very well in reading and copy-ing verbatim, as in the Second Amendment to the Bill of Rights ("Letters to the Edi-tor," November 12). He does have a bit of a problem in un-derstanding what he reads and copies. What the Second Amendment says is that we, the peo-ple, have the right to main-tain a militia. In good old King George the Third, a militia was reckoned to be an organization of the people as differing from the King's army. The people, now, need protection from the obscene proliferation of weapons in the hands of individuals.

A militia is an outmoded A militra is an outmoded concept now, and the substitute for this armed organization is a National Guard. If you wish to play with firearms, join the Guard.

Yes, assorted gun nuts, criminals will continue to ac quire arms either legally by the lax retailing methods the National Rifle Association has foisted on the nation or by criminal means, by taking the guns away from those of you who maintain weapons in your home. If, however, guns and multiple-bullet weapons were banned (except for peace officers and the military). eventually guns would disap-pear from the hands of crimi-nals and gun nuts alike. This would be a consummation de-voutly to be wished and well worth waiting for.

Please! No more right to Please! No more right to bear arms propaganda. You did have the right to form a militia and no longer do because the National Guard is your State's substitute for a militia. Join the Guard; be satisfied with legal hunting rifles and shotguns to kill the little birds and deer you need to feed your families. Get rid of the handguns your wives may use to blow you away or your children to shoot one another or other

Dead Ends

Ifound Margot Sheehan's pic-torial essay on San Diego's lost streets (November 5) enter-taining and informative. As a lifelong San Diego resident. I was familiar with most of these streets although I did not know the stories behind them. However, I feel compelled to bring to your attention at least two other lost San Diego streets that became lost as a re-sult of freeway construction projects in the 1960s and 1970s.

One such street was 18th

Street in downtown San Diego, which disappeared around 1961 when the section of Interstate 5 running from Commercial Avenue north to Park Boulevard was built over its alignment (I-5 also oblit-erated sections of Date Street in the downtown area, Moore Street in Old Town, and Cot-tonwood Street near the 32nd Street Naval Station in Logan

Another street sacrificed to Another street sacrinced to a freeway alignment was Pyn-chon Street in Southeast San Diego, wiped off of the map by the 805 Freeway some-time in the 1970s. This was a four-block-long residential street running parallel to 47th Street in the vicinity of Lincoln High School. Its northern ter-minus was Imperial Avenue and its southern terminus was Logan Avenue, and it inter sected Franklin Avenue and Ocean View Boulevard in between.

Nonetheless, Mr. Disgruntled, You Seem To Have Read Mr. Cubbison's Article From

Beginning To End Thank you for yet another article by and about Gene Cub-bison ("The Making of a Talk-ing Head," November 5) with, not just one or two, but three photographs of, yes, Gene Cubbison, What is more fasci-tion than a senotre writine Cubbison. What is more fasci-nating than a reporter writing about himself? Several accom-panying photos of that reporter!

The last time Cubbison appeared in these pages writing about himself at the Republiabout nimestra at the kepuli-can Convention, we were also treated to photos of — not delegates, not candidates, not revealing photographic docu-mentation of the mood or ac-tivity at the convention — but Cubbison! G.C. was very gen-erous to Norman Mailer in that piece by the way, intimat-ing what a professional jour-nalist Mailer is, with such ethical integrity as to refrain from interviewing fellow journalis-tic and literary giant Cubbison for Vanity Fair. Vanity Fair's loss was the Reader's gain presumably.

I realize I must be mis something here, but I wish someone would explain it to ome: What is supposed to be in-teresting about this guy? His deathless prose? His manly profile? His laser-like journal-istic instincts? His hard-nosed, no-nonsense reporting? Maybe the point is just that now we'll be getting even more of him in our living rooms

During his time on the council. Henderson often criticized Witt for advocating sweetheart deals with Cox. In 1989, Witt urged the council to extend Cox's franchise an extra 20 years in return for the company's agreement to assume liability for a new tax the county was then threaten-ing to impose on the company, Henderson successfully fought that deal, arguing that Cox should be forced to compete with other cable providers on the same turf. "This was an attempt by the city attorney to give Cox an additional 20 years on its franchise, for, in essence nothing. Henderson insists Henderson ultimately convinced the council to seek competition. But the city attorney drafted the require ments in such a way to make it impossible for any outside company to bid, the ex-coun-cilman charges.

