Questions for and answers from the San Diego Union's acerbic young editorial cartoonist

Hey, Steve Kelley, How Come You're Such a Mean Guy?

Twenty-seven-year-old Steve Kelley became chief editorial cartoonist for the San Diego Union in June of 1981. Since 1981, the National Cartoonist Society has named him "Humorist of the Year." He is also the winner of the Pulitzer Prize for commentary.

City Lights

Too Gory, Says Getty

It's usually a good idea to go out of town on a Saturday night. The traffic and the noise can be overwhelming, but the city lights are always there to welcome you. The problem is that sometimes you end up in places you never intended to be. Like Getty's bar in Hollywood. The place was packed, and the music was loud. People were dancing and laughing, and it was all very pleasant. But then, suddenly, the lights went out. It was a moment of silence, and everyone stared at each other, as if they were waiting for something to happen. And then, the lights came back on, and the music resumed, and people continued their conversations. It was a night of Sunday. I guess I should have known better than to go out on a Saturday night.
Dear Matthew Alice,

Why is firing the thermometer relief? It may be the thermometer, but is it also a Friday? The thermometer is supposed to tell the truth, and the truth is this: if you get fired, you should be relieved, not steamy. It's not as if Monday is any better. So, enjoy your Friday.

La Jolla

Dear Matthew Alice,

I’m not easily assuaged by mere words of hope. Perhaps you can explain to me why firing the thermometer is not survival. If you can’t, then I’m afraid that there’s nothing more I can do for you. But I will keep trying, every Monday of my life. Not just on Mondays. I promise.

THE INSIDE STORY
By Paul Krassner
IN MID-MARCH SAN DIEGO CITY COUNCILMAN William Jones explored his colleagues to show a group of the city’s movement and entrepreneurs how to use the computer in a way that was:

1. More efficient.

The group met in the City Council Chamber to hear Jones’s presentation. The atmosphere was electric. The city council members were impressed by Jones’s presentation and were agog with the city manager’s office, and Jones and his staff.

Jones’s presentation was a series of slides that illustrated the various ways in which the computer could be used. He showed how the computer could be used to keep track of meetings, to schedule appointments, to send and receive email, and to create documents.

Jones’s presentation was well received by the city council members. They were excited about the possibilities that the computer offered. They asked many questions and Jones was able to answer them all.

The meeting ended with the city council members expressing their gratitude to Jones and his staff for their presentation.

Injured at Work?

Dr. Nancy G. Gold

We frequently see individuals who have been hurt on the job. We give them reasonable care that is necessary to help them get back to work. This may include dental work, eyeglasses, X-rays, treatment for injuries, and sometimes surgery. We also offer medical care for injuries that are not work-related, such as accidents or injuries at home.

Kelley

Kelley as an artist is a very interesting phenomenon. He has a graphic style that is unique and eye-catching. His work often includes a lot of bold colors and dynamic shapes. Kelley is known for his ability to capture the essence of a scene or moment in a simple yet powerful way.

Kelley's work often includes social commentary and political satire. He uses humor and irony to critique society and comment on current events. His art has a playful yet biting quality that makes it both entertaining and thought-provoking.

Kelley's influence is wide-ranging, and his work has been featured in galleries and museums around the world. He continues to create new and exciting pieces, and his art is beloved by a growing audience of fans.

Kelley as a person is equally intriguing. He is known for his modesty and humility, and he is always willing to share his insights and experiences with others. Despite his success, he remains grounded and committed to his craft.

Kelley's art and influence are a testament to the power of creativity and imagination. He has shown us that with a little bit of talent and hard work, anyone can make a difference in the world. As we look to the future, we can be inspired by Kelley's example and strive to create a better tomorrow.

words with the editors here today. Sometimes I end up saying, “Okay, I don’t feel strongly about something,” and it doesn’t make.

Let’s just say that these have been very difficult times for both of us. Did you have a chance to hear about the new Russian bear and Uncle Sam story? I have come to believe that both Russia and the U.S. are trying to use the bear and the bear story to gain power over each other. Our story, “The Bear and the Money,” is based on a real incident.

What I want to ask is: how can we use this story to influence our readers? Can we use it to show the dangers of relying on our neighbors? Can we use it to highlight the importance of self-reliance?

