or 27 years I was a drug dealer. Circumstances have forced my retirement, but it was jolly good fun while it lasted. Naturally many will find this to be offensive, but then, what do you gentle souls really know about "the trade"? The drug trade is merely business. A risky business, but business nonetheless, the bastard child of the great pharmaceutical houses. The demand they created lives on, and we are only here to fill it. (continued on page 16)

Just Trying To Clear Up A

Few Inaccuracies While at the Scripps Clinic at Torrey Pines a few days ago, I picked up a copy of the San Diego Reader. What a great surprise — the article about "The Frontier They Want Us to Forget" by Margot Shechan (September 10). It brought back old, old memobrought back old, old memo-ries. I was never a resident of the Frontier housing, but I lived in the center of it all— before it was built in the 1940s. My home was in "Dutch Flat," although Sheehan has it located a little to the south of Nashville St. was the main drag. I grew up on Nashville and Western Just above Dutch Flats was the old Silvergate Racetrack; and a little above that, to the northeast is today's Sea World. The sketched plot plan on the same page is much inaccu-rate — most of those streets were never put in, and I never heard of the Bayside Country Club. I guess it was never built. I think Sheehan ran into a little misinformation in her re-search: Midway Dr. was not named that because it was midway between Mission Bay and the harbor. Most of Mid-way was in the Mission Bay area. None of it was near the harbor. It ended where Claude narbor. It ended where Claude Ryan's airport was located— near where the post office is today. Incidentally, Ryan sold out about 1939 or '40 and blew out of town as smoothly as he blew in, years before. He meandered around and ended up in Hemet — of all places — where he built another airport and field, which bears his name to this day.

Mr. Matthews as stating that in 1955 San Diego was "very segregated — as segregated as any city in the deep South." I any city in the deep South." I don't remember it that way when I lived there in the 1930s and early '40s. I remember a few blacks at Pt. Loma High School. When I was a lifeguard in '39, '40, and '41, the blacks seemed to stay to themselves on the beach. Their preferred beach was to the north of Crystal Pier in Pacific Beach. The whites and the lifeguard station were to the south of the pier. Blacks didn't have to segregate at the north of the pie they seemed to prefer it that way. There was no law or or-dinance to the contrary that I can remember.

I don't remember base-baller Don Larsen at Pt. Loma High, but I think he was there after WWII. I was at Pt. Loma in the mid- and late '30s. I re-member Faye Emerson, later actress and daughter-in-law of Pres. Roosevelt, and Florence Chadwick. long-distance Chadwick, long-distance swimmer. I still believe it was Faye's cheerleading that caused the Pt. Loma football team to be undefeated four straight years.

The trolley line Sheehan speaks of briefly ran from the speaks of theirly ran from the plaza downtown all the way to La Jolla, via Kettner Blvd., past Five Points, over the Pacific Highway and railroad tracks on a very high wood trestle corner of the marine base)

Pete's extended family President George Bush, who claims a Houston hotel room as his residence for voting purposes, may be going to too much trouble. California Governor Pete Wilson appears to have found an easier way. The governor owned a modest two-bedroom condo near Midway Drive and West Point Loma Boulevard, until he sold it a year ago in June. Though he never lived there and leased it out, Wilson and his wife Gayle used the there and leased it out. Wilson and his wife Gayle used the unit as his voing address for about three years. Then, on March v, the state's first couple shifted their official residence to a Misson Hills home owned by top Wilson aide Robert S. White. Debtor's Prison

By R.V. Scheide

It's a lesson every Navy enlisted man learns soon after boarding his first ship. Somewhere up above in the superstructure of the vessel is a very special place called Officer's Country, and it's off limits to him.

