"Laddes and gentlement, this slady right here is not being accused of being a drunk dinner. She is being accused of being a drunk dinner. She is being accused of ordining under the influence." And there is a big difference. It is not seen sequence with no local, and you can be in the sammer. Rs two or these glasses of were taken in the wilding sequence with no local, and you can be in the sammer they widered the loop (of potential criminals by broadering the definition of drunk driving.)

Matthews in thit has attitude abstend by the ynch-mob atmosphere these day? MADD and sMDD and all these groups that want to hang dunk drivers who've skilled their husbands and their daughtees?

Bliffs That's right, but that's willy an inclinkulal person who's connected to the subject personally is probably the powers cross to be making decisions for the less of door learny color. I see that all the processing of the powers cross to be making and personals do something to him and go check on the judge to make sum the guy god everything that was coming to him. Matthews: Shouldn't judges respond to that? Bliffs. They have to respond to that, but they also have to and do take into consideration the larger potiture. And to all the super picture is that although the campage of the nach has to be supped, getting a bagget harmine every work of the process of the process of the nach has to be supped, getting a bagget harmine every and more peoples from the logs of the one of the first of the process of the nach has to the super picture. And the legislature has a meejerk reaction, basically so [in 1982] they brought down the blood alcohol level from .15 to .10, and now they're talking about going down to .08. In fact the feds are putting pressure on the state to get it down to .08.

So what's happening is this: you're increasing the loop to cure a problem, it doesn't work, more people are killed on the read, the consistency is getting madder and madder, so the legislature keeps lowering the level at which you can be convicted of durind variving. And that has a very interesting side effect. The loop gets bigger, and when you're down to .08 — see there are prosecutions that will tell the jury that the .AMA (they love posecutors that will tell the jury that the AMA they love to use that AMA, asp everybody; under the riflumer of atcordo with a 08 or better. The point is, you can get up to 1.0 with there glasses of wine under the fight circumstances. Nou can get to 0.8 with two objects of wine, with the right ordinaring pattern, no flood, and then tested as soon as the absorption is complete. Two glasses of wine, with the right of divined pattern, no flood, and then tested as soon as the absorption is complete. Two glasses of wine, the other classes, will go give a complete. Two glasses of when the tenderally, will get you high enough to where the city attorney's office will not want to drop the case.

Alcohol burns off at a steady rate. You were either higher when you were driving, or you were lower because you hadn't absorbed it yet. See, the alcohol goes in your mouth, goes into your stomach. The stomach waits are thick; very little alcohol is absorbed through the stomach waits. It has to wait for the pylorus valve to open, before it gets into the small intestine. value to open, before it gets into the small intestine. That's when it gets absorbed very fast mit of the bloodstram. The pylorus valve will open relatively quickly if these nothing in your stomach, or it will open very slowy if you've got a meal in your stomach. So consequently in order to determine what was in your brain and your blood when you were driving. You've got to know much more than what the person drank. What they drank, when they drank it, what they drank when they drank it, what they save with it, and what times. These are absolutely essential to know whether the alcohol was in here (stomach) where it's legal or in here [Janing where it's not legal.

Matthews: Doesn't that piss 'em off and make 'em

Matthews Doern't that piss 'em off and make' em want to get you even more? Ellis: You are going downtown for the chemical text arryway in almost every case. Look there's three ways they convict you for duruk driving in California. Number one is bad driving, number two is the feld sobrety set. The law doesn't equire that you do one or may you tell hem what you had to ear of mink. So why do it because you're connecting yourself.

Matthews: You mean you can refuse the field

Ellis: Yesi And you should refuse it. Because when you reach that point, in the vast majority of cases you're going downtown anyway. All you're doing is providing evidence against youself. And the third way they can convict you is the chemical test, which you are required to take. If you refuse that, the DMV revokes your driver's erise.

Matthews: Can't you ace the field sobriety test if you've only had a couple of beers?

you've only had a ocupie of beers?

Ellis: No. The field sobriety test is composed of a series of trick tests. And this might shock you, but it's not just me that says that —

Matthews: Trick tests? What do you mean?