"No one bid because they were required to build out half of the city within a few years and nobody could afford to do that," Henderson recalls. "And the nature of the contract that they sought was one in which people had to come in and lay duplicate cable lines, which made little sense."

Witt, who was not available for comment on Henderson accusations, has said prev ously that his actions were governed by state law, which requires new franchises to "wire and serve the same gro graphical area within a reasonable time." Such a requirement tends to work against smaller competitors. Witt's office has also argued that city residents would be adversely impacted by the amount of street repair required to install new, com-peting cable lines. Henderson holds out little hope that the next round of renegotiations will proceed any differently. "Unless the new mayor brings together a group of people who are dedicated to serving the consumers, nothing will happen," he says. "It will be a repeat of 1989, when there was no change, and the cable bills continued to go up. This is really a test for Susan Godding. The next is residently as the same continued to go up. And they have a right to know the whole story. Gough says the reports he's read in the daily newspapers about the event have been incomplete and inaccurate

As they related the events of that might, in a restaurant just blocks from the site of the attempted carjacking, they held hands, at times, their voices quivered and their eves welled up with tears. Taking someone's life, well, you don't know how it affects a person until it humens, to you? Say. This carjacking took place just days after the Johnaton

George incident, in which are escaped prisoner went on a rampage downtown, beating up a female police officer and killing a motorist. According to San Diego Police, so far this year there have been approxiyear there have been approximately 220 earjackings in San Diego. Lieutenant John Welter, who works in the homicide division of SDPD, says giving advice to the public on how to deal with a lic on how to deal with a cariacking is a damned-if-you-do, damned-if-you-don't sit-uation. 'We teil people that when something like this hap-pens to give up their car. An automobile isn't worth dying for. But we also understand how people feel and why some people fight back, especially when it's more than their car they feel they're fighting for." Gough and Esparza are not average victims in at least one respect. They attribute the way they dealt with the situation to Kwan, a kind of karate. He is also a certified martial arts teacher. Esparza is a red belt and has also been studying karate for several years. But both of them stress that not just anyone can go out and buy a knife or a gun and be safe. "If you buy a weapon for protection but you are not protection but you are not trained how to properly use that weapon, you're really putting yourself in more damager." Gough says. "They can easily take the weapon from you and use it against you." Esparaz concurs. 'Out training definitely played a big part in how we dealt with this situation. Martial ast teaches you to first do all you can to avoid such a situation, but it also. it's been very rough on both of Gough says both he and Esparza feel great remorse for Gooch's family. 'I really, really feel for his family. He has a mother, he has a family. I feel if I was the one who was killed. Dear Matthew Auce.

There are signs along the roads leading into San Diego stating the elevation is 11 feet. Exactly where is the spot where the measurement was taken, and how do they take the measurement? - Olen Stutzman, Chula Vista

Dear Matthew Aluce.

Here's a questions that has been bugging me for a long time. At the city line from the major injunyary, there's a sign which says, "San Diego — population 1,300,000, deviation 11 feet."

Please tell me who er what determines the "mean" elevation of San Diego and other places. And, after all, who gives a darril.

- Boies Whitcomb. La Mesa

Don't be mided just because it's painted on a sign. "San Diego clevation 11 feet" seems to be a facilet without a source. At least a source that anyone today can identify, A check with the office of the city and county surveyors drev a blank, so we'll have to work with best guesses. First of all, the deviation, whatever its source, is undoubtedly a single-point reference, not an average figure. Deriving a reliable average deviation in the city would be tough, given the up-and-down terrain we're built on. A lot of work for a figure nobody much cares about. We're dose enough to sea level that a few feet more or less is prefur insignificant.

