I have my official Army Air Corps form, which is the personal flying record of each pilot. I also still have a battered, blurry, spiral pocket notebook, 3"x 5", that I carried around to write down radio frequencies fter almost 47 years and a few years of and other stuff that might help keep me alive. I will nagging by another old "Hump" pilot by refer to it also. After we jumped out of that C46A, I tore the name of Art Wollgast, I will write the out all the other stuff in the notebook. Luckily, I had a story down. The First Hump Walk Out to pencil because they were hard to get. The reason I > made notes while walking out was to have some information for G2 (intelligence) in case we got back. I had never known anybody who had been able to get back before, even though we had been losing planes and crews all along. (continued on page 12)

Ed Brassard and Debbi Smith

ADVENTUROUS, ROMANTIC, handsome, I'm 27, 5'8', blue eyes, open-minded, serious, sensitive, sincere, good humor/conversation. Enjoy traveling, beach walks, movies and more. Friendship or serious 20'

Ed: Debbi's response was almost the last one I received. I nearly forgot I had a Phone Matches ad. She had left me a very nice message, and had such a sweet voice.

Debbi: I'm new to San Diego, so Phone Matches was my best opportunity to meet someone. When Ed called, we talked about everything! Travel, hobbies, past Ed: We talked for 174 minutes. I'd never talked with anyone for that long on the phone!

Debbi: When I arrived at the restaurant in Del Mar for our first date. I saw this really good-looking gry standing there and I thought no, this can't be him, so I kept walking. He walked up behind me and said, "Are you Debbi?" and I thought, Ohl It is him!

Ed. After dinner, I had to pick my roommat up at the airport, but I didn't want to leave.

Debbi: We hadn't had enough time with each other; we wanted more. A few evenings later, we had a candlelight dinner on the beach. He told me right away, "I'm not going to let this go."

Ed. It's a challer,ge to let someone know who you are in 25 words, but I feel with Phone Matches, you can express yourself by choosing the right words to convey your ideas.

Debbi: Ed is so trustworthy—he's not a player. He would never compromise our relationship. It's funny cause Ed and I separated from our cxes the same weekend last year, and we celebrated that anniversary
by going to Las Vegas.

Ed: Debbi has true love. Our relationship is very compatible. She's supportive. She's nomanti She enjoys my hobbies with me. We're taking this slowly; we've learned from past relationships Debbi: I live in Del Mar near Ed now. I moved to be closer to work, and to him.

Ed: I was thinking about us getting married next New Year's day.

Debbi: Sounds good to me...

All lovers of art know the work of the great 17th-century landscape artist, (1600-1682), whom I wrote about last week. His contemporary, Philippe de Ch 1674), whose treatments of landscape are considerably less well known, is n passionite personal attitude toward what is happening.

Af the very top of the procession stands. Christ, noblest and most monumental of all.

He only of all the figures, is not against but perfetted, quarter, poised, and majestic, he stands stall, while the outburn rush along his extended hand dangles in complete relatations, as they offer he cert of brailing the blue frequence or celefor of him.
