ON MONDAY THE UNION INVITED READERS or an informal poll on the pros and cons of growth management; on Tuesday the paper abruptly backpedaled. Acknowledging that the aurrey's "merits remain in question," the Union quote the poll was "bissed" and "meaningless". Martin, who co-chairs Citzens for Limited Growth, had spent Monday afternoon bersting Union ections for flatheling a termoon bersting Union ections for flatheling as "libertains but and allowed readers to phone in as many votes as they wished, at fifty cents a call to a "900" number.

"Unlike KSDO's fun polls: newspaper polls take on an aura of legitimacy," Martin says, comparing the Union's admittedly "unscientific" survey to similar tele-polls staged on the AM talk radio station. (There's no call-in fee for KSDO listeners.) Martin's worst-case scenario

Martin's worst-case scenario didn't come true, so she's now much less concerned that the BIA can make use of the poll during the coming election campaign. Besides printing Martin's critical comments, the Union downplayed the poll's significance by listing responses on the preportagers. poir significance by nating responses not by percentages, but raw numbers: 1283 callers prefer ne controls on growth; 970 want strict limits. In asier-to-understand percentages, that's fifty-seven percent for unbridled growth, forty-three percent against. Martin says she knows of a Martin says she knows of a builder-sponsored poil that yielded very different results. That poil, appearedly saken earlier this year, showed that seventy percent forced some controls on building, twenty-construction slowed or stopped, and only four percent embraced unbridled residential growth. But a building industry source says a recently complexely poll shows a mamber of people surporning laisses-faire growth.

Stevens still wants to cancel his first case. "It's fair to say I'm a poor loser. If you'd heard me fifteen years ago talking to prospective homicide investigators, you'd have heard me saying, "Don't get involved in cases. You'll lose perspective. Or you'll break down mentally." But that's Or you'll break down mentally. But that: bullshit. If you're going to work cases where innocent people like the Swindles, people who never did a wrong thing in their life, who were just three weeks married, who were shot down in cold blood for absolutely no reason — well; a robot could not investigate that crime without getting personally involved. So, dog, I'm personally involved.
