"Everyone got a little hot under the collar," says Jerry Chandler.

During a subsequent meeting at which Williams still declined to which Williams still declined to report on the trustees, Gonzales and Chandler voted to boycott future United Student Council meetings. The boycott lasted several months. The two met with senior district officials to push for Williams's recell on the basis that he was not recell on the basis that he was not representing the entire student body and not listening to the United Student Council. About this time, Gonzales and Chandler discovered the existence of a newsletter that fully reports on board of trustee meetings, the District Communicator, and began receiving it. Gill's job was to make the plaza respectable, find places for a fountain and a kiosk containing weather-reporting instruments, and lay out walkways. He used the walkways to divide the plaza into quadrants. The walkways converged on a circle where the fountain was to be located. The kisak, in the shape of a miniature Greek temple, was located at the center of the east walkway, which had been widened to allow for foot traffic and for the placement of circular seats. On the west walkway, another balancing space was set saide for a drinking fountain, which was supposed to echo the appearance of the kisak. of the kiosk.

Since the fountain ment was destined to be a fountain. monument was destined to be a fountain. The fountain was the center of plans activity. It was equipped with special machinery to pump and illuminate cascades of water. The elongated lines of the fountain and the round dome that unmounted it harmonized well with the tall open arches of the U.S. Grant Hotel (now, also, obscured by a modern addition). As Fountain For The People." Since the fountain has been called the Horton Plaza Fountain, the Wilde Fountain, the Gill Fountain, and the Electric Fountain, it should be noted that its official name, as chosen by Wilde Insmell, it the Bouddown Fountain. By choosing this name, Wilde, who was unusually prescient, named Bouddown (Ghen D Street) three years before the the foreground of the first plaza matched the Horton House, so the 1909 plaza matched the ine-story, French-empire-style Grant hotel.

As the fountain neared completion, a squab-ble enupted between Harry Bown, electrical in-spector, and trying Gill. Brown claimed the elec-trical connections underneath the fountain were unsafe, that water would run into them, and that unside, that water would not into them, and that people would be electronized. The plan called for no more than 50 seats on benches and for seating on cement ledges, so the content and the seats of the content ledges, so the content ledges, and the content ledges were so conspicuous outside the plans, no benches were planned for the abutting sidewalks. (The commissioners released in february 1910 and allowed benches along the west and south sides of the plans but none directly across from the U.S. Grant Hote!) In the final stage of the plan, the location of the urns was shifted to bases on the sides of the red-tiled walkways. Crass remained the dominant ground cover, as the cost of bedding and replacing flowers and shrichs was found to be exorbitant. confirm that there was no bone or disk damage. Clark, who saw a physician in Los Angeles on Friday, told reporters he had a hermited disk and a mucele tear in his lower back. The club is still calling it a 'strained lower back.' "
McKeon's reaction to this item was strangely intense. In front of reporters and coaches before the game, he angrily accused filosom of implying that bek. McKeon, was lying about clark's bek. McKeon, was lying about clark's tolk. A control of the control o

Then he turned to Bloom and said, "I'm not talking to you, Barry."
What all this means, apart from sending the unmistable message to other reporters that they shouldn't cross the manager if they want to continue to do their jobs, is that McKeon cares passionately about his press notices. In other words, he has the time and energy to other words, he has the time and energy to worry about something that is irrelevant to his team's performance on the field. It was very telling that McKeon's body language and speech were so animated when he making. This contrasted sharply with his usual syle when he talks to reporters after games, when he is invariably subdoud, almost drained, and his tone is flat. actual field generalship, anyone can second guess any decision a manager makes, so quibbling with his gamesamaship is mostly pointless. Except for what happened last Saturday night, when the Mets beat the Padres 6 to 4. In the ninth inning, the Padres were rallying and had socred two runs. Left-hander John Franco was brought in to face Fred Lymn. Benio Sartingo, and the padres were rallying and had sorting to the padres when the padres were the particular to the padres when the padres were the padres when rookie, Granted, Lynn doeen't hit lefties well, but Clark is green and untested. Clark struck out. Santiago singled, then McKeon yanked left-handed-hitting Pagliarulo for righty Darrin Jackson, who wouldn't strike terror into the heart of many closers. Pags was hitting a resurgent 275 this year, and last year he hit, 305 in late, inning or sessure situations. Jackson. late-inning pressure situations. Jackson grounded into a fielder's choice. Taken on face value, Varga's charge that Madonna is pulling a modified "Janet Jackson" is only mildly provocative, given the dance/theatrical orientation of her current show. But Varga went on to say that on at least three songs —
"Now I'm Following You," "Hanky Panky," and "Sooner or Later" — Panky," and "Soorer or Later"— even the highly regarded members of Madonna's band were minning heir parts. As evidence, Varja, cited visual clues that mosticans were merely going through the mosticans, memory properties of the most one of the most of the mos worthy of corroboration.