Ellis: The tests can only be done with practice. Saying the alphabet backwards or the heel-to-toe test, the jopular one. Now they'll have a worman, and they'll tell her to take of the rishoes. her high heels. Now she's in bare feet. But in order to make that test work you've got bale rees, but in other britans that less won you be gut to click, click your heel into your toe. Otherwise you lose your balance, and they'll comment on it. They'll tell you at first to put your heel to your toe, but the person's excited, she's tired, she's scared, but if you leave some inches between your heel and toe, which is natural because you're barefooted, they'll write it down. "She has three inches between each foot." It's a trick test. Now how about the finger-to-nose test? The trick is, the arm has to be rigid and only bend at the elbow. otherwise you'll miss your nose. If you bend at the shoulder, you can miss your nose. It's a trick because the person very orien doesn't hear or isn't told that they have to keep their arm out straight and bend at the elbow. The person is under a tremendous amount of stress at the time. So by allowing them to bring their whole arm around like this, it encourages them to miss. so then the officer writes down, "He missed his nose." which is evidence he was under the influence of

The other test is, you walk a line, and you keep your hands at your sides. But every professional dancer will tell you that if you keep your hands at your sides, you can lose balance very easily. There's only two people who can do a field sobiety test very well. It's not an acrobat or an athlete as you might imagine; even they have to have some practice. It's drunks who practice in

The bar, and it's cops.

The cops will get right in front of a jury, and they'll do that click heal-to-to-es o perfectly. So I cold one jury I said.

"You try it. You try it in the back norm and see". And the judge became angry at me and said that's not a fair instruction, don't try it. He wouldn't let them try it. I looked it up, and he was right. But the point it. I understand one of the jurors tried it and she almost fell over, and we won the case.

Look, the intent of the test is honest enough. It's designed so that, taking all of the tests together, the tired and they come home and shower and put on a meal and watch the TV and take care of the kids and go to steep. And then there's another relatively large group of people that live by fang and claw. They come out at right. And anybody that tells me they don't exist, tell 'em to come to me and I'll drive 'em around at II:30 at night, and they'll be so damn scared to get out of my car night, and they'll be so damn scared to get out of my car they won't even move.

Matthewa: These two groups come together in the jals now because of the drunk-driving push.

Ellist They come together in the jals, but the problem is, the police loss traditionally loyers only had to deal with this fany-and-claw group. Now, if you're polite to with group, you might get smacked in the chops. These types lief in and understand only one thing britte physical fixes. They traditionally have been going to jal, and they will be the police have developed in a struck to work of the police have developed in a struck to work of dealing with criminals that is, Do what I say or sometimes, a head gets stracked on the hood of a car. That heart chingled for yous, as a seen dawn you since me into police. changed for years, it's been that way since the first big Irish cop was picked for his size, just so he could under the influence. But in actually, the tests are such nick tests that the officer can not, in my opinion, really tell whether a person is under the influence unless they're staggering or serously inchiated.

I'm nor talking about that kind of a person; I'm talking about the person who's hald vow disease or time glasses of wine. The little school/steacher. All the drunks starling a her hooting and howing at her her carn giving by, and she has to on this line walking. taking her shoes off, walking on pebbles. This is not a

To some degree, it's a rough and ready system. There's two kinds of people in our society. There's the ordinary people that work all day, and they sweat and they're professors who come into my office and say they have been slammed against the wall, their eyes blackened. One of the most common complaints is, the person will say to the officers, being an American middle-class person. I want to know my rights. And they'll be told,

"You have no rights. You have no rights!" Now, they've told me this enough times that I believe it. That the police officers and the jail personnel routinely say, "You have no rights."

