recontinued from page 1). The pressures of this lifestyle plus a beart attack caused me at age 36 to seek a current sharge. I've always been around boats, fish, and the water. I was two years old the first time my father took me to Catalins. When I was in my early 20s, I worked as a deckhand on a long-range sportfishing beat out of San Diego. Hoved the work, but I was under pressure from my family to get a "real" job". I always warned to return to fishing, so at age 36 I came back to San Diego and the sportfishing business. I worked several seasons out of here and San Pedero and Long Beach.

Like a lot of guys. I got tired of taking other people fishing, so I diffied into the commercial end of the business. I've chassed albacore tuns from Guadalupe Island, Mexico, to a couple of hundred miles usisle the Canadian borler. I've looked for lobster til around San Clemente Island and all over the Cortez Bark and fished rock cod around every island and bank from Cedore Island, Mexico, to the Faraliton Islands off San Francisco I have enough sea stories to fill a good-sized book. During the offi-seasons, I learned shipwright skills and worked in various boutyards up and down the coast. As the fishing business has declined, I've spent more and more time in the restoration and repair of boats.

I did some work on a yacht here in San Diego. I was hired to crew on the boat and deliver it to Puerto Vallarta. No problems on the trip down, and we made it there in seven days. But my latest adventure began when I was returning to San Diego, the Tijuana cops arrested me on Revolución at 9:30 one mornine.

San Diego, the Tijuana cops arrested me on Revolución at 930 one morning.

Five relid you my story, and now Fil take you inside La Mesa prison for your first three days. I'vetalked to several other Americans since I've been here, and every one of them has said someone ought to write about this place. I guess I've been elected.

he first stop was the Tijuana police department for fingerprinting and to be observed by Tijuana cops. I couldn't believe the number of cops that poked their heads in the Next we went to my hotel room. I was in a car with two TJ cops. We were followed by another car with four more. My hotel room was searched, my property seized, and we returned to the police

I was placed in a holding cell at the tourist division while the cops did their paperwork. I signed the statements when told to, and the arresting officers then placed me and my property in a car and I was taken to the Federales.

Throughout the whole arrest procedure, I was treated in a very professional manner by the police. I am sure many people have had different experiences, and in no way would I question their stories. I can only speak for myself. It could be that since I treated them with respect, I in turn was treated respectfully. I don't know, but it is a younger generated to the procession of the proces ation of cops and more professional.

The Federales have a two-story building with holding cells in the back. The jailer takes your shoclaces and your cigarettes. The cells have mattresses on the floor. I was placed in one of the holding cells around one o'clock in the afternoon.

About 2:30 I was taken to the doctor's office. I was asked by a Mexican doctor if I had any chronic illness or contagious diseases. I said no, but I did have a partially paralyzed right arm due to polio at age seven. I showed him my shoulder and popped it in and out of the socket a couple of times. Mexicans all like to see that. I was returned to a holding cell.

Two Mexican prisoners had been brought in while I was at the doctor's office. This was my first contact with other prisoners. One guy was a coyote, running illegal aliens. The other guy had shot another Mexican in some dispute. They both spoke some English and I speak some Spanish femough to get in trouble.) Along with me, these guys were in on federal charges. We seem a council of hours shooting the Priesez:

We spent a couple of hours shooting the heezer.

One of these guys had been in a Mesa Peninentiary. Like most San Diegans, I knew there was a peninentiary in Tijuants, and like most San Diegans i éclár) have a clue as so what it was like. Those guys filled me in a best shey could I had a hard time believing the stories. The worst time I had ever done was three days in the San Bernardino County juil for drunk.

A jailer appeared, and I was escorted to a room on the second floor. It was here an employee of the U.S. consulate general introduced himself, explained my rights, translated my statement, and arranged my phone call to the States. I signed the statement and was returned to my cell. The two other guys were gone.

Around nine in the evening I was escorted to a Chevy Suburban, along with a female prisoner. I was handcuffed in the back and taken to La Ponitenciaria de La Mesa.

prisoner. I was handcuffed in the back and taken to La Penitenciaria de La Mesa.

