Incredible Bile

San Diego Union-Tribune re-porter Gerry Braun, in attack-ing Jamie Reno ("Letters," June 18), let his bile get the better of his journalistic accu-racy, committing the very sin of which he accuses Reno.

Braun says in his second paragraph that Reno was "canned by the San Diego

In fact, Reno accepted the

Although I will not comment on the opinions expressed by Ms. Margot Sheehan in her ar-ticle ("One Costs to Park, the Other Doesn't") in the June 18 Reader or her ethics in how she represents herself as a profes-sional (or misrepresented her-self as an alumna of the Bishop's School), it is important to correct two reporting

If Ms. Sheehan had exer-It Ms. Sheehan had exer-cised journalistic integrity and confirmed the name of the bishop-elect when she spoke to him following Bishop's commencement on June 13, she would have known that she would nave known that the bishop-elect to the San Diego Episcopal Diocese was Canon Gethin B. Hughes, not Rev. Eric Menees as re-ported in her article. Father Menees is the school chaplain and delivered the event's invo ion. (Bishop Gethin B.

Hughes was ordained the third bishop of the San Diego Epis-copal Diocese on Saturday, une 20.)

It must also be noted that Bishop Hughes's remarks were not a commencement address. Since he had not yet been ordained and therefore did not have an official role at the commencement, Bishop Hughes's presence at the event was a gracious indication of his interest and concern for the Bishop's School and the Class of 1992. His brief talk was received as a spontaneous greeting to the graduates and approximately 1,200 guests gathered on the quadrangle. Suzanne Baral Director of Public Relations The Bishop's School Margot Sheehan replies: Touche. I was relying on a conversation that I had with the Publis Relations office of the Bishop's School. My head hangs in shame.

"How warm is the water now" asks Jake. "It looks beautiful."
"Looks can be deciving," Mark says. "I'll tally low what. You want to know how to read summer sign?" He gets up, stretches his legs, we see Hobbes, who is now supine in the shady corner of the deck. "Let' so for a double-yoo-ay-el-kay." Hobbes is too smart for that. He's up. Two other barks means he will agree to be left behind when

We dodge the whizzing traffic on La Jolia Boulevard and walk the three short blocks to Neptune Place. There are eight surfers out at Big Rock, which isn't a bad crowd. "Okay," Mark says. "How can you'tell, standing right here on the sidewalk, how warm the water is?" "Ask that guy coming out of the water," says Jake.

"See it he's shivering."
"Okay" Mark turns to me. "You've been away in Washington, DC for six months. Now back in San Diego it's May, warm and sunny. You come down here early so no me's on the beach. The ocean is blue. The morning sun fires off the water like sparklers. Looks like the water's warm. How do you tell?"

Aquaman nods, watching Hobbes, whose tail is vigorous with a scent he has found in the scraggly iceplant next to the sidewalk. "Another thing to check is the sand line," he says. We are walking north. omet ming to check is tie sand iner, he says. We are walking north, past Tom Wolfe's famuos pump house. "Every winter the north swells strip the sand from the beach and move it out past the reef. Then every summer, the swell shifts from the south and deposits it all back." "Every summer?" Jake asks.

Mark nods. "Never fails."

"Except [1983," I say. "We had huge swells."

that winter of '82. '83. I took years for the sand really to come back." I lived on Nautilus Street then. The memory of those winter nights flashes back — sweating between its sheets as the lugubrious, booming voices of the immense waves churned the primal surfer fear in the pit of my stomach.

"It's still low. See those rocks?" Mark SURFERS GO STREAKING

Jake holds Hobbes's collar as a car cruise by, four guys craning their necks to check out the incoming set. The first wave peaks on the Windansea ref. and two gavs drop on it going opposite directions. Sometimes I like to drive dison, way myself in the cel grass, and just watch the surfers go streaking, overhead, boards skifting quicksiviter traces in the face of the wave, their bodies wavering darknesses against the blue of sky, the turbulence of the breaking wave like the time lapse photography.

when I see my own shadow flashing by on the reef below, I recall the yin of my yang. "Are the fish different here in the summer?"