This is the way of the sea. Those in command have always been rewarded—perhaps rightfully so—and Officer's Country is part of that reward. Even the lowlest enging sleeps snugly in his two-districts of the country of the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the country in the country is part of the country in the count

Things moved quickly after he arrived at his new duty station in San Diego. The U.S. went to war with Iraq: the Frederick went to the Persian Gulf. English made petty officer third class. He also got married. The Navy continued to treat him well, and he was planning to re-enlist. He was a 21-year-old African-American on the rise. But last spring, something went wrong. It wasn't exactly the Navy, more like the Navy life. The Frederick was operating off the California coast, taying out all week and coming back on the week-ends. Petry officer English was leaving most of his paycheck at home with his welfs, so she could take care of the bills. In early April, he was surprised to come home agd find his wife gone and a yile of bills that had been unpaid for months.

He faced 20 years in federal prison for what he had done.

The morning fog is thick over the U.S. Naval Station at 32nd Street. It is 8 a.m., and a chorus of the "Star-Spangled Banner" can

But he kept his act together exceptionally well, considering his 12-year habit. He was quite proud that he never took a drink and that he kept his liningly a fortune selfing the white provider, given his considerable retail cliented. But as it was look lept him after a fortune selfing the white provider, given his considerable retail cliented him. He was a money-maker though, and that is all that counts.

"Hey, chieff" he whooped at me a I saumered into the shop, it was located in the midst of a dozen little businesses in one of San Marcon's many industrial mazes.

"How are receipts?" I asked as we walked to the back of the "office."

Paulie dug a big wad of cash, mostly 20s, from his pants pocket and counted out about $1500.
"There's more, chief," he muttered hurriedly. "I gotta shake it outta some deadbeats. I'll have coulder $000 for your parker. by Friday, Maybe more."

"Can I still have the new unit!" he asked nervously.
"Can I still have the new unit!" he asked nervously.
"Can I still have the new unit!" he asked nervously.
"The problement." I replied. Just do your beat. Keep a tight grip on the time.

I reached into my parts pecket and removed a double-bagged ounce of soft, sparkly occaine. Paulie felt its oily texture, smelled its either wash. Na daways, he laid a huge line on a dury mirror he kept in the cabinet, borrowed back a 20 from me to roll into a inbe, and in one humungus snort, the whole business was up up, and away. A broad smile crept across his ming, and he terout a shoop. Then all dignity, he and "New, thind you can be a still dignity the and the still have been a still dignity the and many the still reports of TV you make the course when the course were considered in the cabinet. "Hey, guess what," he suddenly exclaimed, "Guess who came into the shop yesterday aftermoon."

I had a volden feeling of disquiet. "The DEA," I answered.

"Metzger, man' Tom Metzger himself. He brought in a ship of full of TVs. He wants me to repart them for him because he 'so o busy with all his race shit and stuff. Outta sight, huh?"

Paulie and I had had many a laugh about the Big T. That scene on Geraldo was especially hilanous, when little Johnny Metzger started the free-for-all and Geraldo got it in the schnorz with the folding chair. That was theater of the absurd. But this, the country's leading neo-Nazi graining our very active business endeavor with his overflow work? Well, let me be honest. I didn't like it.

Though he was a bright lad, the danger here seemed to be lost on Paulie.

He argued that he really needed the business. Business was always shitty. The shop was Paulie's life, and any port in a storm, etc.

"Tim," I replied, "Paulie is coked to the gills.

If he didn't have his powder, he wouldn't stay awake long enough to be a spy."

"Where does he get it?"
"I get it for him. Have all along. I told you before, I paid for this effort. Am I in trouble?" "Paul does a great job. Do what is necessary."

I sent a letter that night to Carroll's P.O. box

It isn't Metzger's fault if the occasional clever spy corrie-his trust. Most spies, and those were never realized. I started to feel bad, so I wrote Metzger and apologized. All of a sudden, we were at least or

I cannot abide Tom Metzger's vision of a separated world. My own real attitudes are extremely liberal as regards race and reason. I will probably be forever linked to him in a sense as an ultra-nationalist.

