Twilight has added to a fringe of stars on the western horizon, and the stars spin slowly as the dome of the 200-inch Hale telescope on Palomar Mountain blinks overhead. Bob Thibetan, the observatory's superintendent, stands on the walkway that rings the outside of the seven-story dome. We float through space, about 100 feet up, on the dome and the telescope turn toward a distant galaxy. The motion is so smooth and silent that it's easy to Call Gillette and ask somebody in public relations to explain this picture.

Did 617-421-7900

Ask for Gillette's CEO Colman Molder. Tell whoever answers you'd like to know why Gillette's still using and killing animals. Of course, when they hear this, they'll transfer you to public relations, where "problems" such as you and your questions are quietly dealt with.

Questions like: Is Gillette still pouring Liquid Paper into the eyes of rabbits when such a test doesn't make Liquid Paper any safer for human beings? Is Gillette still shaving off the backs of rabbits and pouring chemicals directly into their wounds, when scientifically-sophisticated non-animal tests have been developed? Is Gillette still doing lethal dose tests, wherein groups of animals are force-fed shampoo until most of them die? And finally, ask: given that none of these tests results in changes that make any of their products safer, why does Gillette continue to do them?

If you don't get a satisfactory answer, join us. Boycott Gillette.

THE HALE

Years ago, the astronomer's own body heat was enough to cause serious light distortion.

If the distant galaxies are really far, perhaps the expanding universe will stop one day and begin contracting, to end eventually in a kind of Big Squeeze.
THE HALE

The Hale Hotel was one of the first to open in Encinitas. It has always been a popular destination for tourists and locals alike. The hotel offers a variety of amenities, including a restaurant, bar, and conference center.

In addition to the guest rooms and suites, the hotel also has a pool and spa area. The Hale Hotel is located at 100 South Coast Highway in Encinitas.

On nights when the ceiling was terrible, they'd end up throwing their empty beer cans on the roof of one of the domes.

She looks at me with these scared, watery eyes. I saw the same look once when I was a kid, when my father caught a dogfish.

He hangs up his boots and mumbles for a few minutes. He does not like that he is not a hunter like his father, but he is not. He is a writer, a dreamer, a lover of books. He does not like that he is not a hunter like his father, but he is not. He is a writer, a dreamer, a lover of books.

When he was a boy, he loved to read. He loved the smell of paper and the feel of pages under his fingers. He loved the stories that he would find on his own, hidden among the piles of books his father had left behind. He loved the adventure of creating his own stories and the freedom that came with each new chapter.

But as he grew older, he realized that he was not cut out for the life of a hunter. He was not interested in the smell of the earth or the taste of the meat. He was not interested in the thrill of the hunt or the satisfaction of the kill.

He decided to follow his true passion, writing. He started a blog, a column, a book. He wrote about his love of books and the stories that he had read. He wrote about his dreams and his hopes. He wrote about his father and the man he had become.

As he sat there, staring at his boots, he realized that he had made the right choice. He had found his true path and he was happy. He knew that his father would have been proud of him.

He hung up his boots and mumbled for a few minutes. He did not like the idea of being a hunter like his father, but he was. He was a writer, a dreamer, a lover of books.

BY DUNCAN SHEPHERD

The Building is a quietly, unassuming old building. The facade of a brick church is a charming reminder of the days of church attendance in a town of the past. The architecture is simple, with a rectangular shape and a sloping roof. The entrance is marked by a small, wooden door, and a sign above it reads "The Building." The street in front of the building is narrow and quiet, with old trees lining the sidewalk.

The manner of narrative begins to look a little less clever and a little more earnest and sincere.

WHAT DO THESE THREE WOMEN HAVE IN COMMON?

• They have lost friends.
• They are currently healthy.
• They speak to a senior leader.

Regardless of age, these women are all working hard. They are busy living their lives, trying to stay healthy and active.

Off The Cuff

By Lin Johnson

Are you better at giving or receiving?

Judy Thorne
La Jolla

People can give or receive a lot of things. I always thought I was better at giving because I'm good at shopping, but I found that I was often too generous with my gifts. But giving is not just about the material things. I learned that giving is about being kind and giving attention to those around us. It's about making others feel important and appreciated. Sometimes, the best gift you can give is your time, your patience, or even just a smile. Giving is a way to show love and appreciation to others. It's a form of care and compassion that can have a positive impact on both the giver and the receiver. Giving is a way to connect with others and create meaningful relationships. It's a way to make the world a better place.
You're Single. We're Free. Why Wait?

Use your imagination and fill in all about yourself that your ad leaves out below for matchmakers. Give your full name but DON'T give your last name, phone number or address.
