WAVE GANGSTERS
windansea's violent legacy fades away

Even if you live and surf in La Jolla doesn't mean you're welcome at Windansea. "This is one of the last places in San Diego with a visible and well-known reputation for localism," says 17-year-old native surfer Lee Gage. "But they say it's not what it used to be." (continued on page 7)

Downtown Bank of Polish is using the American Tire Company for its advertising. At $150,000 a year, the public relations firm is the price. The bank has just changed its name to Commercial Bank of America.

Off-color humor in black and white

The cars themselves are not historic to San Diego; they never operated here. Maybe we could trade them for antique cars that did.

Handicapped Fingers in Trolley Sabotage Attempt

Republican Party Animal Lyn Nofziger Remembers More

By Judith Moore

Nofziger answered the knock on his dark brown office door at a normal meeting, and when the door was opened, a light brown book fell out of his pocket. "I'm sorry, I..."

"Why are you sorry?" Nofziger demanded, his voice loud and clear. "I wasn't expecting anyone." He turned to a group of deputies who had gathered around the door. "What do you want?"

The deputies looked at each other, unsure of what to say. One of them spoke up, "Sir, we just wanted to..."

"Just wanted to what?" Nofziger barked. "Speak up!"

"Sir, we just wanted to..."

Nofziger interrupted, "Oh, forget it. You can all go back to work."

He walked out of his office, leaving the deputies behind. "I'll deal with you later," he muttered, his voice fading as he closed the door. "I'll deal with you later."

As he walked out, he noticed a man standing outside the building. "Mr. Nofziger," the man said, "I just wanted to tell you..."

Nofziger ignored him, continuing on his way. "I don't have time for this."

The man looked hurt, but Nofziger didn't notice. He just kept walking, his footsteps echoing in the quiet street. "I don't have time for this."
"Here, old Van is a friend of mine," I said, "and if you'd like to call me right after he gets back, he's got a friend who's got a house that you might like."

Van, I used to have a dream to build a house, but then I woke up and realized that I didn't have the money."

"Yes, I am very sad to hear that," I replied, "but I think you're right."

"Oh, well, I just wanted to let you know that I'm available to help you in any way I can."

made their debut in a movie called Beach Party in 1963 and Don and Dee Dee was the first one on the bill, then the Beach Boys. The Beach Boys have also been credited with the first use of the term "surf." This is because they were the first band to perform at the annual surf contest — called the "Surf City U.S.A." — that was held in Huntington Beach.

Except perhaps for Malibu's Misty, who was very popular at the annual surf contest — called the "Surf City U.S.A." — that was held in Huntington Beach in the 1960s and had already been to Malibu's Misty, who was very popular at the annual surf contest — called the "Surf City U.S.A." — that was held in Huntington Beach in the 1960s.

"Don't worry, mom," he replied.

Mrs. Van Altena had heard about her husband's trip to the beach, but she was still skeptical about the trip. She knew that he loved to surf, but she was worried about the weather. She called him to check if he was ok.

ALLEN'S DAIRY ROAD
Mission Hills

Mission Hills is a real mixture, accessible from downtown at Mission Valley with its immense tourist and shopping centers, but also home to many old buildings and streets that have been preserved. The area is known for its historical significance and for the many residential neighborhoods that have been developed over the years. One such neighborhood is known as Allen's Dairy Road.

During the 1930s and 1940s, Allen's Dairy Road was the main road through Mission Hills. It was named after a local dairy owner, Allen, who owned a dairy farm in the area. The road was also known for its beautiful landscaping and well-maintained homes.

The road was closed to through traffic in the early 1950s when a new freeway was built nearby. However, the local community fought to keep the road open and eventually won. Today, Allen's Dairy Road is a popular destination for residents and tourists alike.

They left the rusted old body alongside the road down there, and I remember there was an awful stink about it.

HARASTHY STREET
Middletown

Surely you remember Colonel Henry Harasthy, the Spanish-American War hero who was the first to fire the Spanish flag at the start of the War for Independence. His statue is a reminder of his valor and sacrifice.