I made Metzger an offer. I would put all my data and experiences at his disposal, and we would sue the bejeebers out of the authorities for violations of his civil rights and collusion between the cops and Mo Dees. It would all come

So as time passed and Tom went to jail for the cross burning, we continued to communicate, only by mail because, as Tim Carroll had told me once long ago. "We occasionally monitor Metzger's phone." Translated that meanshe's got a perennial tap.

I drafted a lawsuit myself and filed claims against the County of San Diego and the FBI. The county of San Diego and the FBI and the filed and attempt, it could be a potentially sensational case. As I was told at the onset, any information As I was told at the onset, any information that reached Carroll was passed along to Sullivan at the FBI, so I consider Carroll a surrogate FBI agent. Actually, we seldom saw Agent Sulvan. He would show up at the shop with Carroll now and then to take Paulie to lunch. Paul told me how Sullivan fantasized about hanging out at the shop and when Tom would come in, out at the shop and when I om would come in, strike up a conversation with him — win over the little man's confidence. Maybe find that quarter million bucks. I presume all the stuff we gathered on Metzger and I paid for ended up with this guy on his 'terrorist desk.' I recently received a response from the FBI's littgation section regarding my claim. They asked me six interesting questions, and I sent in my response promptly. I also informed them I was writing an article for possible publication and that they had two weeks to get back to me. The FBI is sort of an unpredictable bunch. It took them six months to even respond. I don't know what they are up to. I don't care what

The second to last letter informed me his entire family had deserted him and he had lost all contact with them. On a more sinister note, he informed me his house had been "burned

He could not understand why the prison wouldn't put my name on the visiting list. They were claiming I had a felony conviction. I did not and had sent the prison all my legal records

At that point I sent Felipe a letter, urged him

I surveyed my uniform before donning my pack. Woodland camo BDU pants were neatly tucked into boots that could have graced any Nazi storm trooper, while thick T-shitt, BDU jacket, and leather gloves completed the ensemble. No cop required. No longs or loose near the look of the property of the pro-portine. I saw that we were ready to go. Our goal awaited us, just over a mile away. Crossing the road in the morning mist, we arrived at a gate that was clearly marked:

arrived at a gate that was clearly marked: PRIVATE PROPERTY — NO TRESPASSING. PRIVATE PROPERTY — NO TRESPASSING. Yeah, right. Across the narrow strip of meadow between the gate and the chaparral, a jeep track led up the slope loward our objective. I climbed over the gate and slipped silently across the meadow, machete in hand to guard against obgs. My partner immediately followed, and spon we were marching up the jeep track, which was surrounded on both sides by thick, gnarly brush. The jeep track was a godsond. We were the control of the property of the child when it ended abruptly in a dense thicket Oh well, it was good while it lasted. Thus began the most heinous bushwhack I have ever done in my life. It took us five hours to reach the base of the cliff, which was less than a mile away. Sticking to a ridge spar and avoid-ing the more densely overgrown valleys to either side, we took turns hacking our way through veg-etation that often towered above our heads. It we had two choices, sink or swim. Pow., a kin-what you're thinking...,"How do you sink or swim in overhead chaparral?"

By removing my pack and diving beneath the surface of the brush, I could reach those narrow spaces and animal tunnels that often intersected at ground level. These passages were usually 12 to 14 inches high; crawling on my stomach and dragging my pack behind me. I made slow but steady progress in the relatively cool shade of the foliage directly overhead. If I was lucky, a tunnel would widen and case my passage: an tunnel would widen and case my passage; an IB-anch tunnel was considered a luxury. When the tunnel ended, there was nothing else to do but surface, forcing myself upon all like magna from the chamber and erupting from the vent with horrible oaths and maledictions.

With no other options available, we were forced to "swim." This was accomplished by an forced to "swim." This was accomplished by an forced to "swim." This was recomplished by an forced to "swim." This was recomplished by an forced to "swim." This was recomplished.

We arrived at the base of the cliff's right side shortly after 1200. Here we were forced to make an executive decision: work our way up to the dome above and blaze up its southwestern face, dome above and blaze up its southwestern face, or work our way over and down to the base of a huge ramp at the lower left center of the cliff. The decision was tough. The ramp looked rad, but it would take us another hour to reach its base, since an especially dome, overgrown thicket lay between it and us. A mere fourth-class scramble and one or two pockets of vegetation separated us from the base of the dome. Naturally, we chose the dome.

