Last week four guys were hired just to help somebody move out of their apartment in La Jolla. He promised them $20 each, but just paid $30 for everybody.

Round-Up on Grand Avenue

by John Horrigan

The reception that began one hour ago with the arrival of the first two couples ended three and a half hours later with the departure of a Stuart Redefin.

The scene was a reverie. The sounds of the city were muted by the hum of the air conditioning, the lights were dimmed, and the atmosphere was relaxed. The guests mingled, laughed, and danced to the music provided by a live band.

The guests included a mix of friends and family, all dressed in their finest attire. The food was plentiful and delicious, with a variety of dishes to suit all tastes. The drinks flowed freely, adding to the festive atmosphere.

At the end of the night, the guests left the venue feeling refreshed and content. They had enjoyed a wonderful evening, filled with laughter and enjoyment. The organizers were pleased with the turnout and the success of the event, looking forward to planning the next one.

CITY LIGHTS
I turn right and head down Broadway. Over the intersection I turn left and head down Retten. The cool wind feels wonderful on my overheated skin.

I'm not thinking about buying as I walk from Mr. Henry's. Something good must be on. It's warm. I keep my hand on the bag, twisting it between my fingers. I hear the sound of the crowd, the chatter, the laughter. It's a symphony of life. I find my peace in the safety of the crowd, just being.

I turn left and head down Retten. The crowd is thick, the heat is oppressive. I wipe the sweat from my brow and continue on. I'm looking for a place to sit, to rest. I find a bench in the shade, under the trees. I sit down, my breath coming in short pants. I look around, the world blurs in the heat. I close my eyes and let the cool breeze wash over me. I'm alive.

The heat is new for me. I'll get used to it. The cool wind feels wonderful on my overheated skin.

Since the woman's death, murder has been my one and only occupation.

No one was home when the woman entered.

Her death has not been easy to gloss over.

The police have been_regrettably _vague on this matter.

I had a brief conversation with the woman.

She was a woman with a lot to live for.

The woman was a woman of many secrets.

Her death has been problematical.

I have a hunch this woman was murdered.

Now that the woman is dead, I am at a loss for words.

As I trudge down the street, I am thinking about the woman.

Now that the woman is dead, I am at a loss for words.

Now that the woman is dead, I am at a loss for words.

Now that the woman is dead, I am at a loss for words.

Now that the woman is dead, I am at a loss for words.

Now that the woman is dead, I am at a loss for words.

We made plans to meet at the information center on Mission Bay. I arrived there on time. We talked for a while, and she introduced me to her friend. We talked for another hour, and then we parted ways. I called her later that night to see if she'd like to go out again. She said yes!

The Endangered Himba
No Mutillations, Just Good Clean Fun

Three years ago, just two of us were out for a walk and happened to pass by a Himba village. We were both amazed by the beauty of their clothing and their way of life. We decided to stop and talk to them. They were friendly and hospitable, and we learned a lot about their culture.

A Wandering Minstrel, She Gathered Round Jackie and She'll Last You a Day

We met a group of young people who were playing music at the beach. They were having a lot of fun, and we joined in. We sang and danced, and it was a great way to spend the day.