"He said what?" Bob Merlis, the L.A.-based head of publicity for Madonna's label, Warner Brothers Records, sounded incredulous. After generally refuting the charge that Madonna mimes her way through the current show, Merlis added, "I went to four of her L. A. shows, and I'm sure she was singing live on all but one song.

"On 'Now I'm Following You,' it's "On "Now I'm Following You, it's meant to be obvious that she's not singing live. She does this dance routine with a guy who's supposed to be Dick Tracy, and before they start she says something like, 'Would you play this record, please?' Now even hear the needle drop onto the record and the comments that Jones is playing on the roots of the roots of the playing the point, and I'm sure no one thinks she's really playing it." Concluded Mertis, "I don't think Madonna would bother doing two-hour sound-necks before every concert if she checks before every concert if she would bother doing two-hour sound-checks before every concert if she wasn't even singing. But if you want to verify that, you should talk to her musical director, Jai Winding." The 39-year-old veteran of the music biz (son of the late jazz luminary Kai Winding) was por-traged in the Union review as a perhaps reluctant participant in Madonna's alleged charade. "Was it my imagination," wrote Varga, "or did keyboardist Kai Winding look embarrassed as he took his bow at the end of the concert?" In a phone call from his Eay Area hotel room, winding answered the question.

"Near the end of one of those L. A.
shows, there was a technical glitch with the sequencers, and the guy operating them had to sort of catch up with the rest of us." he said. "So, if had a sheepish look on my face, it might have been because no one likes to have technical screw-ups during a big show. Otherwise, I'm not sure what he's referring to."

As to the foundation of Varga-mant. "To say that Madornas lip-systed the entire show, or even most of it, well, that's just an outrageous claim. Sounds like he was playing detective, looking for more technology than there is." Winding program are "canned." He explained, "At the opening of the show, where there's a lot of plained, "At the opening of the show, where there's a lot of elaborate dancing, Madonna's vocals are pre-recorded. And, of course, on "Now Im Following Jou," which is obviously a tongue-in-check cabaret piece." Winding categorically denied that the massicians fake their way through any but the most theatrical parts of the show. "A tot of the synthesized] bass and some percussion was se-

BY IONATHAN SAVILLE

BY JONATHAN SAVILLE
The Lollis Playsous has kegun its summer season auspiciously with a sugarious of not fully compelling production of The Cherry Cerkand. I have admired director Tom Moore's approach to Chekhov in the past (notably his Three Sitters at San Francisco's ACT), and here, the same viruses are in respect for the text, an informed understanding of style, and ship degree of intelligence. With just a few momentary exceptions, Moore has resisted the deplorable forectorial disease—supecially supported it is sign of the control of the compelling of style, and his cast have worked hard to bring Chekhor sufficient in stating its own meanings. surd airs of a romantic heroine and at the same surd airs of a romantic herome and at the same time her genuine pathos. It is awkward to list the actors in this systematic way, but only such a listing can sufficiently underline the remarkable fact that they all get their characters right, with nothing askew, no trait slighted, no false note, and a universal com-prehension of what gives Chekhov's characters their unione flavor of comie notignancy.