About eight years ago, Marty Snyderman had tried to get me out to the blue water, 20 miles off the coast, to write about shark diving. He and Howard Hall and Bob Cranston had worked with the intrepid Australian diving duo Ron and Valerie Taylor when the Taylors came to San Diego to find the type of sharks that could be allowed to bite a diver in a new invention: the steel means uit. The San Diego-based underwater photographers had also worked with Marlin Perkins on some of the last spicodes of Maruad of Omaha's Wild Kingdom that featured sharks. But I never did go out: the only angle I could think of was based on the macho-man, look-airne-do-something-dangerous school of first-person ego projection. A stunt. Today, Cranston runs a business called San Diego Shark Diving Expeditions. He's got rivo or three local competions, and at least one goy's running shark-diving trips out of L.A. Every sumturn in a shark cage, their chance to buy a "Shark Divo"! owadays I warn people against coming to San Diego in the summer, but that's when my family made our pilgrimages here from Chicago. The first was in 1961. Someone took us down to Union Station, where my mother and father and the five of su side piled onto the Super-Chief for the three-day ride. The first time I ever tried to say up all night was on that train. I wanted to see every mile of the Not tourism but family its often we userstand. My mother was one (2 La and all but 2 of the siblings lived in San Diego. Many of them had loss of children. On that 1961 trip, my grandparents were celebrating the state of the siblings with the control of the siblings in the sibling side anniversary. Somehow we crammed everyone into Aust Sarah's place on Epanow Street in Californic but on subsequent summer vists. I learned that Californic but on subsequent summer vists. would hold us all.

My immediate family made the train trip one other summer. During that second visit, my cousins Terry and Elleen taught me to do the cha-cha in the front bedroom of the Tuckers' house on Hawley Boulevard. My first swid home and cha-cha 'do to the Boach Boys on northwest side memory of Beach Boys musts took root in that room. I went home and cha-cha 'do to the Boach Boys on northwest side off Chicago, but san Diego drew hock. By the time I was it my carly teems. I began saving up my money canned from bully string, and I had enough to buy mysteff a youth

I would arrive in San Diego wanting observable to go to the beach. Bit the beach didn't interest I erry and Eileen much probably in purt because it was gloomy, gray June, but also because my coustins were essentially, home-bodies. We spent a lot of time in their little bungalow in Normal Heights putting on make-up, and a lot of time reading myseries that we bought in the used book store on Adams Avene, and a lot of time listening our aunts' gossip about the soap-operatic daily doings of our huge extended family.

The summer I was 15, in 1968, one thing did take us out of that nest. Terry had gotten the notion that we should talter paper the old jalopy of my coasis Eddy, house from fighting as a Marine in Vietnam the wanted to go back. I havely knew him, but he seemed fierce, crade, violent, exotic. The three of its grid politic endesloys and made at least on octurand forays before we succeeded, each time laughing until we cred and wet our pairs. But most wonderful for me was being outside in the dark in a place where summer nights got coil to the point of being chilly and where bushes wore perfumes much niere than any lowned. To this day, I find myself outside an inghit in the summer, and the combination of scent and temperature makes that the paper 25 years are rivist to San Depos before. I move the politic paper and the control of the part of the paper should be a proper should be proposed before the control of the same of the same three should be a find the paper and falters' inactivity that I got myself to the beach, riding two or three bases before disemboring at Scripps, Augumm. Of course, there was no sum, a child, damp wind blew off the waves. On a long walk through the residential streets of La Jolla Shores, I took lost of pictures. I look at them today and an reminded how wondrously love regarded someone's stand of brougainville, as I pimper of the mouthy-looking core.