The last big Alessio piece was published April 10. For cover art, a staff artist drew jail bars in front of a picture of John Alessio, ex-pressing glee over the Alessios' fall. Inside was the story of the fall. Inside was the story of the federal grand jury indictment of John, Angelo, Dominic, Russell, and Tony Alessio for income tax evasion. The paper opined, cor-rectly, that "the fall of the Alessio family marks the beginning of the end for the Smith empire which end for the Smith empire which has ruled San Diego for the last 25 years." It alleged that "Kinglish Smith" had failed in his attempts to pressure the Nixon Adminis-tration to quash the indictments and concluded, "The reasons for were poised to replace Smith atop the corporate and political tree house. Under Silberman's picture was the caption "Sly Silberman."

The power vacuum thus created by the disintegration of the Smith-Alessio empire will be filled by the local young Turks, the Peterson Silberman-Schunemann bunch of the Foodmaker Corporation and the Southern California First National Bins. These men are more in line with the national corporate structures, and, as corporate 'liberals', Preferable to the feudalistic and react citizens, and the southern the properties of the Smith-Alessio empire. A Brown-White coallism racions ad statistic po-tential threat to San Diego's capitalism racions and presents the only political allerantive to the present decadent structure."

One of the El Burrio pages of the July 3 issue printed directions for constructing a Molotov cocktail, including a diagram. It recommended using Bipple bottles and cautioned that if rocks were to be placed inside the dirt mixture on the bottom of the bottle, "make sure they're big enough to break the glass from the inside." The purpose of printing the instructions was explained this way.

Caruales, the time has come when we must stop all the bullshit and get down to the real task of dealing with the pigs. And I mean all pigs nor just the ones that low-ride through the barrio in their squad cars, but the fat capital spunds who on the stores and businesses which exploit our people. To start dealing with those people we are going to start printing a few handy recipes for homemade products which can be used to off the pig.

The story drew the attention of the 1970 county grand jury. It took testimony from respected local journalist the late Harold Keen, who worked for Channels 8 news and wrost for San Drego Magazine. Keen willingly brought in his notes from an article he wrote on Calderon for the August issue of the magazine. By early 1972, as the upcoming Republican convention began by early 1972, as the upcoming Republican convention began to attract more political activists to San Diego, the Dowrbecame more political. It hammered stories about racism at the Camp Pendleton brig and the FBH trying to censor PBS documenters that were unflattering to the federal government.

The January 13, 1972 cover story reported the wounding of Dowr staff member Paula Tharp while she was stitting in the living room of SISU economies professor Peter Bohmer's Ocean Beach Mome. Howard Berry Godfrey, leader of the Secret Arm Organinome, roward nerry Gostrey, leader of the Secret Army Organi-zation and an FBI informant, later confessed to driving the car from which shots were fired into the house on January 6. He was never trued. The tragerman, 8AO zelot Goorge Hoover, was even-tually convicted and served time. Steve Christianson, the San Diego FBI agent who took the gun from Hoover after the shooting and hid it under his couch for six months, was fired in 1973.

In May 1972, the Republican convention was moved from in 334 34 2, the Requisition convention was moved from an Diego to Miami. Vince Compagnone, a photographer for the Boot, traveled to Miami with another of the paper's staffers and re-ceived press credentials for the convention. "We told em it was a college paper," says Compagnone, When they got back to San Diego, Compagnone says the Boor became even more politically oriented than it had been, and just as egalitarian. "We all did eyerything — pasteup, layout, we took pictures, sold the paper. No-body was getting paid. If you needed something, like work on your car, you went out and did a trade with a garage for an ad in the Door.

you'd grab a stack of papers and go sell them outside the midnight movies at the Academy Theater."