While character and language are at the center of Chekhov's dramaturgy, one cannot grasp the Chekhovian dramatic world in its engras phe Chekhovian dramutic world in its entrety without taking into account the suggestive, pretie, pre-linguistic atmosphere that is Chekhovs herings from the theart of Symbolism (Maeterlinck, for example). The elements of spectacle — the visual and the auditory — are of vital importance in these plays, in a way they are not in (for example). Shakespeare. Consequently, the contribution of the designers to a Chekhor production cardiologistic contribution of the design elements are virtually always shiftful and imaginative — the effect of the current. Cherry, Orchard is enchantingly enhanced by the superb work of Heidi stumes), Peter Maradudin (lighting), John McKinney and Mel Marvin (music), Stephen Erb and James LeBrecht (sound), and Jean Erb and James LeBrecht (sound), and Jean Issaes (who arranged the dances for the ball in the third act). There, once again, is a list, for once again it is the unanimity of approach and uniformity of excellence that needs to be cumplassized. The exquisitely choreographed process of assembling Landesman's initial set—the isolated pieces of furniture, redolerat of time and place; the luminous apparition of time and place; the luminous apparition of of time and editing the huminous apportion of the rows of cherry trees in the background; the descent of the white translucent, lacelike dropcloths that represent the structure of the Grave country house—is itself a visual poem and acathetically drilling. The eloquence of the country house—is itself a visual poem and acathetically drilling. The eloquence of has already begins its emotive work on the audience's recross system white leve are dril-ing into the theater) constantly vivifles areas audience's recross system white leve are dril-ing into the theater) constantly vivifles areas of experience that it is too deep for words. The 'sound of' a breaking string' is rangical, representation of a breaking string' is rangical, representation of the country in way three rarely however estimable this production's design elements may be, it is nevertheless precisely there that I feel the only significant interpretive errors have been made. The vision of the cherry orchard in the background, lovely and evocative as it is, is turned into a visual fetish insisted upon for its own sake at the expens insisted upon for its own sake at the expense of some crucial meanings that the playwright explicitly indicated in the script. When Chekhov took care to describe the set for act two in minute detail, he knew what he was doing. He wanted a decayed chapel, to remind us of the decline of religious faith; effaced us of the decline of religious faith: effaced tombstones, to create a poetic atmosphere of mortality and to suggest the ephemeral nature of human identity and appirations; and a panorama over the Russian countryside stretching from the outskirts of the cherry orchard (the old, rural, partiarchal Russia that he play shows to be in decline) to a large town barely visible in the distance (the new, urban, commercial and industrial Russia the being built commercial and industrial Russia being built of the commercial and industrial Russia being built on the commercial and industrial Russia being built of the commercial and industrial Russia text ground the commercial and industrial Russia except some commercial and industrial Russia expensive visual presence of the meatry nature of the commercial and industrial Russia characteristics.

It is only at the very end of the play that It is only at the very end of the play that we completely understand why. After the abandoned Firs has spoken his final lines, there is a rapid — indeed, a melodramatic— alteration in the background, and we suddenly see the devastating results of Lopahin's capitalist enterprise: no more cherry orchard, only the stumps of the trees, like the destroyed wilderness we have become used to recently wilderness we have become used to recently in photographs of the Amazon rainforest. Evidently, the production has chosen to forego-the complex of visual meanings specified by the playwright for act two just in order to give plenary dramatic value to this final moment: the cherry trees, which have been before. It allowed out of our sight, so that their disap-pearance as a result of their having been chopped down will itself full upon sike the sudden blow of the axe. The play of the sudden blow of the axe. Just as Chekhov sees Lopahin in a thoroughly mixed light, as a necessary social type pro-duced by history, and with an inextricable induced by history, and with an inextricable in-termingling of positive and negative traits, so too he accepts the chopping down of the cherry orchard as inevitable and indeed cleansing, even while he regrets the passing of something so lovely and so irreplaceable. The old Russia had much that was wonderful in it — and much that was wonderful in it — and much that was the property of the control of the control of the state of the control much that was horrible. Its destruction is to be lamented, yes, but also to be rejoiced at. A new, transformed Russia is being created; where the cherry trees of the gentry once were, there will be not a wasseland but the burgeon-ing summer cottages of the urban middle class. That is what Chekhow wants us to take away from the final scene. But the Playhouse pro-duction issists on leaving us with porhin path from the final scene. But the Playhouse pro-duction insists on leaving us with nothing but an image of destruction and sterility, and to make that point — which is not Chekhov's point — it sacrifices points that the author did want to make and that are inherent in the whole fabric of his play. The Cherry Orshard is not about cherry trees, it is not about "ecology," as it might be if senonous weathing of the charge of the play the production of the whole production of the play the play the play whole production of the playment of the play the point of the playment of the playment of the play the playment of the playment of the playment of the playment of the point of the playment of the playme writing it today. It is about serfslom and the whole social structure that was built on serf-dom. Chekhow's grandfather, like Lopahni's father, had been owned by members of the gentry class. Chekhow himself was not an ideologue, and he knew how to treasure what had been noble and beautiful in that slave-owning class; but there is not the slightest intimation in The Cherry Orchard — quite the contrary, in fact — that the social transformation we are witnessing in the play, the transfer of economic dominance from the refined but irresponsible gentry to the coarse but energetic commercial class, was an unmitigated disaster, and that it would have been better had it not happened. That, however, is the interpretation conveyed by the final visual image in the Playhouse production. How unfortunate that