That year, when I returned to Chreago, I lasd the sense of having the pain in shups. All my summer squittens in San Depos creded like that, with the Shock of waking up again in burly, caffernance, busting strained to the proposition in San Depos creded like that, with the Shock of waking up again in burly, caffernance, busting of the strained proposition in San Depos creded like that, with the Shock of waking up again in burly, caffernance, busting of the strained proposition in San Depos creded like the proposition in San Depos creded like the

The #80 hus leaves 3an Diego State, barrek down Monteuram and down Farmount, out of ESD. The route twists between the shopping centers in Mission Valley, stopping for tourists in fresh tennis shoes and Zoo shirts, for old ladies with rattling metal earts. The ride is long. The fast cruse out West Mission Bay Drive is a temporary relief. The turn right at Belmont Park, onto Mission Boulevard, precedes the longest stretch, the grinding up to speed and jerked-to stops for stop signs are pulling out of parallel parking spaces, the bus stops every block. I continue to feel, just to keep you posted, that Kurt Russell can do no wrong — except of course to appear in the wrong movie, and perhaps to have been born in the wrong age. But voluntary unemployment would hardly be the least of the available evils.

Does the Goldwyn/Landmark chain, now with nine screens around town, bring in too many movies for their own good? (I mean the movies own good, not so much Landmarks.) One odd outcome of our overexposure to the trailer for Batman Returns over the past months is shat the use of alternative takes in the final cut—as in Mischelle Pfeiffer's different reading of the line, "I hadd go home and feed my cat"—makes the movie seem internatively incorrect. Thank The Catholic Church And Computer Archives For Genealogical Nirvana

It's ironic that 500 years ago, Spain It's ironic that 500 years ago, Spain led the world in the age of discovery. And for those of us involved in genealogical and historical research, Spain is now leading the way in the age of information. Local researcher Carlos Yturralde is talking about a computer and satellite system that provides access to documents. provides access to documents loused in the Archives of the Indies in Seville, Spain. That depository contains 9 million maps, drawings, letters, church records, and other documents detailing Spain's colo-nization of the New World. For nization of the New World. For anyone tracing a Hispanic family tree, the records are a bonanza. Yturralde is a member of the Society of Hispanic Historical and Ancestral Research, an Orange County-based group that has joined with the Escondido Public Library to offer classes in how to present with the Escondido Public Library I offer classes in how to research Hispanic family roots. The classes are held in the library's new annex, are held in the library's new annex, depository for books and document related to California — particularly Hispanic — history and genealogy. The core of the collection was a bequest, and librarian Kathy Cook hopps the cumentary out the librarian to the librarian control of the control of the sources will make the Pioneer Room amjor center for researchers into Carlos Yurralde has traced his family back 16 generations, into the 1908s. In this classes, he bases of the 1908s in the state, he bases of the 1908s in the state, he bases of the 1908s in the state, he bases of the 1908s in the state of the 1908s in the 1908

Yturralde points out that "the Spanish were tremendous record keepers, particularly the Catholic Church. I can find church records in Church. I can find church records in Spain back to the 1300s for one area that I'm researching. It's also been easy for me because my ancestors lived for 250 years in the Hidalgo de Parral area of Chihuahua, an area of Mexico that kept very good records;

Yturralde began his genealogical search on a business trip to Los Angeles. "The party I was to meet didn't show up, so I made use of the time by going to the Mormon of Mexico. One of my ancestors hap pened to be a mulatto, which means that one or two generations back, that ancestor came from, probably, Africa. And I have other lines in my Africa. And I have other lines in my amily where I'm descended from Indians. It's very difficult to do research in those areas, since most of the Mayan and Artec records have been destroyed and the Indians of northern Mexico didn't keep those types of records, as far as I know. But of courses, you're going to have so many ancestors when you start searching back that you'll always find someone to investigate. I think I counted about 2000 grandparents I had by the time I'd gone back ten Church's Family History Center there. I'd been doing research into my family for about 25 years and basically hadn't gotten anywhere. But that day I started looking through what they call the

