How 1989 finds the class of '34

Story by Mary Lang
Photographs by Dave Allen

Marking the end of a basement corridor in the Clarion Hotel (formerly the Lafayette), a doorway frames a rectangle of strong light. Figures move against the light. Shrill talk and laughter rocket out. Jean pauses in the hall to dab powder above her uppor lip. She feels relaxed and expectant. Not at all nervous as she was at the 50-year reunion. She tucks her compact away in her purse.

Monitor Series Stereo Receiver with Remote Control

Power Amplifier Section

NAD's Power envelope circuitry virtually redefines the concept of dynamic headroom. The 7100 is conservatively rated at 50 watts per channel, but that figure apolies only to steady-state test tones. But when playing MUSIC, the NAD 7100 drives speak to higher levels than conventional amplifiers rated up to 200 watts/channel.

Pre-amplifier Section
The delicacy and purity of low-level musical information is as important for realism as the power to handle climaxes. The line-level circuits are designed with very high headroom and extremely low noise to handle any signal source, present or future.

Sensible Control Design
The 7100 is sophisticated without being complex. Superfluous controls have been eliminated; every control has a specific sonic functional purpose. The design of the tront panel is clean, undultered, and logical. Controls are large, easy to grasp, sensibly arranged, and easy to

With the October 22 debut of the International Symphonic Orchestra of Tijuana, it would seem that that city's classical music afficionados would no longer have to depend solely on visiting orchestras from San Diego, Mexice City, and other cities for their listening pleasure.

But amid the strains of Loz Ecchros Ficier and Beethowen's Seventh Symphony, both performed at the inaugural concert, overtures of discontent have been heard.

One reason for that is the composition of the orchestra. While the composition of the orchestra. While the composition of the orchestra while the composition of the

A DENON STEREO SYSTEM

With remote control convenience

There are lots of gadgets that come on steroo components these days. At Breier Sound Center, a gadget is defined as something which doesn't make your steroo system sound better or last longer – but does make it more frun to use. One of the most popular gadgets is remote control. The remote control. The remote control. The remote control of this Denon steroo system allows you to access your music without leaving the comfort of your favorite listening chair. For example: You can select from up to meet or even music the sound if the phote rings; you can start, stop and change tracks on your CD player, you can start, stop, fastwind or revind your cassette deck; you can even record a song off the radio without leaving your chair if you've done a little advance preparation.

HOW MARY REMOTES?

One of the big complaints people have with remote control equipment is the number of remotes they end up with, on the coffee table. With this Denon system one remote control all 3 components. The Denon hand-held remote is divided into three sections: receiver, CD player and cassette deck. While you can't do everything from the remote, all the important operations can be performed simply and easily at the touch of a button.

Gadgets are nice but you wouldn't want to sacrifice quality, performance or reliability to get them. This complete Denon system with Phase Tech speakers is first and foremost a good sounding music system. The DRA-325 AM/FM receiver has 40 watts of clean, well-defined power per channel. The DRM-50 cassette deck features Delby 8 & C noise reduction with Delby HX Pro for crystal clear recordings. The DCD-620 CD player is fully programmable and incorporates 16 bit, 4-times sampling, dual D/A converters to provide the sound quality Denon CD players are famous for. The Phase tech 435 8° woofer and done tweeter. These 435 have a clean, detailed sound with good imaging and balance.

rom to La Scala

Story by William Murray

Illustration by David Clemesha

When the invitation to audition for a local production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Trial by Jury arrived in the mail last winter, my first reaction was to drop it into the trash. I hadn't sung anywhere in public for nearly 15 years, and I had imagined myself safely retired from a lifelong ambition to star at La Scala. It was a fantasy I had been nourishing since the age of 16, when I was taken to the opera for the first time to hear a performance of Wagner's Tannhäuser at the old Met in New York. I was entranced as well as bowled over by the singing of Lauritz Melchior, the leading heroic tenor of his time. I imagined that I had found my life's career and had not the slightest doubt that one day I would make it.

Owing, I'm sure, to what W. S. Gilbert terms "the agency of an ill-natured fairy," all the critics turned out to be deaf.

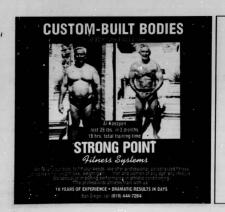

I pursued this dream relemitestly, under the uselage of expensive singing teachers and coxcebes, until my mid-20s, when I was forced to controls the reality that I simply that the control of the reality that I simply that the control of the reality that I simply that I so that I shall be the control of the I simply that I simply the cost of the I simply that I sim

I guess I'm not going to make it to La Scala after all, at least not as a barrione. I'm back in my bathroom, singing the old tenor part and, you know, I hit some really ringing high notes the other morning. In fact, I'm beginning to sound not unlike my old idol, Lauritz Melchior. There's a terrible shortage of true Wagnerian te

More than 10,000 people are without homes, and the staggering costs of providing food, blankets, clothing and shelter to the newly-homeless has far outstripped the resources of local agencies. Your help is desperately needed.

Please assist this effort by sending donations of any size to the California Earthquake Fund, c/o First Interstate Bank, Dept. #05702, San Francisco, CA 94139.

The chimmer has been braced with cables, the house rests on a platform, which in turn is on wheels, and the whole thing is being floated on a raft.