Postmodern Times

— the first quarto of Hamlet

What people are calling postmodern theater What people are calling postmodern theater is still in the process of becoming itself. Any attempt to define — and thus limit — it at this stage would be as foolhandy as trying to take the pulse of an attacking lion. But the Scleghammer Pheater's sunning, indraining, Bodelphammer Pheater's sunning, indraining, Bodelphammer Pheater's Sunning, to produced with the Shaksepara's Hamlet, co-produced with the Insemble Arts Finetter, employs several of the strategies of postmodern theater. And rather than cast some muddy old modernist categories onto director Scott Feldsher's would be a waste of everyone's time, I want to obtain the produced of the prod simple example.

Softmay to the suspicions of some, postmodernism is more than people wearing sport coats with the sleeves rolled up. Bit a sport coat with rolled-up sleeves is actually sport coat with rolled-up sleeves is actually so much of poundernism—a Least wo different codes. One is the coat itself: leisurely, or small of poundernism—a Least wo different codes. One is the coat itself: leisurely as 'sport' coat, something to relax in; the other, the rolled-up sleeves, suggests the opposite: work, effort, elbow grease. So we have a double-coding (the expression comes from art/architecture critic Charles sleeck), work and piley combined. Now the modernism districture of the control of the control mien. And when he duels with Laertes, Bruce McKenzie's Hamlet is wearing an orange Nike F-shirt and blue "Connie" sneakers. On see-ing Cynthia Woods's costumes for the show, one's first impulse is narcissistic: to see the similarities they suggest between our own era and the Denmark of Hamlet (and the Iceland and the Denmark of Hamitet (and the feeland) of Amilothi, his literary ancestor). But as with the sport coat and the rolled-up sleeves, this connection is not only too limiting, it fails to account for the many different kinds of coding on the stage: Shakespeare's ornate, very Other language as spoken by someone warning gym shoes, for example. Wood's costumes help

2. DO THE UNCUT TEXT — Another means of proliferating interpretive possibilities is to perform revivals of the complete script. On the East Coast, Lee Breuer and Johnne Akalitis began doing this in the early '80s with an eye toward exposing all the "un-niceties" of a text. The television age demands speed Northrop Frye once observed that "everyone ... talks too much. Brief let me be,"

Northrop Frye once observed that "everyone... ualis too much. Brief let me be; says the ghost, and goes on for another 50 lines").