See, the officers are used to dealing with this criminal element, this hard-headed element that only understands when you raise a fist in their face and then will only love back a couple of inches. And the police are now dealing with more and more genteel people, ordinary people, who believe, "I'm paying for them; my taxes pay their salaries; they're my servants, there to protect me Then they get thrown into this cauldron because of Then they get thrown into this caution because or being uncar the influence — not drunk — and what do they get? A matron that walks up and grabs a young waltress who asks about her rights, slams her against a wall so her eye gets totally black, they pull her down and tear her riothes off and throw her down on a mat. I and tear her nomes off and throw her down ch a mat-tried to convince her to sue, but so few of these middle class people will sue because they're so humiliated. Masthews: So this is where the jail scandal comes Elliss This is where the basic jail scandals are coming from, in my perception. It's not that the people who work in the jails are getting worse; they've always had to act like this in order to deal with this fang-and-daw

Matthews: So you're suggesting that people suspected of drunk driving should not take a field sobriety test, should not give the police any information about what they are and drank, and should generally cooperate very little in their own drunk-driving arrest. But aren't you really working against justice, keeping dangerous drivers on the road by giving such advice? Ellist Don't make the mistake of refusing to take any test, because you have to take a chemical test or else you lose your licerise. But people need to understand that they're not required to take the field sobriety test, and they cannot pass it. Why cooperate in your own demse?

No. I'm not working against justice. This is primarily to help the people that have had two glasses of wine, three glasses of wine, things like this. The police officer is happy to bring these people in because he gets a credit, in a way, but these people aren't drunk. Yet they have to in a way, but trees people after to train. Fee they have a hire a lawyer, and pay a bunch of money, and perhaps get assaulted in jail. The jail abuse happens more frequently than you know.

Look, every drunk who comes into my place gets

Look, every drunk who comes into my piace your treatment. I don't care if I don't can will not got thim off on one of these technicalities, he's getting treatment because I don't want to run into him on the wrong side of the street myself and get killed. So I don't have any feelings of guilt whatsoever, because if I break the case on a technical basis, he's in there getting the kind of treatment the jail will never give him.

You wouldn't have to lower it to .06 or .08 if you got a handle on the problem drunk drivers and stopped the killing. The problem is the killing, the serious drunks. The schoolbeacher with two glasses of wine, getting her and harassing her is not the answer to the problem. The killers are driving with .20, and .28, and .39, and they're human beings too, but if you strip them of everything, put them in jai, they're going to come out and kill. Sooner or later they're going to run into you and kill you. So you've got to solve them, and then the pressure on the legislature will ease. It all fits.

Look, probably one of the reasons a person drinks to stait with is the has a low self-esteem. Well, jail strips you of whatever self-esteem you may have had left. It takes your family away, strips you of your friends, it strips you of any back-up you had from society, and the only friend of any backup you had from society, and the only friend you've got when you get out of jain in that botile. And that's right where they op.

Matthews: tou've seen this?

Ellis: Of course. We had one guy who was put in jail ellis: Of course. We had one guy who was put in jail on a second-time offeres for a year. This is unusual. Normally, the sentence is ten days. But his background was taked enough that the Judge in the ET Cajon court put him in jail for a year. He got out in nine months with good-time credits and immediately was in our office with a thad one. He went straight to the bottle for his strength and support. We out him in programs, and for a wear he and support. We out him in programs, and for a wear he a third one. He went straight to the bottle for his strength and support. We put him in program, and for a year he hasn't had a dink and is offl going strong. The point is, if you put them in gail and strap away everything from them, when they come out, you've created a killer on the made. Because, see the way it is now you can onry put em in for a year at a time. So you destroy em just emough to make em dangeous hat he person is going to be on the noad again, major without a fixth person is going to be on the noad again, major without a fixth person is going to be on the noad again, major without a fixth person is going to see that the program of the noad again, and begon courry you can't get anywhere without driving. Everybody knows this. They take the license away from these people, knowin the likelihood they're going to drive again against the law is eightly percent, and they're either going to get caught and put in jail again or they're going to hur

Matthews: But you don't run a counseling outfit you're an attorney. Is it your job to make sure these people get off the bottle?