The political consciousness at the paper could be cumbersome. "Meeting would drag on for hours, says Compagnone, now a photographer for the Los Angeles Times San Diego County edition. "As desperate as we were for ads, we still had to wrestle with political correctness. Is this ad sexist? It wasn't majority rule; everybody had to be part of the consensus on e erything. "As the paper became more political, it became less economi-cally successful," explains Bill Ritter, who began working for the Zho-late in 1972, after her turned from protesting the convention in Mi-ami. Ritter had been a leader of the anti-war movement at San Diego. State University, where he disrupted classes in the spring of 1972— an offense that resulted in the school filing criminal trespass charges, for which he was suppended as a student. He is now a decision for produced and anchorman for the new weedness delition of ABCs. Maguire observes. "Feah, there was a lot of energy — a lot of energy expended." He left the paper to try to heal himself, through The Door staff continued running the paper as a cooperative af-ter Maguire left, "Nobody really 'owned' it," Ritter remarks. The new staffers aggressively reported stories about the undercover po-lice who had tried to head off disruption of the Republican con-vention in San Drego. The Door writers investigate the criminal activities of the Secret Army Organization, who, in addition to explosive support of the secret Army Organization, who, in addition to explosive supposed by the lindman feediffer, used in the Avenue in explosives supplied by FBI informant Godfrey) on Fifth Avenue in Hillcrest in June 1972

We reported that Copley News Service in Latin America was a CIA front. We also reported how Union-Tribune photographers would turn over their pho-tographs of anti-war demonstrators to the FBI."

When the Door needed a local angle on the Pentagon Papers (first published by the New York Times in June 1971), Lt. Gen. Brute Krulak (Ret.), Copley editorial disrector, filled the billet perfectly.

The plan was initiated on February 1, 1964, which means it was all Krulak's brainchild.... The clandestine nature of these operations was to anger the North Vietnamese into 'retal'ating. FOR THE CLOSING OF North Verhamese into recaining therefore giving the U.S. an excuse to conduct full-scale bombing of the North. This was the line Krulak had always spoken out for and, in fact, OPLAN 344 was responsible for the Gulf of Tonkin farce that ensued in THE DOOR ON THE READER, WHICH WAS ESTABLISHED IN 1972. "THE ORIGINAL READER August 1964.... If the American people had known about the baiting scheme WAS A JOKE: WE had known about the baiting scheme of OPLAN 34A, they would never have bought lohnson's Gulf of Tonkin Resolution. But they didn't know, and thanks to Krulak and the CIA, geno-cide was no longer clandestine. LAUGHED AT IT,"

Ritter is especially proud of a piece written in lune 1973 by him, Remer, and Porter, which first revealed a summer 1971 visit to San Diego by Donald Segretti the mastermind of drity tracks for Richard Nison's re-election campaign. 'A source who had split from the SAO called me collect and loid us everything about Segretti's visit,' Ritter recalls. 'A White House operative comes to San Diego, meets with a right wing organization feldy the FBI, and figures out ways to disrupt the convention and blame it on the Democrats. That was the high point. I was 23, doing national stories. The New York Times picked up that story and credited us."

It was nice to have another American in the cell, but Chango was not happy. Every few minutes he would babble with Jorge in Span-ish and point at John or me. I was getting a kick out of it and Chango was livid. I guess Chango thought I was going to rip John off when the kid was out of the cell, and he wanted to get in on it. Chango made it known in front of the other Mexicans that he wanted me to give him the kid's money. I rold him to go to hell. I think he expected the other guys to rat pack me, and when they

Surreal Mormon Architecture Comes to Town

Story by Lawrence Osborne

Photographs by Dave Allen

Perhaps the most striking and imposing new monument to be built in the San Diego area in recent years is the Mormon Temple currently nearing completion at the junction of Interstate 5 and La Iolia Village Drive. The two icy-white towers, surmounted by a gold effigy of the Angel Moroni and surrounded by effigy of the Angel Moroni and surrounded by new-Gothic stalagmites, have already become a city landmark. But the general public will be able to wander inside and inspect the temple from within only for a brief period. Says Bil Lewis, one ter that, only those worthy can go through it. To go to the temple, you must be a member. The temple is not so much a secret as ascred. The temple, in other words, will be restricted to the faithful.