3. DE-CENTERING.— As Yeast predicted, the center has not held. De-centering is a legacy of post-structuralism, which sought to demonstrate (if I may be allowed to over-simplify 15 years of critical theory) how a from the arts. But while cutting and editing clean up an author's shooldy writing, they also pin down meanings and give texts the illusion of a unity they may not have otherwise. An uncent text not only unfolds at a strangely slow pace, by today's associates, it also hange all the production follows this postureofers strategy by presenting a Hamiler with few cuts and, except for a very revised ending, free changes. piece of discourse has no fixed origin, center, or presence — that instead it free plays with other pieces of discourse. A recent example of de-centered thesate locally was Anne Bogart's Straubberg Souata, performed last year. She turned the stage into the life and year. She turned the stage into the life and year. She turned the stage into the life and year whose mind fragments of his past wandered as if in a maze without beginning or end. The strategy also works well for the Seleghammer production because once Hamilet learns his after was martered, his word very be becomes developed the stage of the strategy and the stage of the strategy and the stage of the strategy and the Hamlet, so is the prince. He adopts various roles and voices, in effect becoming many Hamlets cut off from a (now vague) origin and trying desperately — possibly even insanely — to re-center themselves into some kind of coherent whole.

4. LANGUAGE DETHRONED — De-

4. LANGLOGE DETHRONIED — De-centering in the heater also movels denying privilege to the word. And in many privilege to the word. And in many the primary means of communication. In Bogart's Niradberg Sonota and in Daugerous Gennes at the La Jolla Playhouse lost summer, music and movement were often more are preceived than the square dialogue of each piece. 5. THEATRICALITY EXPOSED — A 5. THEATRICALITY EXPOSED — A Brechtian hand-me down that calls deliberate attention to the theater—ness of the theater — these are only players doing a play — thus alienating the audience from the illusions of the stage. The Sledgehammer production takes things a step further by physicalful alienating its audience. Some of the noise levels — loud. to audience. Source of the noise evers—losse, gong-like bongs, for instance—are earpiercing. And every so often Robert Brill's lighting design (or someone on stage) will

Bruce McKenzie's version comes straight out of Jan Kott's widely read and now somewhat dated Shakespeare, Our Conten some-shat dated Shakespeare, Our Contem-porary, After dismissing other Hamlets — the moralist, the intellectual, the philosopher — Kott søys, "I prefer her bouth, deeply involved in politics, rid of illusions, sarcastic, pas-sionate, and brutal. A young rebel who has about him something of the charm of James Dean... No doubt he is more primitive than All reseious Hamlets. Action part reflection. all previous Hamlets. Action, not reflection, is his forte." This is the attitude of McKen-zie's Hamlet. He is most strong when Hamlet ons his "antic disposition." McKenzi ecomes a crazed muckraker exposing all th becomes a crazed muckraker exposing all the ills of Denmark. He is a man of actions who doesn't know which one to take to redress the escalating wrongs of his country. McKenzie is less strong in act five, however, when asked o play a more mature, serious Hamlet without the clowning and warped antics of the younger

one. Except for the duel scene, in fact, the whole production falls flat in the last hour, partially from fatigate but mostly from prodictability. For all of its strengths, all of its postmodern strategies and youthful energy, the Sledgehammer Humler doesn't actually open up to text to a for epig of signification. Instead, in repeatedly bashes the tragedy down until all becomes merely se and vollence — mostly violence, especially to the women. Brutality has replaced nuance. There is nothing left to the imagination. Subtexts— like Hamlet's alleged Oedipal attraction to his mother - are played front. And many of the characters act like unrepressed Ids sprung characters act like unrepressed Ids sprung loose and having their ways. After a short while, a sameness sets in. One can anticipate that Ophelia and Gertrude will be groped and bat-tered if not beyond belief, then at least to the point where one wonders if the director con-dones this behavior; that no "lights of angels" will sing Hamlet to his rest; and that Fortin-bras, rafter thon, postoro neder to Domawich. bras, rather than restore order to Denmark will be just another in a long line of fascists.

And while there are good reasons to see the show, these anti-insights are hardly worth a five-hour wait.

YO-YO MA AND EMANUEL AX

Cellist Yo-Ko Ma and pianist Emanuel Ax are not only musical collaborators but also great personal friends. They like each other, and hey have worked with each other for a long time: evidently, they feel that their styles of playing are akin or styles of playing are akin or complementery and that there is a high degree of unanimity in their musical understanding. It may seem abourd for an outsider— that is, a listener—to disagree, but the recital these two distinguished artists offered at the Civic Theater, under the auspices of the La Jolla Chamber Music of the La Jolia Chamber Music Society, offered strong evidence, at least to these ears, that Ma and Ax are very different kinds of musicians and that their partnership is not an ideal one.

partnership is not an ideal one.