On one side of Harasthy, the background was black and gray, while on the other side, the sky was blue with a hint of pink. No other cars were on the street. Harasthy lived in the area and was known for his patriotism.

A new street sign has been put up for the old Harasthy Street, and it is a reminder of the history and heritage of the area.

Harasthy Street is named after a local hero who fought in the Spanish-American War. The street sign is a tribute to his bravery and sacrifice.

The Vast Reflective Spaces of A Seemingly Empty Green Sea

Death of a Much-Loved Boat
By David Helvarg

The weekend before there's no-towing territory that goes along the coastline, we took a break from our usual routine and decided to take a coastal trip to explore. The plan was to drive down to Los Angeles, CA, where we would spend a few days exploring the area and enjoying the beautiful beaches. The weather was perfect, with clear skies and warm temperatures, making it the ideal time for some fun in the sun.

On the way down, we stopped at a few of our favorite spots, including Malibu and the Santa Monica Pier. We also visited Venice Beach and the famous Venice Boardwalk, where we enjoyed some street performances and some delicious local cuisine.

We arrived in Los Angeles late in the afternoon and checked into our hotel. We spent the evening exploring the city, visiting the Hollywood Walk of Fame and the Griffith Observatory. We also saw a few of the iconic movie sets and studios, including Warner Bros. and Universal Studios. We ended the night with a delicious dinner at a local restaurant.

The next day, we decided to take a day trip to the Santa Monica Mountains National Recreation Area. We hiked through the beautiful trails and enjoyed the stunning views from the top. We also visited the famous Pacific Palisades and the stunning Bel Air area.

On our last day in Los Angeles, we decided to take a leisurely stroll through the iconic Hollywood Boulevard. We saw a few of the famous landmarks and snapped a few pictures with the Hollywood sign.

Overall, the trip was amazing, and we had a great time exploring the beauty of Southern California. We highly recommend visiting the area and experiencing its unique culture and history. The weather was perfect, the food was delicious, and the attractions were plentiful. We can't wait to plan our next trip to Los Angeles!
Sea

A small group of us were on a fishing trip in the North Sea. The weather was rough, with large waves and strong winds. We were on a small boat, and the conditions made it difficult to navigate. We had to adjust our course frequently to avoid hitting rocks and other obstacles.

Eventually, we arrived at our destination. We were greeted by a large school of fish, which we had been tracking for several days. We cast our lines and started fishing. The fish were biting well, and we caught several big fish. We spent the rest of the day fishing, enjoying the beautiful scenery and each other's company.

In the evening, we gathered around a bonfire on the beach. We roasted marshmallows and told stories. It was a perfect end to a perfect day.
On the third hooking of the gun jammed. The officer fired the second gun three times before it misfired and jammed.

On the day of their neighbor's death, the Smiths took a trip to a Sun Dogs model home to see the latest offerings in full-grown housing. For an entire morning, they browsed the display and took notes about the features of the various models. The Smiths were impressed with the range of options available, from standard to luxury features.

As they left the model home, the Smiths discussed the possibilities of upgrading their current home. They were considering adding a sunroom or a backyard deck, but they were also interested in the idea of buying a new home with more space.

Dear Editor,

I just bought a new home and I'm in love with it!

The process of finding the perfect home can be overwhelming, but I'm happy I found this one. The location is perfect, with everything I need within walking distance. The neighborhood is quiet and safe, and the neighbors are friendly. I love the layout of the house and the amount of natural light it has. The outdoor space is also amazing, with a beautiful garden and a spacious deck.

Thank you for providing such a great resource for homebuyers. I can't wait to start making this house my own.