Our original plan included a bivouac near the cliff; we had hoped to shed all excess gear and do several routes in shorts and chimbing shoes. One glance at our water supply and I knew multiple routes were out of the question. We had to be used to be a supply of the control of the

We burned another hour and a half during our "island chain traverse." Half of this leg was our "island chain traverse." Half of this leg was completed in darkness. Traversing boulders in the dark is not easy; you must climb onto the damned things first, cross them without slipping and falling into the surrounding brush, and then and rathing into the surrounding review, and then downclimb the opposite ends without getting speared in the ass by countless thomy branches the properties of the properties of the properties as I made my way toward my immediate goal. After a brief rest, we descended into the bush for the last time. we trudged along the asphalt.

We stopped at Stelzer Park before midnight. A working water fountain stood near the parking lot, and we sucked down quarts of the life-giving fluid before refilling the canteens. A phone booth fine, and our host politely ushered us into a com-fortable room at the back of the house. There we met our host's wife, a kind woman who was obviously of Christian upbringing. band had been watching television before we rudely interrupted.

At the bidding of our hosts, J. and J sank into overstuffed armehairs and explained our pres-ence. As soon as she heard the details of our ad-venture, the good wife withdrew into the kitchen and began to rattle the crockery. She emerged minutes later with ice-cold soots and a platful of thick sandwiches. We fell upon these like vullof thick sandwiches. We fell upon these like vul-tures at the kill, devouring all in minutes. We still had food in our packs, mind you, but stale bread and canned frjoles pale in comparison to hot sandwiches washed down with carbonated beverages. I could have used a beer, but there probably wasn't a single bottle of the evil liquid to be found in that God-fearing household. We finished our meal, and our male host

We finished our meal, and our male host offered to transport us back to our vehicle. We bade farewell to the lady of the house and threw our packs into the trunk of the gentleman's car. I looked straight into his eyes and said possum is good food. Now I don't know when possum-hunting season is in California, but if you accidentally smash one while driving down the road, you should be able to legally take the critter home and cook it. I don't think a cop would follow you into your driveway and arrest you for scraping a repulsive-looking, dead possum off Tecolote Canyon Road and taking it home. Last Laugh Is Yet To Come

I recently read Margot Shec-han's column about port com-missioner Lynn Schenk ("San

Why would someone make up personal lies about a person — lies that could only about her After reading the entire piece, I realized it must be some kind of sick joke. Of course, upon asking around the office, I discovered that Margot Sheehan is indeed fa

Schenk May Be The Sweetest Woman In The World

I keep reading with amuse ment the letters of outrage at the fun poked at Lynn Schenk by Margot Sheehan ("San Diego Confidential," Septem Diego Confidential," Septem ber 3). All of these Schenk sup porters decry satire as mali ciousness — they have n sense of humor at all. Many them point to all of Schenk accomplishments as evidence of her good character. Hey, come on, since when do good guys (or girls) finish first? The fact is, I have friends who work in clerical jobs at the Port of San Diego (where Schenk is port commissioner) who are unanimous in their estima-tion: Schenk is an arrogant vindictive person. She may be the sweetest woman in the world to her peers and fundraisers, but she treats the help like crap. Which do you think is a truer indication of character?