If one were to sum up the differences, one would have to say hat Ma is lyrical, passionate, and extroverted, while Ax is relatively analytical, controlled, and subdued. Both are technically masterful, and they have obviously arrived at mutually satisfactory aeroements on such obviously arrived at mutually satisfactory agreements on such broad matters as tempo and dynamics, but temperamentally – not in the socially accessible temperament that is involved in interpersonal relations but in the secret temperament that is the soul of the musician and that is revealed only in performance – soul of the musician and that is revealed only in performance—they approach virtually every line, every phrase, every phrase, every musical idea, and every expressive turn in malically incompatible ways. The dislocation and unesae, which one becomes gradually sware of as the performance goes on. It is a subtle matter, often marginal, never gross in its effect, but there nevertheless and after a while the cumulative impact of this inner dislatemorp become gradually and the compatible of the com

This is a big, singing, romantic work, very much in the manner of the composer's Second Piano Concerto, which precedes it directly in the list of Rachmaninoff's opus numbers.

In the cello-and-piano version of Stravinsky's Suite Italienne, which began the Civic Theater program, the profound cross-purposes of the two musicians were equally in evidence, but in reverse, so to speak. Stravinsky's Ax and Ma do not belong with each other.

Ax, as his Chopin performances have often demonstrated, is a romantic only from the outside, perfectly adept at reproducing the external mannersines of the romantic style but inevitably resting them as alien substances, to be handled with caution, and certainly aware to be allowed to the cartainly aware to be allowed to the cartainly aware to be allowed to the contraction. In this performance of the Rachmannioff Soziate, it was frequently as though Ax, as a living, vital participant, was simply not there, while at other times his brisage, everity simply not once, which at one times his brusque, overly disciplined, spiritually unyielding treatment of the great flowing lines and ardent, noble harmonies functioned as a brake on Ma's more generous impulses.

that made clear at all moments that this was music of the Twentieth Century, not the Twentieth Century, not the Eighteenth, of Stravinsky, not Pergolesi. Ma, in contrast, played the music in a sweeping, dramatic, impassioned way that had little to do with Stravinsky and not even much to do with Pergolesi — marvelous to listen to in itself, and possibly a legitimate of extreme reintermestation of the in itself, and gossibly a legitimate if extreme reinterpretation of the music, but quite in dissectord with what the plaints, with a more identatic understanding of the score, was doing. improvement and more care is the food preparation.

Let's begin with the ciroppino (the peem-o), a seafood stew that corecisally originated in San Finacisco. Cioppino invariably has a contrato base (fresh a weel las canted to mattees are used), fish stock, possibly clam juice, crab, clams, blocket; and fish that the restaumat can afford. Like its Ferech counterpart, houtillushiese, cioppino is only as good as the ingredients that go into it, and the broth should be mopped up with crusty Italian bread. I'll give a round of appliance to the board, but the fish sew heefi consisted of a brother of fish and seafood flouting in it. At the Bermuda finals, I was declared World Champton in my age and weight category. And I had my honon, too — in distinguished places, not on Wheaties boxes! I was on a panel discussion on cellulite on the Community Channel, and if the sound hadn't Channel, and if the sound hadrity gone our a lot of people would have been pretry shocked at what I had to say on the subject I wrote an autobiographical article, How I Made a New Me Through Creative Thinking and Spandes," and I had it published in the Mary Saleshard of the Mary Salesh upper body).