The first time I crossed the border to TJ was in 1962. My misspent youth led me there and to other border to was very offen before I was 21. Many times I found it necessary to me more more than the common time to me the Titunan tail.

use mortida to keep myself or my buddles out of the Tjiunna jal.

I remember crossing during Nixon Soperation Intercept with a buddy of mine. From the late '6th timough the mind-'70s, I owned a trailer on the beach in Emenada. For years I spent at least two weekends per month there, so I'm not some green grings who get snagged the first time he crossed to Linux. As it there in my cell thinking back, I can remember many times I could have been tossed in here. This time my lock ran out. Oh well, make the most of the time.

T've been called a survivor. Tweive years of living as a Shelter Island what favocommercial fisherman has made me extremely streetwise. In the time I've spent here, every survival skill I've ever learned has been tested. I have absolutely no need to exaggerate anything.

Well, I guess I'm ready to go inside any time you are. Welcome to La Mesa.

f you are here on a Federal offense, chances are you arrived late in the eventing, especially if you're a gringo. I think they don't want to shock you. Your first stop is the office where the paperwork is exchanged. Then you're taken to the infirmary where a Mexican doctor "examines" you.

There is a trusty there who asks you if you needed cigarettes. If you smoke, of course you do. He "kindly" offers you run and get you some. He checked you out to see what kind of money you have and how much. Your change comes back in pessos. You pay him for the run and give him chemittee.

The doctor sits there and watches the whole thing, never saying a word. He is "examining you, You pay around $3.50 for a pack of Mexican Mariboros. But worse, the trusty knows how much and what kind of money you have. Hide your money. You will need it.

You are now officially a nurses, a new gay. When I first arrived, all nurses were housed in a cell on the third floor, in an area known as Las Tumbas. The name is self-explanatory. This is the prison which the prison. It is to be avoided at all cost. If you have committed an offense within the prison that warrants being sent there, which the guard. Two days before I arrived, a gay hanged humself there, the called his parents and bull them he loved them and that he couldn't take two more months in Las Tumbas. What surprised me was, when they cut him down, they found $35 in his pockets. I'm amazed that no one stole the anoney off the body. People have been killed here for much less than that.

Your first night is spent in the edificior mero, the new building. The cells here aren't buil. There are two tiers of buils them beigh, an usuillary bunk and some have one guy on the floor. I spent my first five nights on the third floor in the middle of the Tombs. We had as any as 14 guys sleeping in one cell. That's crowded, especially if you're on the floor and sameone spits from the third bunk. Fights start over things like that. To saved problems, when forced to sleep on the floor, I try to get under the bunks. There's about 18 inches of clearance. It's tight, but no one can storon on your head.

On your first night here, I doubt if you'll sleep at all. I know I didn't. I was befriended by a youngish guard. He was delighted to be able to use his small amount of English, and communication was established.

He told me something I've carried with me, and there isn't a day that it doesn't cross my mind: No preocuper. Those words can mean the difference between survival and a very sick

It means don't worry, but I've taken it to mean much more. Chances are the reason you're here is your own fault; accept that. Bitterness will eat you alive; get rid of it. You are going to be here for a while; accept that. The Mexican paidtish system moves very, very slowly. Use the time here to your advantage. Study. Learn Sonaith (Mexican).

Right now you're confused and afraid. This is perfectly normal. Keep your mouth shut, your eyes and cars open, and your brain working. Most of all, TRUST NO ONE except for Mama Antonia. She is the Catholic nun who lives here.

foreman or anyone else. If you refuse or don't have the money, you will spend your first 45 days doing some of the worst labor you could imagine. The foreman speaks English and he hates Americans.

If you have it, it would be wise to put $20 on a tab at the little store in the holding area.

Tell the store owner, his name is Miguel, that NO ONE else is to use your tab. Keep no money on your person except what you can afford to lose.

At your first chance, open a trust fund through the American Consulate General. If I had known you could do that, I would have saved myself $250 the first week. It costs $15 a month but is well worth it.

