On the day this past January I called into Children's Hospital to see my infant son, born three months prematurely. Within the intensive care unit, he was in a small room that accommodated four babies, and all four were sleeping when I went in. My son was in the largest. The nurse in charge took up a side sloop to pump some breast milk. It took me a moment to realize they were voicing their feelings about premature babies. One nurse, bland, delicate, gowned immaculately, was saying if the other were pregnant and she started to go into labor early — very early — she would simply stay home. She didn't spill it out, but her implication was clear; she would choose almost certain death for her baby rather than bring it into this hospital, her own profession, and the representations of people like herself.

Like all things you're not supposed to hear, her sentiments frustrated me. I couldn't help comparing her words with my actions, couldn't stop thinking of how nourished her thinking was compared with what mine had been. Now, in hindsight, I know what she knew; that when a baby is about to be born long before its time, the only certain way for its parents to retain control over their lives is to hide.

Baby

A baby was born in the hospital room of Dr. J. A. J. and his wife, Mrs. J. A. J. The baby was delivered by a medical team consisting of two doctors, a nurse, and a midwife. The baby was born at 8:00 AM, weighing 7 pounds, 10 ounces, and was described as healthy and vigorous.

The baby was immediately taken to the nursery for observation. The medical team monitored the baby's vital signs and ensured that it was receiving adequate oxygen. The baby was able to cry and was responsive to stimuli.

I learned about the importance of oxygen for the survival of babies. Oxygen is crucial for the development of the brain and the prevention of hypoxia, which can lead to neurological damage.

The baby was then transferred to the intensive care unit (ICU) for further monitoring and care. The medical team continued to monitor the baby's oxygen levels and adjusted the oxygen flow rate as necessary.

I was amazed by the dedication and professionalism of the medical team. They worked tirelessly to ensure the health and well-being of the baby.

In conclusion, the birth of a baby is a significant event that requires the expertise of a skilled medical team. The importance of oxygen cannot be understated in the care of newborns.
Baby

When she was born seven months and a half weeks after I was married, the baby was in a hurry. She was born on the fifth of July, the day after independence day. The doctors were not prepared for the baby, but they did what they could. I had to go away from the hospital to get some food, and when I came back, the baby was already born. She was a healthy baby, and I was so happy to have her. I named her after my mother, who had died when I was a child. I was very happy to have a child, and I felt that I had fulfilled my duty as a man.

She is now seven years old, and she is doing well. She is a very intelligent girl, and she is studying hard. I am very proud of her. I want to see her grow up to be a good person, and I will do everything I can to help her.

I have a lot of work to do, but I will try to find the time to spend with my daughter. I love her very much, and I will always be there for her.

JUNKERS, CLUNKERS, AND CASH

In auto-wrecking yards, your junk is their treasure.

BY BOB OWENS

Photographed by Ron Christiansen

If I admit thatasurable junk yards — wrecking yards — tend to depress me, the situation was a hangover from the time some years ago when I was searching for a part on the dirt path you had to hike to recover the thing. The junkyard was surrounded by a 250-ft. gray plywood fence, and the first car I ever owned, which I paid $200 for, purred to a new owner ten years previous. Even though I now realize that there must have been thousands of similar models of the same color produced in that year, at the time I absolutely certain it was my car — my old Plymouth had a look not like the contemporary versions with the thin, shiny metal that is the bane of modern-day cars. But my car was rusted out California and back. I had lost it in Florida and Canada. The passenger seat had been gnawed by the beavers, and the rust ruined every seat of the car. I was doing everything I could to get out of the junkyard. I was trying to sell the car to Joe Black, who also operates his own junkyard there — Street and Sons — and who at sixty-eight is a sort of living history of the auto wrecking business in San Diego.

Street has been in his own business for fifty years. He says that he has only one car left in his yard that he once owned by his father, on Ninth and Market streets in downtown San Diego. At that time there were only two of five yards in the entire county. "We used to buy a lot of refrigerators and freezers, and of course many Model T's," says Street. "But we don't sell many parts — there aren't that many cars around them. Sometimes we sell an engine for five or ten dollars, and the cars, batteries, and radials, but mostly we buy the cars for the aluminum that was in them. You can take the aluminum off the old refrigerators and freezers.

Street bought the business from his father in 1945, and Jimmy World War II if the wrecked cars were sold as scrap to City Junk Company, which turns to a National Steel where it is used in the construction of the Bellamy complex of buildings at the Island Avenue location. Street moved his business to South Claire View, near the 15 freeway, and when that property on Bay Boulevard became attractive to other enterprises such as restaurants, retail stores, and warehouses, he sold out and moved to his present site.

When Street bought the yard on Heritage Road ten years ago, he paid $200,000 for it. He's worth several million dollars now, by the way. "It will sell at a loss," he says. "I'll sell it at a loss." Street has his hands full with this business. It keeps your hands full of scrap metal, which is the mainstay of the yard. The metal is processed out in hand-size spiral strands. Aluminum, copper, and other valuable metals are also recovered out of the shredder.

We do have a little problem disposing of the nonmetallic parts," says Jack Paxton, the manager of the company. "Because the government considers them toxic, they have to be buried, which seems to me a heinous waste since they could be used to produce much-needed materials. Metal is the lifeblood of our business in the last part of the century, when the automobiles are processed and stripped down, mostly to Japan and Taiwan, where they're put on electrical elements. Some of the junk metal is also sent to the world still in Camden, which owns Pacific Steel. (The metal is exported, Paxton says, because there are no steel mills on the West Coast.)