Sincerely,

Jane Smith

New Kid in Town

Review

Reservoir Dogs — exciting stuff — marks the directorial (also auteurial) return of Quentin Tarantino. His instinctive appreciation of his, a rap waste with a flair for the hit-and-run and the underhanded blow, has been fully vindicated. The film is a quick jolt of adrenaline, a murderously effective suspense thriller that rapidly becomes a race against time... and a masterful exercise in pulp fiction... and a testament to the vitality of the human spirit. The story is about a group of hitmen who are hired to carry out a hit on a drug dealer. The job goes awry and the hitmen find themselves in a violent confrontation.

If he is a showoff, at least he has a talent for sharing the spotlight.

FEST SHORTS 1st International Festival of Short Films and Animation

November 19-23

UNIVERSITY OF ARTS

FEST SHORTS is an annual international festival of short films and animation that showcases the innovative work of emerging filmmakers. This year, the festival features a diverse program of short films that explore a wide range of themes and genres, including comedy, drama, animation, and experimental film. The festival provides a platform for filmmakers to share their work with a global audience and to connect with other creators in the industry.

The Empire Strikes Back

The Empire Strikes Back is a science fiction film directed by Richard Marquand and released in 1980. The film is the second installment in the original Star Wars trilogy and is set five years after the events of the first film. The plot follows the adventures of the characters as they encounter new challenges and enemies in their fight against the Empire. The film is known for its memorable characters, including Luke Skywalker, Han Solo, and Princess Leia, and its iconic music score by John Williams.

Waterland

The original ending (or the extended) version uses the same dialogue but replaces the voice-over with a musical score composed by John Williams. The extended version also includes additional footage, such as the International Space Station (ISS) and a closer view of the International Space Station (ISS). The extended version is approximately 30 minutes longer than the original version and is considered by many to be a more complete and satisfying conclusion to the story.

Waterland

The movie Waterland is a British film directed by Ken Loach and released in 1983. The film is based on the novel of the same name by Graham Swift and tells the story of a young boy growing up in a small village in England during the 1940s and 1950s. The film follows the boy's experiences of war and post-war life, and explores themes of family, identity, and the impact of war on young people.

I was once a theater critic, myself, and know that people will endure anything to see the shows they love. For instance, when the British stage play "Dames" opened, I expected a modest crowd since it was a new play and not well advertised. I was wrong. The theater was packed, and the audience was spellbound. The actors were brilliant, and the set design was spectacular. It was a night I will never forget.

I also recall seeing the movie "Casablanca" with Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman. It was a slowmoving drama, but the audience was rapt. They knew every line of the script and sang along as the actors performed. It was a testament to the power of cinema.

In both cases, the audience was willing to endure uncomfortable conditions to see what they loved. It's the same for theater critics. We'll attend any show that sounds promising, even if it means sitting in a dark, crowded theater for hours on end. After all, if it's a good show, we'll sacrifice our comfort for the sake of the audience.

So, next time you're considering attending a theater performance, don't let fear or discomfort stop you. Be like the audience in "Dames" and "Casablanca" - embrace the experience and enjoy the show.

What do Garbo, Greta Garbo, and garage sales have in common? The former is a silent-screen legend, the latter is not. But both have been the subject of, well, let's just say, a lot of discussion among entertainers, scholars, and film buffs. This week's Celluloid Virgins, a new weekly segment on KSFR, explores the world of garage sales, looking at the history and culture of this ubiquitous activity. The show features interviews with experts and enthusiasts, as well as footage of some of the most unusual and valuable items ever found in a garage sale. This week's episode features a discussion with a curio collector who has found everything from rare books to antique jewelry in his local garage sales. Also featured is a segment on the history of the garage sale, from its humble beginnings in post-World War II America to its current status as a popular pastime. The show concludes with a look at some of the most successful garage sale tips and tricks, as well as some of the most common mistakes to avoid. Don't miss this fascinating exploration of the world of garage sales, only on KSFR this week!
Snaps for Keeps

The Barker, Madison, N.Y. (1910)

A Review

Among the photographs by Louis Stettner currently on view at the Museum of Photographic Arts, there is an anecdotal "beardly" picture that seems an appropriate impulse point of a look at the recent trend of reevaluating the role of the photograph in contemporary society. The social documentary function of the photograph, one that has been variously described as "a window on the world," has been transformed in recent years. In the context of the current exhibition, "Snaps for Keeps," the photographs focus on the role of the photograph in the context of the viewer's experience. The photographs, which range from the 1930s to the present, explore the ways in which the photograph functions as a tool for self-expression and for understanding the world around us.