The Church of Iesus Christ of Latter Day Saints now has 17,000 congregations worldwide and is one of the fastest-growing religions in the United States. New temples were recently completed in Portland and Las Vegas. And saide from the one in La Jolia, others will open shortly in Orton.

Does this mean, then, that San Diegans should be willing to forgive anything just so long as their ruthlessly utilitarian skyline is punctured for ifornia press agreed. Some of them, though, ac-tually wondered if the temple would "raise in-teresting questions about the role of architecture in modern society." And one or two couldn't refrain from sneakily admiring its vulgar mon-umentalism. Do the ten sinister, steel-framed amentaism. Disgruntled Malcontent With Nothing Better to Do San Ysidro

Claims Reader Critic Was Elusive, Almost Ghostlike

After reading David Stam pone's article in this week's edition of the Reader ("Leaves Us No Alternative," November 5), it is imperative that several items are cleared up.

First and foremost, as a journalist. Mr. Stampone should know when to keep his personal opinions to himself. This is for a review, not an even preview. Mr. Stampone should strive to get all of his porter must get all sides of ev-ery story. It would have been nice for him to call and get my response to the quotes in his article. For him to pick on the San Diego Music Awards, in a preview of a trade show, is somewhat ridiculous.

The San Diego Music Awards, as most San Diego music lovers are aware, is a charity event. This year, $7,800 was raised to help San Diego elementary school instrumen-elementary school instrumental music education programs, which were nearly eliminated by the recent state budget cuts. Mr. Stampone fails to mention any of this in his article.

The San Diego Music Awards will abways try and acknowledge the musical talent that this city supports. By adding nine categories (up to 21 categories in 1921), significant strides were made to cover as many areas of icant strides were made to cover as many areas of San Diego music as possible. It seems that Mr. Stampone fails to acknowledge any of this as he quotes (Independent Music Seminar promoter) Gary Hus-twit, "C'mon that awards thing was pretty much a joke... And one category to squeeze all the alternative bands into after not even hav-ing one the year before?" I am sure that if Mr. Staming one the year before?"

I am sure that if Mr. Stampone thinks back to February, he will remember my many attempts to reach him. Not only were telephone calls from myself not returned, but several attempts by a Reader staff member to reach Mr. Stampone also went unanswent. pone also went unanswered. After speaking with him at a preview party for the new tabloid edition of the Reader, I once again sent Mr. Stampone questionnaire, as he re-uested, to the Reader office

There were responses to the questionnaire by 23 mem-bers of the San Diego Music Academy, which consists of people either in the music

As for the "Best Alternative Rock" category, Mr. Hustwit, as well as Tim Maze, owner of the Casbah, were two of the persons that did respond sig-nificantly about the need for this category. Both men sug-gested that "Best Alternative Rock" was the best way to state this Rock* was the best way to state this.

It is important for all areas of music to be covered in any type of music awards prorock, but all areas of rock, but all areas of rock, bountry, iszz, etc., must be included. By adding alternative rock to the program for 1992, we have included something missing in 1991. We should be commended for including this, not condemned.

Mr. Hustwitt is quoted about the three categories about the three categories about the three categories what Mr. Statympone fails to mention the other 18 musical categories. As for the lack of rap or urban, the Academy questionnaire results suggested that other areas were more representative of music in that other areas were more representative of music in San Diego. Only two of the re-spondents ever mentioned adding rap or urban. It takes events like the San Diego Street Scene, as well as the Independent Music. as the Independent Music Seminar to make a scene work. Gary Hustwit should be com-mended for putting on a first-rate event that San Diego can be extremely proud of. If only the IMS had added panel dis-cussions that appealed to as many styles of music as the San Diego Music Awards, more musicans would be able to learn about the real business of music.