Wrecker rates are paid about $1,500 per ton.
JUNKERS, CLUNKERS, AND CASH

In auto-wrecking yards, your junk is their treasure.

BY BOB OWENS

Junk yard — wrecking yard — bad word, I know, but that's what the owners and operators call their business. It's a business that has been around for a long time, and it's a business that is still going strong.

There are many different types of junk yards, from small family-owned operations to large corporate ones. But they all have one thing in common: they are all looking for ways to make money. And they do it by buying and selling the parts from old cars.

The process of wrecking a car starts with the removal of the valuable parts. The engine, transmission, muffler, and other parts are removed and sold to auto scrapyards. The frame and other parts are then crushed and recycled.

The owners of these yards are always on the lookout for new customers. They advertise in the classifieds, on the Internet, and in local newspapers. And they are willing to pay top dollar for the parts they need.

Junk yards are a common sight in most cities. They are usually located on the outskirts of town, where land is cheaper and there is less competition.

So the next time you see a car being towed away, remember that it might not be going to the junk yard at all. It might be going to a scrapyard, where the parts will be removed and sold to other businesses.

Junk yards are a necessary part of our automotive industry. They recycle parts that might otherwise end up in landfills, and they provide a valuable resource for other businesses and individuals.

San Diego theater is in the midst of what may be its most exciting summer season. There is a new kind of theater being sold in town, shows that don't beat you over the head with the joy of live theater. And this is not a paradox, for it is the spirit that converts impossible into possible. It is the spirit that makes a theater alive. It is the spirit of the people who make it happen. They are the ones who make it happen. They are the ones who make it happen. They are the ones who make it happen. They are the ones who make it happen. They are the ones who make it happen. LONDON, ENGLAND

The London Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Sir Georg Solti, presented a concert at the Royal Festival Hall, which was attended by a large audience. The program included works by Beethoven, Schubert, and Brahms. The performance was superb, with outstanding solos from the soloists. The orchestra was well-rehearsed and responded well to the conductor's cues. Overall, it was a wonderful musical experience.

THE END OF THE SONG

In commemoration of the end of the American Civil War, a concert was held at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. It featured a variety of music, including pieces by Beethoven and Mozart. The performances were moving and emotionally charged, bringing closure to a tragic period in American history.

A cheap shoe is no big deal.

You see a lot of athletic shoes ads like this, touting it's cheaper to save a few bucks. But save yourself some time.

The shoes in these ads are mostly off-brand, Knock-offs and cheaply made. And running shoes are not made by Nike or Adidas, or Adidas or Nike. They're made by companies like Under Armour, Puma, and New Balance.

There's nothing special in the shoes to help make them more comfortable. And while the price may seem cheap, it's not worth it. Instead of investing in higher-quality shoes at cheaper prices, come to Second Sole.

And always get top-quality shoes and accessories at below manufacturer's suggested prices. But it doesn't mean they're cheap. At any price.

SECOND SOLE

Try a second career with your own Second Sole franchise.

For more information, call 213-307-1421 or 1-800-345-6789.

In Person

Meet and hear the entrepreneur who's done it -- a Second Sole franchisee. Come to the Second Sole Franchise information meeting at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 11, at the La Jolla Country Club, 3350 La Jolla Blvd., La Jolla, Calif. 92037.

SYNTHESIZER OBEDIENCE SCHOOL

Do you sometimes feel as if your synthesizer has a mind of its own? Do you wish to tame it or teach it your own style? And do you sometimes feel frustrated when your machine doesn't seem to do what you wish it to do? Our instructions will help you.

"Learn Your Synth!" $25 per person, with reservations.
And, for those of you interested in a more exotic animal, come to the seminar on Saturday, July 29, at 12 noon, and we'll not only help tame your machine, we'll also help you teach it new tricks.

In today's Army, there's up to $25,200 for you in college money.

It's like getting a scholarship for being a good, smart soldier and serving your country well. Here's how it works:

*You can win $1,200 in free gear and a full year's tuition. If you also have a child in your household, you can win up to $9,600 in our special Family Award.

*The New GI Bill has a $14,400 maximum and is available up to six years.

*The New Army College Fund contributes $25,200 for a four-year scholarship.

*Effective July 1, 1981

D.Z. Akin's restaurant & delicatessen translates, that means

"Family Owned, Family Operated"

And that translates into a restaurant with a traditional home-style emphasis on quality. It means soups in the lovingly made, home-style recipes. It means fresh salad, vegetables and meats all prepared with loving care from our kitchen. It means everything made on the premises under our watchful eyes. Do you remember entrees too big to eat alone, sandwiches too big to handle and dinners so wonderful you had to ask for seconds? We have it all...and its all served with a smile.

But then, what else would you expect from Family?

THE READER PUZZLE #95 Hanterture

By Don Rabin

There are 10 pieces of radio equipment on the cover of this magazine, each of which is made up of two main parts: a single-station radio and a two-station radio. By collecting and connecting these pieces correctly, you can create a complete two-station radio that works. The pieces are labeled with the numbers 1 through 10. Can you figure out which pieces go together to make the complete two-station radio?