"The greatest amount and the most efficient Hispanic research information is available through the Archives of the Indes, in Seville, Spain, IBM, with the Fundacion Ramon Arcess, a private foundation, and the Spanish ministry of culture have combined to computerize the records in that archive. During the colonization of America, Spain International Genealogy Index. The IGI is organized by country and by colonization of America, Spain colonization of America, Spain began to warehouse all the docu-ments that were generated from New Spain in the archives at Seville. The Spanish government decided to computerize those records and make them available to more people more state, and I already knew that my father was born in Chihuahua, so I looked in the state of Chihuahua under his name, and I found, not him, but the record of my grandfanum, but the record of my grandia-ther's marriage to my grandia-ther's marriage to my grandia-began to piece together my ancestry. The University of Arizona publishes a source called Documentary Relations of the Southness', a bio-graphical index of names that appear in documents from 1520 to them available to more people more easily. They scanned and digitized the documents and put them in a data base. And in the process they enhanced the records. With the computer, they were able to block out any water stains or other deterioration, which shows the computer of the compute appear in documents from 1520 to 1830 in northern New Spain oration to make them more readable. "Those gumball boots never froze."

If you like your theatrical meanings tied with ribbons and bows that read "author's message," if all you want from an evening at the theater is a one- or two-sentence paraphrase of what you have experienced, then the Sledgehammer Theatre's Terminal Hip won't be your cup of Darjeeling. Sub-Theatre's Terminal Hip won't be your cup of Darjeeling, Sub-tiled "A Spectral History of America Through the Medium of Bad Language," Mac Wellman's 45-minute monologue at first alpace appears to vallow in oblivacion. It loather grammar, especially getting nouns and verbs to agree. It brims with non-equitura, even in the middle of a sentence. And it seems deter-mined not to communicate anything more than nonsensical jibbernia. An example: "Loudle be might have did if, insofar as it mights could, each word with a dairy on it..." Another: as it migrita count, each work with a usasy on it... Hother?
"You don't not have no super show when as how you don't need not to never." Daunting? A bit. But, to choose from Wellman's Babel of whirling words, you won't need to be a "quadraphonic excepte" not only to "debamboozle" the piece but also to appreciate it.

A lot of what happens in Terminal Hip deliberately defies reading explanation. Wellman prefers his words set free from the rigid structures of grammar and syntax. In what sounds like automatic writing — but in 1— Wellman is adept at substituting the unexpected word for the obvious choice, the clicked for the fresh, and thetorical repetitions ("Lefs face Li.") lound with unthertical observations of the control of vations ("Let's face it, grunting hair is a bad way of supreme being"). The results are often striking combinations of words that, rather than narrow down to a single, graspable meaning. that, rather than narrow down to a single, graspane meaning, open up new possibilities. They don't come to you locked in the familiar logic of "proper" English. But then again, how much language in your daily life does?

Toward the end, Wellman recalls Abbott and Costello's famous linguistic routine, "Who's on First?" - which operates in a manner similar to Terminal Hip. As comedy, the Looket-like Fragonards in that early period), Fragonard found his cown, strikingly original manner, well represented by the Timken picture, which is one of his most brilliant masterpieces. Look at the Boucher and Fragonard paintings side by side (as they are hung), and you will see in both cases beautiful, elegantly dressed, young men and women, languidly enjoying themselves in a fouriard to the least produce seeting, with minutely detailed ground vegetation and towering trees. But otherwise, the two pictures belong set-hetically to different worlds. The textures of the Boucher along are glosed, sculptureque, and reheiscally to different worlds. The textures of the Boucher (sided 1738) are silken and glassy. The color values are deep, rich, and intense. The human beings are posed, sculptureque, and reminiscent in their pretriness and plassity of poreclain figurines. The figures are arranged theatrically on an axis angled upward and into the painting in a spuri abreadon of the Bureque.

