When women apply themselves, they can get almost anything.

At San Diego Trust, we believe that nothing should stop a woman on her way up. Especially her bank.

That's why we support women with a full range of credit and services. From loans for cars to home improvement, from vacations to their education. With that approval and delivery of your money, of course.

Or choose a Visa, MasterCard or personal loan. Plus, we offer a variety of business loans including financing for equipment, accounts receivable and construction.

And a 7-24 Banking Center provides convenient services, such as the largest network of automated teller machines in San Diego County. Or use it to purchase groceries and gasoline.

Or ask us for advice on managing your money. We offer beginner and advanced Financial Seminar workshops as part of our Women's Financial Network.

So if you're a woman who's going places, make San Diego Trust your first stop. Whether it's credit on account or advice you need, we apply ourselves to helping you.

The key to the city.
And borrowing money.

Women Circle. The name has marketing appeal. And if we weren't all women, we wouldn't be assembled on this hot June evening at Vida de la Sierra, the magnificent oceanfront hideaway on the San Diego Bay. The group includes visionaries who are turning their coastal homes into fine hotels, and a handful of the foremost Libero architecture. The evening's theme: "We aim to please." More spectators appear. Enough to make you want to write a check.

But when the moment of truth arrives, they look at each other with a smile. "Are you ready for the excitement of giving away a new car?" one asks. "No," everyone says. "But we'll enjoy the show."

"I can't sign any card without having my signature look like the real person," the potential customer demands.

Recognizing an adversary, the salesman suddenly turns to her. "Do you always take your lawyer along on vacations?" he asks banally.

"This is a legal contract for a piece of real estate," the customer replies.

"Okay, okay. Go to the trailer on your right and give them this slip," the salesman says, handing her a receipt. "They'll take care of you," he says with resignation, barely containing his anger as he flashes off to confess anotherMMer.

She leaves the trailer with a grin.

Our Special Day Is A Time To Remember

Deb Holman was a victim of 1985's Kansan 100-Miler, six weeks ago. This was the day she died at the hands of her own mother, a woman who had been abusing her for years. Holman's death was a tragic reminder of the dangers of domestic violence.

Holman's mother, who had previously been convicted of murder, was suffering from severe mental illness at the time of the murder. The woman's husband, who had also been通告 victim of domestic violence, was able to save himself but not his wife. Holman's death has prompted calls for stricter laws against domestic violence.

Holman's mother's trial is scheduled to begin next month. The woman faces charges of murder, attempted murder, and assault. If convicted, she could face life in prison.

Meanwhile, Holman's family and friends are working to raise awareness about domestic violence and to support survivors of abuse.

Holman's mother has been denied bail and is currently being held in a mental institution.

Health Services of Pacific Beach

Health Services of Pacific Beach has revealed plans to expand its facilities in response to growing demands for mental health services. The organization has announced a major expansion of its current facility, which is located in the heart of the city.

The expansion will include additional therapy rooms, a new lobby, and increased administrative space. The project is expected to be completed by late next year.

The expansion is being funded through a combination of private donations and government grants. The organization is also seeking additional community support to help cover the costs of the project.

The expansion will allow Health Services of Pacific Beach to serve more people and provide more comprehensive services. The organization is committed to improving access to mental health care for all members of the community.

STRAIGHT FROM THE HIP by Matthew Allee

Dear Matthew Allee,

I just read the article where California is declared the state of alcohol in the West. That's quite interesting to me, as a native Californian who visits the state often. I can see how the culture and lifestyle of California are reflected in the use of alcohol.

The blue laws were somewhat weird, though, since they affect all stores in California except those that specialize in alcohol. It's interesting to see how the Puritans imposed their values in the state, restricting the sale of alcohol.

The laws were written in the Bible, and it's said that they are based on the teachings of St. Paul. However, the laws are not strictly enforced, and it seems as if they are being ignored by most people. Many bars and restaurants in California are open 24 hours, and they sell alcohol to anyone who wants to drink.

It's so ironic that our national pastime is so alcohol-focused. Our workers are just sitting around, likely wondering about their futures and the state of the country. As a service to my country, I feel obligated to get those office workers back to work so they can contribute to the economy.