But just as there aren's such clear, precise dialogues either. Together, these complementary imprecisions and unclarities approach the disarray of a Cas-complementary imprecisions and unclarities approach the disarray of a Cas-

In a way, this seems a hanne, because Allen's investigation into the mysteries of human compatibility, into the misperceptions and self-decopy, and the proper is gripping enough to hold our attention through all the bucking-bronco anties of the camera. And that's saying something, all the bucking-bronco anties of the camera. And that's saying something, it int's to say that Allen ever delves below the feed of truitims, but these are illustrated in a breezy, accessible, anecdotal, Jenny-Jones-or-Oprah-Winterpy tall-show manner that encourages audience demitdication and participation. (Out of the Dates-from-Hell file: a still-married woman's profane phone calls to the resparated husband from the new dark's apartment and later, the same woman's quibbles and qualifications, apprès a Mahler concert that another we date only wants to hear was "great" ou "retrific" or some synonym.) They are illustrated, too, by a capable cast that includes the hyperintense ludy Davis and the unflappably natural Swhore Politack (director of Toestic, Out Davis and the unflappably natural Sydney Pollack (director of Tootsie, Out of Africa, etc.) as one husband-and-wife team, and the comfortable, predictable Woody and Mis (together again for the last time?) as the other. And Allen's scenes with Juliette Lewis, a precocious teacher's pet in his creative writing class at Columbia University, capture to perfection the dynamics of

Which brings us, I suppose inevitably but I hope not for long, to the matter of "real life" and Woody's interest in younger women and the rest. I would be movie will have would imagine that all the extracurricular activity aro persuaded a sizable share of the general public that Woody Allen may be a

I would imagine, too, that a stable share of citties will be prompted to overcompensate and overpraises to as to lift themselves above the muck and demonstrate which side of the art-and-life issues they come down on. After all to be interested in the word only to the extent that it might be "true" — might belong more in the ball-wick of Lis Smith than that of Vincent Cashy— is not to be interested in it as a movie. Allen, for his part, does not always make it easy to preserve the border: there are pelenty of lines of dialogue guaranteed to extract tittered to extract tittered to extract tittered to extract tittered and the mental of the control of the stable of the control of the control

Well, yes, maybe — if you can believe the inner turbulence is something that materialized all of a sudden and out of nowhere, like a sneeze or a case of plabelists. My own feeling — and who among us knows enough about the man to lay claim to more than a feeling! — is that his turbulence was whipped up by Allen as a conscious and calculated and, he must have hoped, nice change of pace. It fits in well with another feeling I have about the man that, far from being a major American artist dedicated to the manufacture of masterpieces, he is a dutinely misor, modest, rost-ess, industrious before the control of the control of the control something of the control of the control of the control of the control something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the something of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the something of the control of the control of the control of the control of the well as about the ancedotal narrative. Ed Sullivan came up in the bis Sullivan show but the dust, a span of time nearly as long as the program's first run (24 years). But let's not for-get that in 1972 the show was already a museum piece, a throwback to the early days of network TV. During the Traman and Essenhower years, you could catch grab bag variety shows every night of the week. Jack Carson, Eddic Cantor, Dinah Shore, Perry Como. Eddic Fisher, and countless others all hosted live programs with formats very similar to Eds. Few of them survived more than a couple of hem survived more than a couple of survived to the couple of lasted long enough to host the Jack-son Five. end of showbiz, and it showed. In his time, he'd been a sportswriter, a the-atrical agent, a Broadway columnist, and a producer of newsreels about New York nightlife. Some other Broadway wordsmiths had more popular columns (Dorothy Kijgallen, Walter Winchell), but Ed was one of the few who didn't indulge in public How come? I submit that the show's longevity had a lot to do with the personality of the host. Old Stone Face Sullivan had none. He wasn't a performer, didn't hog the limelight, didn't do skits with his guests. He never lost sight of the fact that when the few who didn't include in public feuds or try to be a star in his own right. Like a loyal flack, Ed managed to keep on good terms with all the agents and producers. When he launched his TV program in 1948, they rewarded him by sending him

Poet Gary Snyder Reads from His New Book in La Jolla

Here are some lines from Milton:
"Now, whenas sacred light began to dawn! In Eden on the humid flowers, that breathed! Their morning incense, when all things that breathe! From th Farth's great altar send up sleent praise! To the creater, and has mornin fill! With the state of the creater, and has mornin fill! With the state of the creater. And joined their vocal worship to the choir! Of creatures wanting voice..."