The Fragonard (probably late 1770s), in contrast, shows all its major elements (the oak tree at the right, the seated, reclaiming, or sanding people, the stone balustrade, the broad, shallow flight of steps at the left) on a plane absolutely parallel to the picture surface. The human figures are not sculptural, not porcelain-like, not sharply delineared, but have a lat, sketchy quality that makes one aware of the impulses vitality of the artist's brush and of the streaks and dabs of the paint itself. Such sketchy, dissolving forms and textures are everywhere: the fore same of one paint itself, some success, dissouring forms and setums are everywhere the fore-ground vegetation, the stairn continues with their loosely flowing folds the sprinkled dals of color that shimmer over the foreground tree, its leaves above, the specials on its trunk, and the sharbery at its foot the blarred planne like masses of spraying water that energe yasquely from the background for indicate a large, sculptured fountain; rudeed, all the background forms an indistantly bounding sethericum all arracture, dutters or foliogie in their, thins, and dark, low lying clouds of indefinite contours.

What is hardest to define is the breathtaking could of indefinite contours.

Everything here shimmend delicate, pastel light flutters over all the surfaces, not give in conditions and salingle, coveral to the surfaces, not give in conditions and salingle, coveral teraderly musted, luminour salinance, more light than substance. most pervasively — a pearly gray (the shrubbery at the foot of the oak, the barrel and little overturned wooden board in the foreground, the costume of the woman seated under the oak and of the blindfolded figure under the parasol, and the entire background; fountain, sculpture, architectural structure, foliage, clouds). The leaves of the oak tree reiterate these colors in intermingled clusters of the same pink-peach, the same ochre tree reiterate these colors in intermingled dusters of the same prink-peach, the same other gold, the same whittsh grays.

If Boucher, the conservative court painter, looks backward and consolidates the stylistic achievements of the 17th Century in a charming graceful, unberoot manner, Fragonard looks radically forward to certain of the stylistic innovations of Romanticsm and Impressionium. No one would mistake this painting for a Remoir or a Moner, but the shimmer of light, the paster colors, the dissolving of plastic form, the defection of energy toward the paintings surface, the colors when the dissolving of plastic form, the defection of energy toward the paintings surface, the colors in the dissolving of plastic form, the defection of energy toward the paintings surface, the colors are colored to the color of the color o

Sometimes, however, the relaxation is given a tighter focus, a directed energy. This is to Sometimes, however, the retaxation is given a tighter focus, a directed energy, i mis to be found not only among the participants in the various games, but also in some of the onlookers. It is particularly prominent in the Timken picture, where it provides one of the basic organizing principles of the painting and generates an unusual visual tension. The blindmans buff of the title is confined to a small area to the right of the picture's center, where, under a pink-peach parasel, the blindfolded figure is surrounded (in a gyratory motion) by the chil-dren who are playing the game. For the other figures, however, the chief object of interest lies outside the painting, off to the left. The two seated women and the reclining man are seen in profile, as they gaze toward that invisible event. Even the blindfolded figure is facing in the same

It would surely not be typical of Fragonard to imply a dramatic mystery — he is not at all that kind of artist. Whatever these people are looking at may be supposed to be one of the all that kind of artist. Whatever these people, are looking at may be supposed to be one of the expected entertainments in such as senting, another gas, perhaps, or a pupper shows, such as the one various onlookers have their eye fixed on in the Feta and Saint-Cloud. Nevertheel effect is structurally a powerful one, especially with all the gazers lined up in a low straight across the causas, and with the openiness of the pixture's left border emphasized by the missiness, and relative lack of objects and strong colors in that area. The openiness of the left is in contrast with the endoscolars of the right side of the paint-lative contrast, and the properties of the colors of the right side of the paint-lative colors. ing, where the oak tree, curving up from the bottom, swings outward and then back, providing a frame for the human events. This swinging motion is a crucial determinant of the pictures rhythms, repeating itself in a more concentrated, spiral form in the blindman's bulf group, and more broadly in the recessional movement leading from the woman under the oak, back through the fountain and its statue, and up toward the architecture and vegetation in the background at the left. The curving and weiging motions, on the surface or in depth, are suswely juxtaposed with the straight thrust toward the left, giving the picture a strong dynamic structure. Other formal analogies reinforce the firm structural framework the ovals of the foreground barrel-rim, the two parasols, and the fountain, the rectangular, boxlike forms of the tipped-over board in the foreground, the portion of the balastrade over which the man is learning, and the misty architectural block in the background; the subtley suggested similarities between the woman seasu under the oak and the shadowy status surmounting the fountain (whose cetteded arm might even be thought to be pointing at the interesting, undefined event everyone is looking at 1).

arm might even be thought to be pointing at the interesting, undefined event everyone is looking at).