"Snaps for Keeps" is an exhibition that explores the role of the photograph in contemporary society. The photographs, which range from the 1930s to the present, explore the ways in which the photograph functions as a tool for self-expression and for understanding the world around us. The exhibition is organized around the idea that the photograph is not merely a record of the past, but a tool for understanding the present. The photographs are not simply records of events, but are a record of the ways in which we perceive and interpret the world around us.

The exhibition includes a range of photographers, from the 1930s to the present, and explores the ways in which the photograph has evolved over time. The photographs range from the documentary to the more personal, and explore the ways in which the photograph functions as a tool for self-expression and for understanding the world around us.

People Think of a Typical Morrissey Fan As the Young Male Homosexual Who Gets On Stage and Takes Off His Shirt and Rubs Against Morrissey

The second song, "I'm Just Like The Ocean," is a slow and moody ballad with a soft, guitar-driven melody and a somber, emotional atmosphere. The lyrics reflect a sense of longing and introspection, with the singer questioning their own identity and the nature of their relationship.

The third song, "Set Me Free," is an upbeat and energetic track with a strong rhythmic beat and a catchy chorus. The lyrics convey a sense of liberation and freedom, with the singer expressing a desire to break free from societal constraints and pursue their own desires.

The fourth and final song, "The Rain," is a slow and somber ballad with a dark, moody atmosphere. The lyrics reflect a sense of melancholy and despair, with the singer expressing a feeling of being overwhelmed by life's challenges.

Overall, the album is a powerful and introspective collection of songs that explores a range of emotions and experiences. It is a testament to the artist's skill and artistry, and a must-listen for any fan of the genre.

THE MUSIC SCENE

The other night when I drove my car over the bridge down to the river, I had my headphones on and was listening to some旧的 music. I felt like I was... I don't know, maybe I was trying to escape from the world around me.

On the way back, I was thinking about how music can make you feel things you never thought possible. It's a powerful thing.

Leaves Us No Alternative

PREVIEW

Allegro. The most entertaining—and moving—moment of the last couple of years was the alt-rock music awards ceremony honoring the Best Alternative Group presentation. When the final vote was announced, the audience stood up and the winner was announced: the Breeders. The audience then broke into applause and auruar calls for the group to perform. This was the moment when the audience realized that the Breeders were not just a band—they were a community. No one could have predicted that this would happen.

The alternative bands are what the labels are looking at now in San Diego.

Note from Stan Hernandez

Peggy Dodson and B Natural

Are several musicians who have built their careers in the San Diego area on the local music scene. Their blend of Soul, Funk, and R&B has earned them a loyal following and has helped them reach new heights in their respective careers. Peggy Dodson is a versatile vocalist who can switch between powerful belting and smooth crooning. Her dynamic stage presence and soulful voice have earned her the nickname "Soul Diva." B Natural, on the other hand, is a skilled guitarist who has been a part of the San Diego music scene for over a decade. His virtuosic playing style and ability to engage the audience have made him a favorite among local fans.

Hydroplane designed and built by aviation pioneer Glen Curtiss is tossed into the water at Spanish Flats in this February 1911 photo. An Easterner sailing from Hammondsport, New York, Curtiss brought his operation to San Diego after being taken up on his offer to give free flight instruction to a United States naval officer.

On January 26, 1911, Curtiss made aviation history when he completed the first successful seaplane flight in the United States above the waters of the bay. Several days later, he took off from North Island, flew alongside the CSS Pennsylvania in San Diego Bay, and was hoisted aboard by the ship's crane.