The point where I really take issue with Noel Johnson, though, is diet. For him, natural foods an the secret to staying young — that's why he's making appearances at a local natural foods supermarket. He insists you should ear seeds, because seeds have life in them, and if you eat them the life will be in you, and them the life will be in you, as you should also concentmet or the tops of vegetables, because they get the solar energy from being in the sun, unlike roots, which are just buried in the ground. I have a complerely different theory, which is just as much supported by scientific evidence as Johnson's, maybe evidence as Johnson's, maybe more so. I say what you should eat is shells, husks, and peels — like ground-up pistachio shells, boiled corn-silk, and the grubby layers com-site, and the grubby laven ignorant people sempe of carross and turnips. The reason for that is, the costisted or degrables are what give them their appearance, and appearance too, which is a very important thing when you are playing chainpoinship bridge. Also, I disagree with Johnson's culation of been deep the markets a line of Raw Onganic Bee Follen, which he considers to have which the considers to have livingh. In my opinion, the perfect food is lamb cheps, and all you have to do to prove it is look at me.

Introducing Reader Phone Matches." A Great New Way To Meet Single People. Free.

It works by providing you with a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds. You will also receive a free "voice mailbox"—a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone phone.

Phone Matches are:

Simple. The Phone Matches system guides you, step by step. You can re-record your introduction any number of times—until you are satisfied with it.

Quick. It's not necessary to open a P.O. box and wait for letters. You can listen to your phoned-in responses any time, day or night. Confidential. Only you can listen to your responses. Respondents wait to hear back from you. There's no need to reveal your phone number or address.

So if you're free, why not put yourself on the line today? Turn to Section 3 for details.

A CENTRAL AMERICA BENEFIT

You and I have never read anything about Rebys Witchcook that didn't also invoke Syd Berrett and John Lennon. I'd be inspired to cut this trend off at its knoes, but the twin gods of whimsical psychedials influence on Hitchcook's music and out has been profound. The 1988 semi-almost-hit "Balloon and "Reversit propositions" in the Company from Middood is a semi-almost-hit "Balloon and "Reversit propositions".

What can you do better than anyone else you know?

KYRA CURTIS Future Ballerina

I'm definitely the best at watching my little brother. Keeping him out of the street. He doesn't listen to much, and he's trouble. I love him anyway. He's going through his terrible twos. The other thing I'm best at is singing and writing my own songs. This first one isn't mine. It goes:

Humpback whale, Humpback whale
Here's how he sings. Here's how he sings
He weights 50 tons and he's 50 feet long.
Long white flappers to him belong.
Long white flappers to him belong.
Luouald lore to hear his song.
Humpback whale, Humpback whale.
Now this next one I made up. I sing it and play it on the piano. It

Throwing up a pine cone, Diggin' in the garden, In the summertime. Then you sing it through a few times.
I call it "Muddy Old River Water."

Future Batman

This is really interesting. Just yesterday I was playing with the kids next door. I found out I could jump down the stairs and they couldn't. When I'm in my Batman county jump toows the same and the continue. I can do a lot of things better. Like I can jump over people. I can save them. I can help out policemen. Other kids look at me when I look like Batman. They say. "Wowee!" Also, I'm pretty good at making silly faces. I mean really, you because the paper probably you locate the paper probably you locate the gramman of the can talk German. I was born in German, When poople are English, I talk English. There are English, I talk English. There are only English, I talk English. There are only English other kids I know can talk German.

SHIRA BARCHILON FRANK Going to be 6 pretty soon Future School Teacher

Okny, let's see. I can roll my tongue. I don't know anybody else who can do it. My brother can't do it. I also know how to give really do it. I also know how to give really good neck ruly massages. At school we have this ladder. It goes from down on the ground to up about truck or van high. Sometimes the kids at school are really, really scared. I don't mind climbing it at scared. I don't mind climbing it at scared. I don't mind climbing is all. There are more girls than the system of the scared of the scared

CHRISTOPHER ESQUIVEL Aged II Future Cartoonist

Probably karate, and drawing. I'm a brown belt with two stripes. I took it for about six years. It's called kempo. Within that I can do weapons that other kids can't do bo-staff and sword. The other thing I really like is drawing cartoons. be-skill and sworth. Ine other tunig can are the Simpsons really good, but most of all, I like to do my own characters. I have a lot of them. I have one named George Honker. He has a big nose, big ears, and a small face. He doesn't talk much, he hums as or real fat all over, just his helly. I have another character named Mr. Prank, He's shotog, He's goofy and he likes to dance. He talk soo much. I also like drawing Ninjas a lot. When I'm in school and I get as the control of the co

