master of the dramatic pause, and his stories were filled with surprising twists and turns.

Errata

This is a typographical error. The correct spelling of the word is "This Is Jack Schaefer Talking."

By Matthew Alice

Dear Madam — Alice,

It was an evening in San Diego, at one of the city's famous haunted locations, La Jolla Cove, between Hotel and Ocean or 10th Street between 11th and 12th Street.

On the way back from a meeting, I stopped by the Mission Church, which is one of the most haunted places in San Diego. I have heard many stories about this place, but none of them prepared me for what I witnessed.

As I stepped inside, the cold air immediately hit me. The church was dark and quiet, except for the sound of my own footsteps. I could feel the eyes of the many ghosts that were said to be there, watching me.

I decided to sit down on one of the benches, trying to gather my thoughts. Suddenly, a voice spoke to me from behind.

"What are you doing here?" The voice was cold and emotionless, yet it sent shivers down my spine.

I turned around, but there was no one there. I cursed myself for being so foolish, but I couldn't help the feeling of being watched.

Suddenly, I felt a hand on my shoulder. I screamed and tried to shake myself awake. But it was too late. The voice that had spoken to me before was back.

"You are too weak to fight back," the voice said. "You are no match for me." And with that, I woke up, drenched in sweat.

I realized then that I had been dreaming. A scarily vivid one, I might add. But it made me realize how scared I was of the unknown, and how much I was afraid of what lay ahead.

"If he thinks we compromised the integrity of the newspaper on purpose," says Missout, "he has no business on the streets."}

Like other Oceanacide Mayor Louis Bredger, the new mayor of the city, who has been in office for a year, is not a fan of the "skeleton cut" that the newspaper has already been using. "I think it's a good thing," he says. "It shows the community what's going on in the city." But Bredger is concerned that the paper's focus on crime and corruption may be hurting the city's reputation.

Bredger says he is working to improve the city's image and is planning to bring in a new police chief. "I want to get rid of the corruption," he says. "I want to see the city grow and be a safe place to live."

Sam Seeks a Second Mate

A classified ad leads to adventure for an old salt in search of some new spice

BY SUE GARSON

The February issue of United States Naval Historical Magazine featured a classified ad placed by a retired naval officer looking for a second mate to accompany him on a voyage. The ad was placed by Commander John Smith, who had retired from the navy after a long and distinguished career. Smith was seeking a mate who would share his adventures and passion for the sea. The ad was placed in a local newspaper under the classified section for boats and yachts.

Although Smith was well into his retirement, he still had a passion for the sea and was looking forward to another adventure. He had recently been approached by a group of investors who wanted to create a new line of yachts that would appeal to the older generation of sailors. Smith was interested in the project and was eager to share his knowledge and experience with the new generation of sailors.

The ad for the new yacht line was placed in the classified section of the newspaper, and it received a lot of attention. Smith was thrilled to see so much interest in the project and was looking forward to the opportunity to work with the new generation of sailors.

Laughter. That was the sound of the sailor's voice as he told the story of his life in the Navy. A tale of adventure, of danger, of friendship. And of love. Love that had been long ago, and yet was still alive in him. He had seen it all, he had done it all, and yet he still dreamed of more. He was a man of the sea, and the sea was his home.

But now, his time was running out. He needed to find a mate, someone who could share his adventures, who could understand the life he had lived. He needed someone who would be there for him, through thick and thin. And so, he placed an ad in the classified section of the newspaper, a classified ad that would change his life forever.

The ad was simple, but it was effective. It was a classified ad. It was for a shipmate, for a mate who would be there for him, for someone who would understand his world. And it worked. It worked in ways that he never could have imagined.

The response was immediate. The calls came in, the letters poured in, and the meetings began. He met new people, people who shared his love of the sea. People who wanted to be part of his life. And he knew that this was it. This was the mate that he had been searching for.

The ad was successful. It was a classified ad that led to adventure. It was a classified ad that changed his life. And now, he was ready to face the world, ready to tackle whatever came his way. He was a man of the sea, and he was ready to live his life to the fullest.

The end.

90.3 HITZ-FM DOES NOT APOLOGIZE

FOR WHAT DENNY LUELL SAID THIS MORNING.

He didn't claim to be Sylvester Stallone, he didn't say he was crazy, he didn't escape from the zoo. He didn't try to bribe you with a new car.
All he did was play more of your favorite hits while you were on your way to work. For that we will never apologize.

THE HITS, ALL THE HITS, & NOTHING BUT THE HITS.