Best regards,

[Signature]
"Hey, I got a Lake Tahoe vacation because I allowed a Kirby salesman to over my apartment, toss some dirt on my carpet, vacuum it up, and demonstrate the power of a machine that I had no intention of buying. It took an hour out of my life, but I was rewarded with two nights in Tahoe for me and a friend."

Recently Scott persuaded a friend to accompany him to Happy Trails, a RV park fifty miles from anewel. "Actually, the place from the sign selling point is that Roy Rogers has a financial interest in it, is thirty miles dead end of Chris Valois," says Scott's friend, who describes that particular adventure as the worst day in his life. "It was almost a total disaster. Each time we squeezed past the entrance guard with a pile of Vatican's belongings, during the past five years he's been attracting several time-shares promotional seminars a week. A few friends say he's obsessed with collecting those material goods--his car, stereo, cameras, TV, VCRs, Tappan, General electric kitchenware, clock radios, tape recorders, and endless footsteps--for which he has no use.

They found the ticket counter and we took our time to decide on the best way to spend our money. Finally, we decided on the most expensive option, which was a two-night package. We were given a brochure, which included details about the various amenities offered at the resort. The brochure was quite impressive, and we were especially drawn to the offer of a free dinner at the resort's restaurant. We were also interested in the opportunity to relax and unwind in the resort's spa.

The resort's grounds were very well-maintained, with lots of trees and flowers. We were able to find a quiet spot to set up our tent and enjoy the view. We spent most of our time reading and relaxing by the pool. We also tried some of the resort's activities, such as playing tennis and golf. Overall, we had a great time at the resort and would definitely recommend it to others.

Later that night, we went out to dinner at the resort's restaurant. The food was delicious and the service was excellent. We were very impressed with the overall experience at the resort and would definitely return in the future.

Although Salvatore was not a member of the Zlomicki family, he knew them well. Zlomicki remembered, "In fact, he had brought me a few pieces of furniture and a few works of art. He also gave me some advice on how to invest in the furniture business." Zlomicki spent many hours with Salvatore at the Sotheby's auction on 11 Copps Row where he was a frequent customer. He had recently retired from the Navy and was living in a charming one-room studio in a quiet neighborhood. To keep busy, he would spend several hours every morning enchanted by Salvatore's creations. He had about 3000 items on display and distributed them equally among all the auction houses in San Diego and L.A. counties. Zlomicki himself feared that "I don't know what's going to happen to these. I never bought anything from him that I didn't like. I always trusted him completely."

Zlomicki remembered how he had helped Salvatore to establish his own business. "Salvatore was a good friend. He was always there when I needed him. He was the one who helped me to succeed." Zlomicki was so grateful to Salvatore that he had given him a small piece of land where he could build a new home. "Salvatore was always the first to arrive at the auction house and the last to leave," Zlomicki said. "He was always there to help me."}

Zlomicki was an active member of the San Diego art community, often attending auctions and collections with other collectors. He would always wear his favorite black suit and tie, a style that was both elegant and distinctive. "Zlomicki was a marvel," one of his friends said. "He was always there to support his friends and to help them succeed."

HOW SAN DIEGO STACKS UP
A COMPENDIUM OF COMPARISONS WITH OTHER CITIES

BY JIM SEALE

It is possible to compare apples and oranges — statistically speaking, that is. People get themselves into trouble only when they attempt to apply subjective judgments in comparing the em", and the orange. As an example, recall the civic outraged in the wake of Rand McNally's monthly published ranking of American cities in terms of "livability". Many San Diegans may have felt that the city was being diserved by the nationally popular 1951 book, which some accurate critics declared is entitled to report inaccurate information to the public in a subjective way. McNally won that Rand McNally competition, but this San Diego feature is edited by our city's Citizens Association, and its other things being equal.

