

State Hotel Deli, E & State, Saturday morning, handsome, middle-aged Carlos—who doesn't live at the State Hotel anymore but comes by the deli on weekends to drink coffee, read the paper, then have a beer—commandeers the counter's end seat. "So, where's Mama Sofia this morning?

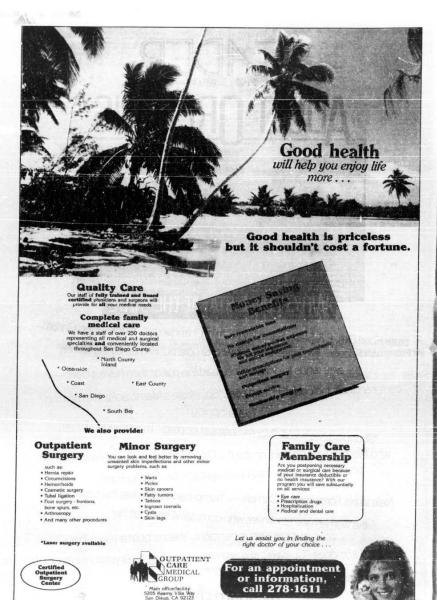

Out shopping?"

"Shopping," he's told. "Mama Sofia's shopping." The red-nosed man who tells him lives upstairs on the third floor. This morning, as always, on the counter before him, "red-nose" spreads the Racing Form.

Next to his Form, he has Camels — "hump-backs." Shakes the pack, says to the woman one stool over, who complains she's left her cigarettes in her room, "Wanna burn a hump-back?"

"Thanks," she does. "Upstairs," she points to the ceiling, "everybody's sleeping."

San Diego will never drive like L.A. The numbers alone practically tell the whole stoy. Nevleve and a half million people live in what the U.S. Census Bureau officially define as "greater Los Angeles," which includes parts of Los Angeles, "which includes parts of Los Angeles," which includes parts of Usersido, and Ventura counties. L.A. has nincteen major "activity centers" servicing nearly 200 square miles. Labels like "city" and "suburb" don't work in L.A. any longer. Experts describe it more accurately as a series of "constellations" making up a "galaxy." With five million cars on L.A.

At present, only 3.3 percent of San Diego's commuters — little over 39,000 — use the bus. L.A.'s record is 39,000 — use the bus. L.A.'s record is better, with seven percent of the commuters on bus lines. San Diego's first line of rail mass transit hit the ground running in 1983: sixteen miles of trolley lines between downtown and Mexico. Another eighteen miles of east-west rail will be available to ride next year. Since "restigite centers," any senerally clustered. has taken twelve years to plan, will cost on estimated $1.25 billion to complete, an estimated $1.25 billion to complete, and will run only four and a half miles, from the downtown Union Station to the run-down MacArthur Park district. It will cost another three billion dollars to tunnel the tracks under the Cahuenga Pass and out into the San Fernando Critics of Metro Rail claim that homes and offices in Los Angeles are too densely distributed. There are too many places you can live and too many other places you can work. A thorough mass

Economics professor Ross Eckert realized this and said that Metro Rail will realized this and said that Metro Rail will do for congestion and pollution what "Ben-Gay can do for cancer." Maybe Angelenoa already realized this was the case in the 1950s, when they tore up more than 1000 miles of trolley lines to make better streets.

This weekend, Abram Isaac will be christened in a Catholic church. Sonia's mother and little brother will come from mother and little brother will come from Hisyward, her sister and sister's husband from Clairemont, the baby's father, his mother. Sonia hopes people from the hotel — Mama Solia, her daughter. Carlos, Johnny, Crazy Eddie, Chris, John he Greek, Path, Bobby, and others — will come to the christening.

Several weeks later, waiting for Sonia to come down from her room to the pay phone at the bottom of State Hotel's stairs, Mama Sofia's Greek-accented English, what sounds like "a crazy raving, perhaps Chris's husky chitchat, all drift through the earpiece. After a few minutes, a weary-sounding Sonia answers. Yes, the baby is well, growing. The visiting nurse had just been by. No, nobody from the hotel got to the christening. Afterwards, her family and the baby's father and paternal the baby's father and paternal grandmother intended to go to Denny's, but it was packed. Mamer's humor may be ruthless and destructive, but it is a superb theatrical instrument, cannily deployed: Glengarry Glen Rose is a very fump play, and at the Rep, director Sam Woodhouse has underlined its humor with an unfaltering control of verbal and visual rightm.

But — and here I may be speaking only for myself — somewhere in the second act.

I began to grow weary of these unchangingly nasty people, of the incessant splat-splat of ugly four-hetter words, of the monochromatic satirical negativity, of the coldness and cruelty of the author's mind. I do not say this in critication of Mamer's accomplishment, but rather to indicate what I think is the unavoidable esthetic narrowness and spiritual oppressiveness of satire itself.

our unborn daughter. The thought of becoming another number in the dismal birth startistics of this state's medical system was causing us considerable despair. Thinking that we might find what we were looking for in our local Certified Nurse Midwives, we checked them out. They left us with the sinking feeling that they will be with the sinking feeling that they will be with the sinking feeling that they will be will be with the sinking feeling that they will be will be with the sinking feeling that they will be w sinking feeling that they still had one foot planted firmly in the

With little time to spars, we found Abby Odam! Ten minutes into our first meeting, we knew that we now could have the birth experience we wanted. As the weeks went by and we got to a begin to get a measure of Abby's worth to the corronainty the serves. We developed much training, and competency.

The birth of our daughter was an incredible event physically.

mentally, and spiritually. My wife's labor lassed on and off for three days. Abby was there along with her assiztant, and raedical back-up was standing by. The birth was attended by my parents, our son Joel, my brother and his wife. With my brother and I hadeign gw. wife to source (no. wife. With my brother and I helping my wife to squat (no lithctomy position, please), our nine-pound baby Marisol equired out into Abby's hands, adormed in creamy white vernix. Truly a sight to behold My parents were so moved by this, their first birth experience (though my mother had three medicated hospital deliversies), that they are now confirmed home-birth advocated. My brother and his wife went on to have their daughter Raychael at hone with Abby and all of us attending. It too was a safe, peaceful, and magical birth. It seems that all the people we know who have experienced a meditional birth, if given the chance, would not change a filing-thance, would not change a filing-

Especially those couples who have tried the newer hospital delivery. Could this be what the real issue is here?

It is disconcerting to think that the hospital birth "industry" in his state feets so threatened by traditional midwives like Abby Odan that they are willing to trie. this state teets so threatened by traditional midwives like Abby Odam that they are willing to use whatever legal, financial, and bureaucratic means at their disposal to silence them. As a responsible, caring consumer, I challenge the BRN to carefully consider the record of Abby Odam's service to her Abby Odam's service to her community compared with those of any hospital in San Diego or California, for that matter. There is no comparison! I would also hope that they would consider the impact of the loss of Abby's service to this community. It would be a grave loss for all who choose to brigh their babies traditionally in a safe, lowing, and traditional to the control to bright their babies traditionally in a safe, lowing, and many? P.