This is, then, a complex picture, highly organized, painted with a sweeping billiancethe reflection of a commanding artistic intellect. A careful, analytical contemplation of its composition, its color, its drawing, and its treatment of light will contemplate on office composition, its color, its drawing, and its treatment of light will read to the color of the position of the painting it charm and decorativeness. But beyond all such analyses, what is hardest to defice is the breathtaking portic suggestiveness of this picture. Every element in it— the figures' wird attention and its unknown object, the energetic and delicate beauty of the oast trees, the obscured forms of the mist-enguled background, the threat of imminent storm stirring in the dark douds, even the baref and the little wooden board, rather carelessly shandoned in this luscious pleasure garden by park-brepers who have left before the festivities have begun, and who as laborean day growmaps have no time for whimsical aristication-childidal pames like bilindimant buff—all this projects an aura of meaning over the scene, imprecise in contour like the picture's own subsect at the painting from the present (which is of course the only way we can look at it), it is hard not to be of the opinion that these lowely, elegant, side, interchangeable aristocrasto ought to be paying more attention to the gray goldoss hidden in the fountain's symme may be a disregarded warming of things to come; and that it is not only the figure ur der the parasod who is

Cheryl Ann Fulton of Quaternaria

I expect that no one who was present in St. James by-the-Sea for the Machaut concert by Quaternaria and Friends will forget that enchanting evening. It gave lovers of early music the opportunity to hear a variety of works by the greatest composer of the 14th Century, in performances of extraordinary musicality.

Guillaume de Machaut (1300-1377) was a compo chiefy of secular music, most of it vocal, in styles ranging from the conservative and nostalgic (looking back to the previous century) to the previous century) to the previous century in some ways anticipating certain 20th-pring musical activities.

time the melody is repeated its rhythm is radically changed, and each time the rhythmic pattern is repeated its melody is radically changed. The same principle may extend to the wocal lines. This structure, like the poetic texts, is in most cases virtually unintelligible to the listener.

Furthermore, the writing is far more concerned with the horizontal independence of each melodic line than with the vertical harmonies produced by their interaction. There is usually little imitation among the voices to unify them. The composer has put everything together with great ingenuity, but the large part of this ingenuity can be perceived only when one reads and analyzes the score. Except for a greater emphasis on the consonance of simultaneous tones in Machaut, these pieces have close affinities with the serial music of Anton von Webern, whose intricacies are also more discernible to the eve than to the

At the same time - and here is the paradox -Machaut is one of the great melodists of all time, and his melodies are frequently of an exceptional emotional intensity. In addition to the dizzyingly complex works of the motet type, he composed a large number of pieces (many in the category of lais and virelais) that are nothing but the outpouring of a single impassioned voice, on a completely understandable text, and perhaps with the embellished doubling of an instrument in the background. Even where other independent melodic lines are added (presumably to be played instrumentally these are subordinated to the singer, whose melody long-spun-out or re-peated — constitutes the heart of the piece. Such, for example, were the com-plaintes Tels rit and Dous amis, the virelai Comment qu'a moy, the ballade Honte, paour, doubtance, and the Lat de la rose on the Quaternaria program, each of these ravishing pieces ravishingly

The performing forces of the group consisted of two singers (mezzo Karen Clark Young and Allan Fast, a counter tenor with a similar alto range) and two instrumentalists (Roy Wheldon playing the viola-like vielle and Cheryl Ann Fulton playing two types of medieval harp) The musicians performed in varying combinations sometimes all four together (as in Amour et beaute) sometimes as ingle voice with a single instrument (as in Dous amis, where Young sang the incredibly beautiful and — happily — many times repeated melody, while the vielle provided the accompaniment), sometimes by the two singers alternating or in unison, along with one or both of the instruments.