Ellis: it works both ways. If you're a good attorney, you want to produce a product that you can show a judge that this person's not going to be a danger to the court and the soriety. The judge has to make that evaluation. He has a range of sentencing that he can evaluation, her has a large or settlement that he can give to your client, and your job is to either break the case technically or do something for the gentleman in the meanwhile so the judge can look at this man and say. "This is not a danger to me as a judge, this is not a danger to society, and so I can give him a lesser sentence and not worry." It's called packaging. The guy is in front of the judge for three minutes. Four minutes. The calendars for these drunk drivings it's something like eighty percent of the cases down there in trial setting. One after the other after the other. Humungous amounts of cases. It's your job as an attorney to provide something for the judge so he can see that this person is doing something. Because on paper from the court record, he looks real bad. If you can show the judge that he's actually done things between getting arrested and going before the judge that he didn't have to do... This is third- or fourth-timers serious guys... Not every case can be broken, I don't care how good you are ... I'm a lawyer. I'm not a priest.

care now good you are ... I'm a lawyer. I'm not a get But we need more funds for programs like this ... Matthews: Orange County judges send first-ime drunk drivers to morgues and trauma centers to view victims of drunk driving, and it seems to have some effect. Do San Diego judges practice any kind of innovative serterscring like that?

Ellis: San Diego judges have a set pattern. Normally on a first-time deuce, you'll get somewhere around a thousand dollars fine a first-offender's drinking and driving school two nights a week for two weeks, or four Saturdays in a row from nine to twelve, you'll get summary probation for five years, you'll have a license restriction for ninety days or two days in jail. In the El Cajon courts, they're very often not giving the choice and giving the two days in jail. Sometimes you can do it and giving use two days in Jan. Sometimes you can up in an honor camp. But it's pretty much a set sentence wherever you go, Vista. Chula Vista, San Diego, or El Cajon. By the way, it's on your record for seven years as a prior, and it stays on your record for ten years for insurance company purposes.

Mind you, liability insurance normally increases to $1000 a year. And if you've got your car on lease or you're making car payments to a lending institution, you can figure on somewhere between $2000 and $4000 a year for comprehensive coverage after a deuce.

I know a lawyer who lost his Mazda because he couldn't affort the insurance. And it also affects everybody in the household, so you can't do the car-switching deal anymore. Your family's rates will go up if you drive their cars. So just one deuce becomes a Ellis: In reference to the trial that may ensue, you never want to lie to the officer, because it's going to come out. He can still take you down and test you, and then the jury's going to see that, and there's a jury instruction that says something to the effect. Once a liar always a liar. So lying really hurts you. "Prove it"), or it's because the officer was just real busy and got confused it's hard to say. At 6:00 a.m. he and two buddies are in Denny's conversing and filling out their police reports from their notes. They've had four and five different cases, and they get mixed up. My ribs are sore from getting elbowed in the side by my client who can't believe the cop is saying certain things on the witness stand that just didn't happen.

The officers are in court all the time. They're professional witnesses. The people, the jury look to the officer as their protector. "They would not lie, because they're the law." But I don't know how many times a client has told me he was in the back seat of a police car on the way to the station, and the officer stops at a red light, then says, "Ah hell, I am the law," and he zooms brough it. I've heard that from clients numerous times. the same words. "I am the law."

> Do you see this sea of misery? And nobody touches the multimillion-dollar liquor industry. Isn't that where you should logically start?

But to be fair all around, I've known a large number of ifficers who wouldn't lie when they were coaxed to lie. Who got right up and looked the prosecutor in the eye who got right up and bonked the prosecution in the eye-and the prosecutor's saying. "Didn't this happen?" And the officer says. "No, it didn't happen that way?" The perplexed look on the prosecutor's face and the judge's face, and the officer's stuck to his guns saying no. You gotta understand, the officers are sent down to work in a jungle. Now, with the drunk-driving laws, they're coming into civilized country and some problems or

That deene might not lend itself rock in a Jimmy-Reed-and-John-Lee-Hooker-jam-at-Stax/Volt vein. That genre might not lend itself to structural flexibility of a type that would indicate the current state of Young's art, but it is the perfect medium for a lead guitarist, and Young doesn't disappoint.