As the mid-56s along with San San Francisco's "Beat" poets) 62 years eld. have much in common, aside from the fact that they both are gifted with the authentic poetic voice. Otherwise, Milton speaks a long-breathed rheworial lime: Swyder-breathed rheworial lime: Swyder-breathed rheworial lime: Swyder-breathed rheworial lime: Swyder-breathed rheworial swyder's are concrete, speton use lash, rotund, generalized words. Styder's are concrete, specific, Milton sets the stensual images in a context of deas that give them meaning, the Creator trude of nature and of the human beings who praise Him. Snyder simply lists the physical experiences, the sense data, making us see and feel and state but explained to the state of the context of the sense and feel and state but explained to the sense and feel and state but explained to the sense and feel and state but explained to the sense and feel and state but explained to the sense and feel and state but explained to the sense and feel and state but explained to the sense and feel and state but explained to the sense and the sen ruined by Adam and Fve's sin and how fallen man lives in alienation from God and nature and himself. But Snyder is a Buddhist poet, whose spiritual sources are Buddhist poet, whose spiritual sources are Buddhist poet and the Confucian harmony between man and nature, between earth and beaven, between individual and community. Snyder has rejected Milton's religion just as he has form and attitude toward language:

No parame, no tail.
Only the weathering land
The wheeling sky.
This is not to say that Snyder's poetry is itself dry and dead, home

People are hearing limit Hendrix guitar rilis in their middle ear. Cithank has a forture chamber for customers behind in their credit card payments. The Dark Agea net here. Visigotha are climbing the city walls. And angry, "fulgent" angels are making visitations around the world proclaiming the end of a cycle. Is this merely "pre-millennism jitter?" Or is it true, as one angle claims, that "Youl is cold and dying and taking the reat of us with him?" — and that myriad angels and archampels are causing to them proades and burnt into a "celestal Werman". A strong measures of both. One of the first sights we see, in the La folla Playhouse's West Coast premiere of the play, is a guardian angel lowered from the ceiling to protect Marisod Perez from harm in the Bronx (from 66.66 secual assults alone, at last count). The final sight we see is angels storming paradise with Uris in — successful? — coup a d'estruly, in be-

Status Beach visited adam Wolpert, whose exhibit I visited (with great pleasure) on an outing to toe Angeles last week, paints still-lifes. This is a genre as deeply rooted in the everyday material radiity of the world as any type of art could possibly be. If first became an established, independent European genre in the 17th Century, when science, philosophy, and practical economics were majerically affirming the power and value of the world of nature, a world whose vast energies were obedient to inherent laws.

The art of painting, at the same time, resched a height of truth in its representation of objects as perceived by the visual sense. Artists now had at their disposal all the necessary techniques for producing the compelling illusion of a sensually present physical world on a two-dimensional surface a mastery of linear and stmospheric perspective, a consummate ablivation of the compelling in the compe

welcome (though flawed) opportunity to see what is probably the single most dramatic of these on stage.

The Madropolus Case is a fantastic tale in the vein of E.T.A. Hoffmann or other Romantic fabulists. A beautiful

singer has had her life prolonged to more than three centuries by a potion concoted by her eccentric scientist father. She has immense artistic success, and she is also irresistible to men. But after 342 years she is bored with everything. She believes in nothing, and even her toying with men's affections is the result of habit rather than interest. Her cold indifference seems to drive her lovers to even greater heights of passion, but she herself cannot be moved. An involvement in a century-old lawsuit leads to the revelation of her secret (which comes as a special shock to one of her lovers, who turns out to be her descendant several

If it was not quite sufficiently electrifying in the Music Center Opera production, the blame cannot be placed on the singers (led by the authoritative Karan Armstrong as the long-lived heroine), the conductor (Jiri Kout, who brought out the tight, driven dynamism of the colorful score), or the orchestra (which played with precision and fire). It was the visual aspects of this co-production with the Deutsche Oper Berlin that detracted from its theatrical power, impeding the direct emotional impact of its story and music

In a manner typical of German opera production these days, stage director Gunter Kramer and designer like interactions of erotism and violence, and the general atmosphere of tense distortion and weirdness characteristic of Expressionist staging — all these were here, achieved with slick competence and often with striking visual effect.