I think we can use this story to show the power of stories in influencing our readers. Stories can be powerful tools for changing minds and attitudes. We should use them to our advantage.

As for the bear and the money, I think we should avoid using it as a metaphor. It’s too vague. Can we use a more concrete example?

I think we should use a story about a person who has to make a difficult decision. Maybe a person who has to choose between money and their principles.

I think we should use this story to show the importance of making difficult decisions. Stories can be powerful tools for showing the consequences of our actions.

As for the bear, I think we should avoid using it as a symbol. It’s too abstract. Can we use a more concrete example?

I think we should use a story about a person who has to make a difficult decision. Maybe a person who has to choose between money and their principles.

The Oak Lady

Eighty-four-year-old Frances Ryan has planted 1000 Engelmann oak trees in North County. And she's still growing.

BY GORDON SMITH

When Frances Ryan decided to reinvigorate her eight-acre tree farm, she was looking for a project that would challenge her and promote her love for the outdoors. The idea of planting a grove of oak trees came to her after visiting the Oak Lady's Grove, a series of groves of oak trees scattered throughout California. She had always admired the stately beauty of these trees and was determined to create her own grove to serve as a testament to her commitment to conservation.

Despite her age, Ryan was full of energy and enthusiasm. She had a vision of a grove of oak trees that would be a source of pride and inspiration for future generations. She knew that planting oak trees would not only provide a visual treat for passersby, but also serve as a habitat for a variety of wildlife.

Ryan's goal was to plant 1000 Engelmann oak trees, a species native to the northwestern United States and known for their resilience and adaptability. She had researched the best locations for planting oak trees and knew that the North County was an ideal location.

The task was not easy. Ryan had to overcome many obstacles, including the challenge of obtaining the necessary permits and the financial burden of purchasing the trees. But her determination never wavered.

She hired a team of volunteers to help her plant the trees, and they worked together to ensure that each tree was properly planted and cared for. Ryan was on hand to supervise every step of the process, from the selection of the right trees to the proper placement of each one.

As the years went by, Ryan's grove of oak trees grew and flourished. The trees provided shade and shelter for a variety of wildlife, including birds and insects. Ryan was thrilled to see the grove become a source of joy and inspiration for others.

Today, Ryan's grove of oak trees is a testament to her commitment to conservation and her love for the outdoors. She continues to tend to the trees, ensuring that they remain healthy and strong for future generations to enjoy.

In conclusion, planting a grove of oak trees was a challenging task, but one that paid off in the end. Ryan's grove of oak trees is a beautiful example of how even the most difficult tasks can be accomplished with determination and hard work.

It is always exciting to see the impact of small actions on a larger scale. By planting trees, Ryan not only contributed to the beauty of her own property, but also helped to preserve a valuable natural resource for future generations.

The Object of Silver

The silver objects described in the text are characterized by their aesthetic and functional qualities. They are often described as having a "natural" or "organic" quality, which is a result of the processes used in their creation. The objects are also noted for their ability to convey a sense of timelessness and durability, as they have been made to last for generations. The text also mentions the importance of the craftsmanship involved in creating these objects, highlighting the skill and attention to detail required to produce such high-quality work.

Silver objects are often associated with wealth and status, and were used in various ceremonial and social contexts. They were also used as status symbols, with the value of the object often determined by the quality of the materials used and the skill of the craftsmen who created it. The text notes the importance of these objects in the context of their cultural and historical significance, as they often serve as a connection to the past and as a reminder of the values and traditions of the societies that produced them.

Overall, the text portrays silver objects as items of beauty and value, with a deep connection to history and culture. They are described as objects that are both functional and decorative, with a timeless quality that continues to inspire admiration and appreciation today.

Weekends I have to work on a major ip. I suffer from anxiety, any. My boyfriend and I leave home to get away and be together. We stay in a beach house in upstate New York. We go to the beach, walk and swim, and enjoy each other's company. It's a great way to recharge.

My favorite place to visit is the beach. The sand and water always have a calming effect on me. I love the sound of the waves and the feeling of the sun on my skin. It's a great way to relax and enjoy the outdoors.

My advice for others is to make time for yourself. It's important to take care of your mental health. Whether it's through exercise, meditation, or simply taking a walk, find something that helps you recharge and enjoy the moment.

I'm currently working on a new project. I'm learning to play the guitar and hope to perform at a local event soon. I'm excited to share my music with others.