The two prime instances of the latter procedure were Tels rit and the Lai de la rose, each of them a quite overwhelming masterpiece. In Tels rit, a bitter (and characteristically 14th-century) meditation on the treachery of Fortune, the heartbreakingly sad melody to which the lengthy text is set was sung four times by the mezzo, four times by the counter tenor, and then once by the two in unison (the entire piece is actually about four times as unison (the entire piece is actually about four times as long). The similarly long Lai de la rose, in contrast, is through-composed except for the first and last sections, which are sung to the same melody. Within this frame, the composition consists of a lengthy series of differing poetic forms, each set to its own melody, without repetition — so that the piece goes on, at heavenly length, ever changing, ever new, like the experiences of courtly love the text celebrates, until finally we come full circle. Once again, the

A typical Machaut motet, for example, might consist of three or four substantially independent melodic lines, one of two played instrumentally, the other two performed by singers. Each of the singers would have his own poetic text, often quite lovely and touching, but since these texts are being using simultaneously, both of them are more or less unitelligable to the listener. Examples on the Quaternaria unitelligable to the listener. Examples on the Quaternaria 3300 sq. ft. Calumet K. Henderson program were the motet Amour et beaute and the double ballade Quant Theseus.) Meanwhile, each instrument has an "All Is One" additional melody, constructed according to complex two singers alternated, except at the beginning and the end, when they sang the verse in unison.

This singing could be held up as an ideal for the principles: a rhythmic pattern of a certain length is superimposed on a melody of a different length, so that each 4th Annual Celebration of Native American Art June 12-August 1 performance of early music. The result was that the fortunate audience (Fortune is not always treacherous) got to hear superb 14th-century music in a way that conveyed the highly emotional quality of that century's art. It was, after all, the century of Dante, Petrarch, and Chaucer; of Giotto, Duccio, and Simone Martini, Austerity, abstractness, impersonality, indifference to passion, the lack of the heart's vibrations — these were scarcely prominent characteristics of artistic expression in that age, whether secular or religious. However, the portaphone is nothing compared to my-new fax machine. For it's years this newspaper and I used a mes-sneger service that was efficient and orquish offer. Now I hate-walking into my study, where the mechanical serpent may have spewed forth a carpetful of white sheets, connected and undulating. It's had enough to wake up to the ring of the fax, the everyone espects me to fax them back. I stand there, palms sweaty, inserting paper, only to see them return to me by falling on the floor. In that long ago when you sent out at memo or manuscript, it was gone, out of your mind and hand. Now it lies there and won't go away. At the end of the week, my recy-cling bin is filled with You-Fax-Me-I'll Fax-You nonsense. Surely the fax won't enable me to live longer.

* A VERY SPECIAL ELECTION '92

Ol' George Pros: Kicked Hussein's Cons: Dan's ghost

Says he loves Brewski's. Just turned 62 and is now eligible for Social Security and Food Stamps.

Silber

(B)

Slick Willy

Pros: Big with the ladies

Cons: Big with Arsenio; just plain big (in his own mind)

George: Republican incumbent, likes fishin', baseball, and wife is featured on the one-dollar bill.

ROSS: Independent thinker, member of Compton Country Club, no real agenda, can balance the budget with his pocket change.

"R.J." Silber: Breweki's Prez, your affectionate "schmooz moneter."

Democratic hopeful, yet another white-guy who can't play sax.