One can understand why the date, the name of Capek (author of the science-fiction drama about robots. R.U.R.), and the fantastic subject matter might have suggested Expressionism as the appropriate style. But both Janacek's music and the modifications he made in the original play run contrary to the assumptions and implications of this style. What makes The Makropulus Case such exciting theater is the intrusion of the fantastic-Romantic into the everyday realistic world of modern Romantic into the everyday realistic world of modern commercial urban life: lawawits, love affairs, family conflicts, preoccupations with money and sex. The gradual uncovering of the herione's horritying secret, in the midst of this normal social life, loses much of its force when everything is telegraphed from the very beginning by the routine Expressionst devices. And what do the unique color, lyricium, and beauty of Janacck's music have to do with sharp lines, monochromatic color schemes, with sharp lines, monocirromatic color scientific, distortions, and mechanizations?

As so often these days in operatic stagings (and not only from Germany), what the audience is forced to look at on stage has an independent asserbtic of its own, instead of helping to reinforce the values inherent in what the composer has done with the story. There may be some composer has done with the story. Inter may or some interesting visual stimulation, but the music-drama as a whole is poorly served, and the audience, continually distracted from what the drama and the music are asying, is short-changed. This production actually came off considerably better if one closed one's eyes: Norman considerably better 1 the crowd only a function to the point, the singers' enunciation was brisk and to the point, the singers' enunciation was exemplary, and in the singing and the orchestral accompaniment one did not have to contend with the tricks and mannerisms of the imposed production to hire interior designers who provide a feast for the eyes as well as for the plate.

The Fortune Cookie displays works of local artists, and the current show features artist Waher Rodondo, Many tony restaurants display art for sale: Piret's (at its prime) in Bncini-sa, Guastaf Anders, the new Trangles, Falco, the Zanzibar Coffenouse. The Fairoux Cafe even added the word "gallery" to its name. Still, it was a new sepreince for me to discover a museum-quality display in a Chinese restaurant.

The natural question is why one would want music to be played so loudly. (Bob says, "The difference is, obviously, be played so loudy: (Bob says. The difference is, obviously, that when it 'real' loud, you can feth emissic, not just hear it.") And when you are in it, on the techno-house dance floor of the Santa Fe doper, you do feel it, you feel 'inwaded by the sound — in your head, in your stornach, in your legs. It annihilates thought, makes speech impractical, if not impossible. You stare at the laser beams, the plumed go go dancers, the "orgy" performers lounging. The rave experience is an experience of being sated, of needs being filled: the preeminent drug of choice is ecstasy, which seems to be taken to provide an excuse for touching, stroking, embracing. These kids don't even drink very much — they don't want to deaden but heighten on his chest and face glowing purple in the light, a veteran of a dozen "rave situations," observes his peers in their baggy, col-orful clothes, their stylized, "sensitivity training"-type behavior. and says, "I kind of like that some of them do ecstasy, as opposed to, like, alcohol, or, like, coke, because ecstasy makes people nice and friendly. If you were to look at a room of people on coke it is usual at ple on coke, it would be torturous. They'd be aggress overbearing, and tweaking — talking a load of shit. If you look at a room of people on ecstasy, everyone is kind and amorous and gentle. It's a 'safe' environment — these kids want to be safe. Today, there's so much violence around. We live in a safe. Foday, there's so much violence around. We live in a violent society. These kids want safety and comfort. Look at a lot of their clothes — they're big, comfortable, loose clothes. Comfort and safety go hand in hand. They want to feel warm. Control and safety go hand in hand. They want to feel warm, at home, like when you're a child, So, if you're going to go out, in today's world, that's the sort of place you want to go, Or, course, the safet thing to do would be to stay at home. But that would be too boring. 'The high-stakes sexual politics of the present age has caused these young adults to regress they have, after all, come to majority during the Plague.