JENNIFER ROWLAND Aged 12
Future Teacher/Diplomat

Iknow I'm really good at math, Iknow I'm really good at math. Lespecially algebra. Tm in the start grade, but my level is about eighth grade right now. His et; and lowerk at it. I have a tutor. When I was really little, little first grade, I know all my multiplication tables. It always seemed little first. I'll don't know the answer to a problem. It hander. It's a challenge. Algebra use letters in place of numbers. Instead call them terms. For example, 8 times 3b equals a. That's a term. On the side, they have to tell you what are its. If you know what bis, then you multiply the whole problem. I'll you multiply the whole problem. I'll aor bis. If you know what bis, then you multiply the whole problem. I'll be going into advanced math when I start justion high this fail. It's okay being good at math, but sometimes good at math, but sometimes are always, asying, "You're so smart." Then they ask if I can do bein math for them. Or if they don't do their homework, they call me up and ask me for answers. Sometimes you don't want the attention. a diplomat. I'm sure math will come in handy sooner or laser.

PICTURE STORY

By the San Diego Historical Society

This photo, identified only as "Balloon ascension, Ocean Beach, April 15, 1888," is likely a promotional event by land development company Carlson and Higgins, judging from the "ist Anniversary" banner. One year earlier, the developers had acquired the area at the height of a San Diego land boom and set about promoting its charms in the best flowery language of the time. Newspaper ads invoked images of paradise, complete with angelic choirs and the many blissful days you and your jolly, thoughtful neighbors would bear. would know, far from the cares of the world, if you just bought a plot of their unimproved O.B. land at $60 to $100 a lot. Apparently, at the time, O.B. was a nice place to visit, but nobody wanted to live there, and the economic depression that soon followed left most of the plots unsold. Even by 1906, O.B. is said to have had only 13 houses. But it's interesting to note that land developers 100 years later are still using hot air and balloons in their promotions.

You're Single. We're Free. Why Wait?

Introducing Reader Phone MATCHES!" a Great, New Way to Meet Single People. You are provided with a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds. You also receive a free "voice mailbox"—a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone phone.

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: Fill out the coupon and mail it or FAX (233-7907) to us. The first 25 words are free; additional words cost 60% each per week. Ads run for two weeks. We'll send you a 5-digit mailton number (to be printed in your ad) and a 4-digit private security code for exclusive access to your responses.

You can also place your ad by phone (235-8200) or in our office at 1703 India Step then at Daile), Downtown until 6 pm Tuesday. However, ads that are placed by peton or in person will be charged $10 per week for the first 25 words, and additional words cost 60e per week (two-week minimum). The voice mailbox is free. Ads placed by phone are with Visi or Master-Card only.

HOW TO USE YOUR VOICE MAILBOX: After you receive your mailbox number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction. Call 527-1966, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions.

Use your introduction to tell more about yourself than your ad does (see below for guidelines). Give your first name; but DON'T give your last name, bython number or address. Make sure you ask your callers to leave their names, phone numbers and the best times to call them. You can re-record your personal introduction once per 24 hour period. All introductions are reviewed by the Reader and go on-line within 24 hours.

To listen to your resporses, call 527-1966 any time, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You can replay any response or move ahead to the next one. If you choose to move ahead the previous response will be errased, so have a pencil and piece of paper ready! You must have a touch-tone phone to record a personal introduction or listen to responses.

If you have any questions regarding Reader PHONE MATCHES! call 235-3023.

PRESIDENT BILL

By Wm. L. Brown @1990

TOPRESIDENT BILL® invaders were falling right into the subtle trap my Murphy's Defense set for them. Already they had blundered: Their attempt to capture and try me for trumped-up crimes had failed miserably. While my family and I were safe in sanctuary at the National Cathedral, the invaders set up a puppet regime, filling government posts with their cronies. All of them were criminals, freed by the Panamanians from prisons where my administration had put them for financing right-wing terrorists with shady arms and drug deals. * * *