All things are not equal, of course, but the facts speak for themselves, and leave their interpretation to those who are affected by them. And forget Pittsburgh. Consider the following cities. Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, New York, and Houston. How does San Diego stack up against them? Well, did you know that San Diego has the most City residents per capita? It is not a very high ranking, but it is a very high ranking in the city of San Diego. And you know, that is very high ranking in the city of San Diego. And that's the most frequently, watch less television, have the lowest unemployment rate and the lowest inflation rate, the lowest percentage of professional athletes, and the most subscribers to Primecut and Playboy.

The charts below were compiled from a wide variety of sources using the source information available. (The source for each chart is noted in parenthesis.) The accuracy of the figures is as good as the reputation of the organization collecting them. That you can judge for yourself, just look at the meaning of the following chart.

Theater of Possibilities

Caryn Churchill's "Cloud 9," currently playing at San Diego Rep, is a play that explores the themes of identity and sexual orientation. The play is set in a family's beach house in 1965, where three generations of women are gathered for Christmas. The play challenges traditional gender roles and examines the complexities of sexual identity. It is a thought-provoking piece that leaves the audience pondering the nature of gender and sexuality.

Emo Therapy

Even if you've never seen or heard of the Emo Philip's, you probably know at least one. "Emo" is the word you use to describe any of the many different styles of emo, which can be broken down into sub-genres like post-punk, goth, and industrial. Each genre has its own unique style and sound, but they all share a common thread of a love for dark and dramatic music.

City Lights
A Broken Arm

"What do you expect us to do without you?" said Brother Benigno, "the most learned and distinguished person in the Holiest of Holies. If you don't think that I am a hero, then you are a fool."" The learned man had assumed that since Father Felix had been chosen to be the new bishop of the diocese, he would automatically become the new archbishop. But as it turned out, Father Felix was not interested in the position. He declined the offer, saying that he was satisfied with his current role as a simple parish priest. "I'm not interested in being a bishop," he said. "I'm not interested in being an archbishop." The learned man was shocked. "But Father Felix," he said, "you are the most learned man in the diocese. You have written many books and you have a deep understanding of the scriptures. You are a true scholar." Father Felix smiled. "I know," he said. "But I don't want to be a bishop. I want to stay where I am, in my little parish. I want to help the people who live here. I want to be a shepherd to my flock." The learned man was impressed. "Father Felix," he said, "you are truly a saint." Father Felix shook his head. "I am not a saint," he said. "I am just a humble parish priest. I want to do what is right for the people, and that is all." The learned man was silent. He looked at Father Felix with admiration. "Father Felix," he said, "you are an inspiration to us all." Father Felix smiled. "Thank you," he said. "I just want to do what is right for the people."

What’s Going On?

On April 1, 1990, 40,000 bullocks through the town of Mar y Lago, Spain, following the traditional watered and seraphic tradition of the Miester. the parade. All of these events and more are part of the celebrations in honor of the March 5th, 1990, "Dia de la Raza," or "Day of the Race," which commemorates the birth of the first American in the United States. The Day of the Race is celebrated with parades, concerts, and other events throughout the country.

A Clash At The Net

The key to a successful tennis match is the attitude of the players. Equipment and strategy are important, but the players’ attitude and approach can make or break a match. Therefore, it is crucial for players to develop a positive and competitive mindset to excel in the sport of tennis.

It takes us hours to make a meal.
And years to make the chef.

At Govinda's, we send our chefs as far away as India to study.
Sometimes for years.
They learn to prepare the best international specialties.
Using the finest ingredients.
It's a grueling task to become a master chef at Govinda's.
But there is no other way.
Because our chefs are educated at our expense for this time, and with our diners.
And for years.

The reasons to begin a real estate career before next year are stacking up.

Starting January, 1998, the educational requirements for obtaining a real estate license in California are going to get tougher. You'll have to take 60 hours of training curriculum - a 10-hour increase over the current 50 hours. This January 1, 1998, you'll have to pass the new, tougher licensing exam. And you'll have to complete the educational requirements before the exam is taken.

The service you begin your career with the CENTURY 21® system, the answer you can turn what you want to be.

Put Number 1 to work for you.

For real estate licensing information, call the San Diego CENTURY 21 Real Estate Licensing School, (619) 568-8503.