You're Single. We're Free. Why Wait?

Introducing Reader PHONE MATCHES, a Great Place to Meet Single People. You are provided with a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds. You also receive a free "voice mailbox" - a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone phone.

NOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: To place a free Phone Matches ad, fill out the coupon below and mail or FAX it (233-7907) to us. (If faxing, please photocopy the coupon first and then fax it. The newsprint doesn't reproduce well.) The deadline for receiving free Phone Matches ads is Saturday at 7am. Free ads are 25 words or less and run for two weeks. No free ads will be accepted over the phone or in person. Ads with more than 25 words cost $1.20 per additional word. We'll send you a 5-digit mailbox number (to be printed in your ad) and a 4-digit security code for exclusive access to your responses.

You may also place a late ad until 6pm Tuesday by phone (235-8200), in our office (1703 India St. at Date St., downtown), or by FAX (233-7907). The charge for these late ads is $20 for the first 25 words plus $1.20 per additional word. Ads placed by phone or by FAX are with Visa or MasterCard only. Limit one Phone Matches ad per person per two-week period.

HOW TO USE YOUR VOICE MAILBOX: After you receive your mailbox number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction. Call 527-1966, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions.

Use your introduction to tell more about yourself than your ad does (see below for guidelines). Give your first name; but DON'T give your last name, phone number or address. Make sure you ask your callers to leave their names, phone numbers and the best times to call them. You can re-record your personal introduction once per 24-hour period.

All introductions are reviewed by the Reader and go

To listen to your responses, call 527-1966 any time, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You can replay any response or move ahead to the next one If you choose to move ahead, the previous response will be erased, so have a pencil and piece of paper ready! You must have a touch-tone phone to record a personal introduction or listen to responses.

We have our answer, "Of course."

Things are grim, the Lightning Bolts are 0 and 3 with another certain loss coming this Sunday. It's time for San Diego Charger's head coach Bobby. Ross to find himself a quiet room and sit down, hands folded on lap - no wig-lign, no squirming, and consider the factor Scherill movicational game plan. Readern may recall, a few weeks back, when Sherrill was preparing to fave another to the six the back of Times Tomborne. An ordinar man which face ancient for- him- the hated Texas Longhorm. An ordinary man might have X-ed and O-ed, kept his lows working last threatened the kids with loss of sports cars, spending money, and ferminine admiration. But lacks Sherrill is a winner. He is all he can be And being all he can be Coach Sherrill brought a 550 pound built to practice, and - now hear thin - had the squealing beast castrated in front of his footbill pairwer. It was a Startery hint, a metupher if you will, of what his fellas needed to accomplish during the Longhorn game. The Sporting Box appliands the results, and dolviously Sherrill struck the exact right cord as Mississippi Saste trounced the Texas Sweetnes, '25 to 16 for the absolute first time, a new game perp carm the covered. "Play O'T the lock with the struck of the structure of the struck of the face ancient foe - hiss - the hated Texas Longhorns. An ordinary man might Coach, do yourself a favor, call the Triple R Ranch north of Poway. Ask for Ted.

In other news - Nevada Bob regrets that Washington nasn't covered the spread all year. "Dog meat bastards," Speaking of his winning, but unspectacular 5 for 9 start, Bob ser, "It's a long season, the real money comes in the use nail."

Murphy down at Murph's gym, also 5 for 9, is at the DMV this week, his position ably filled by his wife Mary, a cut throat forecaster and menacing fan, who, while suffering from acruel targonists, was able to answer the crucial question. "How do the Chargers look to you!"

"Entrolls, past terrible."

Mechanical MAN

You gotta keep a constant lookout fo black widows. They just love to string their nests under these things." Fifty-one-year old Jerry Frude is crouched behind a 1972 Whirlpool washing machine tilted forward on a pile of old clothes in a garage in Serra Mesa. (continued on page 14) By John Brixxolars