JAPS BOMBING HONOLULU NILA; SHIPS BAT

150 Nipponese Bombers Bla Naval Bastion at Pearl Harb

RAID ON OAHU WITHOUT WARNING WHITE HOUSE DECLA ARMY, NAVY ORDERED TO EXECUTE DEFENSE ORDER

A little over fifty-and-a-half years ago this week, the day that would "live in infamy" began on the Hawaiian island of Oahu as the first wave of Japanese Zero fighters and torpedo bombers swooped down out of the glare of the morning sun and banked towards seven battleships moored at Ford Island's "Battleship Row." Simultaneously, Nipponese dive bombers began strafing and bombing Wheeler Field north of Pearl Harbor and Hickam Field to the southeast. A second wave of Japanese planes repeated the assault an hour later. Here in San Diego, the Union printed and rushed to the streets the above "extra" edition even as the attack was underway. Sailors ran for their duty stations, and frightened civilians crowded around radios and newsstands. Within days, a metamorphosis the likes of which will probably never be repeated manifested itself; San Diego mobilized and became synonymous with the national war effort. Within four years, our population increased over 65 percent; housing developments (Kearny Mesa, Linda Vista) sprang population increased over o5 percent; nousing developments (kearny Mesa, Linda Vista) sprang up virtually overnight; the Convair plant along the Pacific Highway began churning out B-24 Liberator bombers and PBV "Flying Boats." Rationing and "loose ipps" became the buzz words of the day, as youngsters collected yellowed newspapers and scrap metal while their parents tended Victory gardens and fretted over that months allotment of ration stamps. It was the dawn of "Rosie the Riveter" as San Diegans, male and female, swelled local employment ranks by the thousands. When rationed goods - soap, gasoline, tires, sugar - ran short, workers poured what little monies they had left over into government Series E war bonds. Meanwhile, back in the Pacific, the island-hopping Japanese were gradually stymied. In fact, in the 44 months of fighting that followed the December 7 raid, the United States Navy sank every one of the Japanese aircraft carriers, battleships and cruisers of the Pearl Harbor strike force. Japan ultimately surrendered on September 2, 1945, in a ceremony on Tokyo Bay, Japan.

You're Single. We're Free. Why Wait?

Introducing Reader PHONE MATCHES, a Great Place to Meet Single People. You are provided with a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds. You also receive a free "voice mailbox"— a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone phone.

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: To place a free Phone Matches ad, fill out the coupon below and mail or FAX it (233-7907) to us. (If faxing, please photocopy the coupon first and then fax it. The newsprint doesn't reproduce well.) The deadline for receiving free Phone Matches ads is Saturday at 7am. Free ads are 25 deadine to receiving tree Private statutes as a Saturday at rain. Free ans are 25 words or less and run for two weeks. No free ads will be accepted over the phone or in person. Ads with more than 25 words cost $1.20 per additional word. We'll send you a 5-digit mailbox number (to be printed in your ad) and a 4-digit security. code for exclusive access to your response

You may also place a late ad until opm Tuesday by phone (235-8200), in our got fitted (1703 India St. at Date St., downtown), or by EAX (233-7907). The charge for three late ads is $20 for the first 25 words plus $1.70 per additional word. Adsplaced by phone or by FAX are with Visa or MasterCard only. Limit one Phone Matches ad per person per two-week period.

HOW TO USE YOUR VOICE MAILBOX: After you receive your mailbox

HOW TO USE YOUR VOICE MALIBOIL. After you receive your maithou, number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction. Call 522-1966, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. Use your introduction to tell more about yourself than your aid does (see below for guidelines). Give your first name, but DON'T give your last name, phone number or address. Make sure you ask your callers to leave their names, phone numbers and the best times to call them. You can re-record your personal introduction once per 24-hour period. All introductions are reviewed by the Reader and go on-line within 24 hours.

on-line within 24 hours. To listen to your responses, call 527-1966 any time. 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You can replay any response or move ahead to the next one If you choose to move ahead, the previous response will be erased, so have a pencil and piece of paper ready! You must have a touch-tone phone to record a personal introduction or listen to responses. QUESTIONS? Call 235-8200, x 268