I have found the best way to hang onto your money is to wear long-sleeved flannel stairs. Roll the sleeves en, and roll your larger bills up in your sleeves. When you go out in the yard, wear a jecket. Try to snap a cougle of pairs of prison pants and shirts. The shirts have long sleeves, and until you can get supplies sort here, they will work. I'm talking about what eash you want to keep on hand. Not more than 150,000 pesos (about $50 at the exchange rate of 3000 pesos to the dellar). Keep everything else in your trust fund.

Here's some prison money terminology you're going to need. A luca is 1000 pesos. Mexican prisoners will continually hit on you for a luca. A luinna is 500 pesos. While these are just coins, they still add up, and a luca will get you a big cup of coffee. I suggest you carry only a few, and keep them in different pockets so they don't make noise.

on now have enough information to survive your first day. You are awakened early, around 5:30 in the morning. You he taken to the center of the new building for finu. Next you are taken to the "big door." That's the main gate. It's should. 30 it. the morning. You and the other nurvos are led through a small gate to a holding pen you will get to know this area well. It is here you will meet with your lawyer and the American consolate and be notified of matters concerning your case. The little store I hold you should is in the back of his area. You will have to pass through a gate to get to it.

There is a guard shack at the gate by the store, and the guard opens the gate with a string.

Ask permission to pass through the gate. Try to open your account when there aren't too many people around. Don't flash your money.

A word of warning. In this area you will make contact with quite a few Mexicans who speak English. They will try every hustle they know to separate you from your money.

It's almost time for grite. You will go through this ritual for the first three days, Mania Antonia usually explains the process, and if she is there, this is a good time to introduce yourself. It is also a good time to ask her if she will watch over your valuables for a few days.

Grito lasts three days. There are three shifts of guards here, and they work 24-hour shifts. This way all the guards get to take a look at you.

A word about the guards. Treat them with respect and you will be treated with respect. Always ask permission to pass through the gate. Con permiso (with your permission) is the accepted phrase.

Some guards ar: bribable. Twenty thousand pesos will get you out of most minor offense. The worse the offense, the bigger the bribe.

Bribes work to your advantage. If, for example, you want to get into a certain cell in the new building, find out who the head guard is on a shift and give him 50,000 person. If you or your friends on the outside are having trouble getting something through the gate. 10- 02,000 person will usually suffice. Mordida is an accepted practice. Try to find out who the head guard of the building is. The information will come in handy. Also, a cup of coffee or a soda from time to time is good for little favors.

BEING SINGLE IS SO HAVING ANY FUN??

The hardest part of being single is meeting others. I know, I'm single. I often wondered, what am I doing wrong? I'm not into the bar scene. I got to thinking. How many times have you been driving down the road and a beautiful lady or gorgeous guy passed you that you just wanted to meet? Have you ever met somebody who you were interested in meeting again but you were either afraid to give your home phone number or were just too shy? How many times have you placed or answered personal ads, just to be disappointed? And what about these computer dating services that want you to spend $1000-$2000 for a 5-minute video? Give me a break. Well this describes me, and if you are like millions of other American singles, this describes you too.

That's why I started ONE, the nation's largest and most unique singles club!

ONE stands for Outrageous New Encounters, a new way to meet. What you do from there is up to you.

ONE is a national personals club. But unlike the personal ads in all the papers that sound alike, with ONE, you would have actually been seen or have seen the someone before they call. No problems like "the tall voluptuous blonde" who

by the San Diego Historical Societ

Even at the age of 90, the nattily-attired George White Marston had more vigor than many men leader on par with the Burnhams and Spreckels of the growing municipality, a man whose vision encompassed such disparate ventures as Presidio Park and a home for the Navy's Pacific Fleet. Marston's fondness for open spaces and public parks earned him the teasing sobriquet "Geranium George" during his second futile run for the city mayor's post in 1917; his opponent (and the eventual victor) was banker Louis I. Wilde. Ever the gentleman, Marston shook hands with Wilde and went back to leaving his imprint on San Diego. To name just a few of his successes: Presidio Park and the Junipero Serra Museum; founder of the San Diego Historical Society; Anza-Borrego Desert State Park; the local YMCA; the San Diego-Eastern Railway. Marston died on May 31, 1946, with over a half century of civic accomplishments to his credit.