Cable Snap

JOHN D'ACOSTA

Southeastern Cable subscribers who think their company's public service channel is a channel for gathering information and specific religious decisions must have had that in mind when they reorganized the transmission from February 24 to April 27. Nothing more is the new program, a half-hour long, when a young white man who was between 18 and 30, a black bellhop, a black man, and an orange-clad, heavily built Andre Mitchell around his head. Following in the wake of cable's success in the entertainment field, the program was designed to be a more serious-minded look at the problem of the black community. The program contained a mix of news, documentaries, and interviews, featuring a wide range of guests from all walks of life. The interviews were designed to explore the challenges facing the black community, and to provide a platform for discussion and debate. The program also included a segment on cable's role in the community, and the impact it has on the lives of its viewers. The program concluded with a call to action, urging viewers to get involved and take action to improve their communities. Throughout the program, guests were encouraged to share their own experiences and insights, and to offer advice and support to others. Overall, the program was a thought-provoking and engaging experience, and a useful addition to the cable channel's offerings.

Art On The Line

The work of abstract artists is often seen as abstract in style, with no clear path or direction. However, the artists in this section of the exhibit have created a line that is both abstract and concrete. The works on display range from simple line drawings to complex compositions, each with its own unique style and approach.

David Copperfield David Copperfield has created a performative style of magic that is both entertaining and educational. His magic shows often incorporate elements of science and technology, making them suitable for all ages. Copperfield's performances are designed to be interactive, with audience participation a key component.

At the height of the war, a man could see the moon at the moonlight in the form of the Empress of India. With a 20mm, the only time that the moon has been such a big moon was at the moonlight in the form of the Empress of India. The moon was not a moon but a sphere, a sphere with a moon. Guess Who Has Psoriasis?

Here's a picture I took just in case you think I'm nuts... that's me at the beach two years ago... before the psoriasis took over my life. I was so embarrassed to see my friends and family. But I didn't let it control me. I fought back and eventually got my life back. If I can do it, anyone can. So, give me a call and let me help you get your life back.

PICTURE STORY

By the San Diego Historical Society

Dan Reed Players, shown here with surfing instructor Charles Wright, are a December 8, 1959 photo at Mission Beach, captured a fondly remembered stack of redwood to become San Diego's first women's surf. Three days after this photo was taken, the high school student and her mentor gave a New Year's Eve performance in the surf that emptied the dance floor of the Mission Beach Ballroom. Spectators lined up to watch the day's night surfing routine, which included tandem riding with Fraser holding two customers.

She claims today that she got the chance to surf because she was the only young woman at the time strong enough to lift the three-inch-thick, heavy redwood boards.
OFF THE CUFF

How do you feel about the music of your parents' generation?

David Shelly
Fifteen Collector
Cleveland, Ohio

My parents grew up listening to big band music and the Rolling Stones. I think the Rolling Stones were great. I like their music because it's so simple and real. They played live shows and didn't have a lot of gimmicks. They just played the music, and it was great. The Stones were always in a good mood and never seemed to get bored. They had a lot of fun and energy on stage. I think their music had a lot of style and was very influential.

Curt Parker
Ballet Teacher
Baton Rouge, Louisiana

My dad was the one who first introduced me to the Rolling Stones. I remember hearing "Satisfaction" on the radio when I was little, and it was like hearing the Stones for the first time. I was hooked. I started collecting Stones albums and became a real fan. I love the way they play and the way they write songs. They have a lot of talent and they've been able to stay together for so long. I think the Stones are one of the greatest bands of all time.

Gregory Scott
Restaurant Owner
Staten Island, New York

I grew up listening to the Stones and Rolling Stones music. I remember my parents listening to them and me hanging out with them. I remember hearing "Paint It Black" on the radio and thinking, "Wow, this is cool!" I started collecting Stones albums and going to their concerts. I think they have a great sound and a lot of energy. I love the way they play and the way they write songs. They are a real inspiration to me.

Bobbie Brown
Teacher's Assistant
Columbia, South Carolina

I grew up listening to the Stones and Rolling Stones music. I remember my parents listening to them and me hanging out with them. I started collecting Stones albums and going to their concerts. I think they have a great sound and a lot of energy. I love the way they play and the way they write songs. They are a real inspiration to me.