Once again the Reader and Mr. Stampone have presented a one-sided story in their coninuing assault on the credibil-ity of 91X in this market. I would like to address some points in the article ("Leaves Us No Alternative") by David Stampone, in regards to Gary Hustwit and the IMS

Furthermore, I find it surprising that you can attack the San Diego Music Awards when you, the Reader, were a sponsor of that award

In response to 91X's in-volvement (or lack of) with the IMS convention: One of our primary concerns with any spective event is its credi bility and how it will be pre sented. Since this is a first-time event, I, as promotions direc-tor, asked for a written protot, asked for a written pro-posal outlining what the sem-inar would be about, how Mr. Hustwit planned to exe-cute it, and exactly what he perceived 91X's involvement to be. Mr. Hustwit decided to deny 91X involvement, however, claiming he wanted commer-cials, free commercials. In regards to the offer 91X made versus Rock 102's offer, Mr. Hustwit's charges proved his ignorance of the radio business. It is a fact that the value of on-air promotion mentions and spots are a di-rect correlation to the ratings a station has in the market. Cur-rently, 91X has twice the audirently, 91X has twice the audience size, according to Arbi-tron, and twice the rating as Rock 192. Therefore, half as many spots or announcements on 91X would be worth the same as Rock 192. It is a mat-ter of quality versus quantity. Furthermore, don't you find it interesting that the Cas-

3. To quote Ms. Sheehan.

"The only way you can stage a party in this old graveyard is to claim that you're doing some kind of sacred rite. This was not a party ... and where did she get her source of infor-mation? It was an historical reenactment, and it was well researched.

4. Quoting again Ms. Shee-han: "Day of the Dead is not a sacred rite, nor was it ever part of the Catholic liturgy in San Diego." Ms. Sheehan does San Diego. Ms. Sheehan does not know what she is writing about. She did not research this material. Ask most Roman Catholics about All Souls Day.

5. Quoting again, "Black-clothed docents begin to recite ghost tales of the cemetery in-habitants." "Plenty of onlook-ers who think they're witnessers who think they re witnessing a rite of darkest papistry."
The docents were given tours of the history of the cemetery.
The second quote is very antiRoman Catholic.
6. Ms. Shechan remarks on
"Yankee Jim." "but French

Yankee Jim, Dut French Canadian and nominally Catholic, which was conve-nient for the folks who hanged him." Again incorrect. James Robinson, known as Yankee Jim, was a Protestant, and prior to his execution he con-verted to the Catholic church.

Susan: Totally out of character for me. There was no formal commitment, and suddenly there Philip: So I went out and bought tickets to the Catalina Jazz Festival for the both of us. I said, "We're in this together now." We took my boat over and spent 1-1/2 weeks sailing, diving and enjoying great music.

MY FANTASY: WITTY, ATHLETIC JEWISH QUV. 5'7"+ 30-something, for laughter and romance with attractive, playful Jewish brunette, 32, who loves tennis, Humphrey's and Rubio's fish tacos!

Susan: I had a group of female friends who were all using Phone Matches. I kept resisting ... until one by one, they started meeting and getting engaged to these men! After the second time that happened, I thought, Airight already – I'll try it!

Philip: I actually answered an ad belonging to one of Susan's friends. About 10 minutes into our date she asked, "Do you know my friend Susan? I think the two of you would be great together!"

Susan: My first reaction was, No. I do not want to be fixed up. I came the close to not calling him. And when I finally did, I got nervous and hung up on his answering machine. Thank God I called again. He was home, and we talked for about 45 minutes.

Philip: We agreed to meet at the Salmon House in Marina Village. There sitting in the lobby was a cute woman who matched Susan's description.

Susan: Philip walked up to me and asked, "Are you Susan?" And I said, "Yes!" I was thrilled.

Philip: For our third date we made plans to go sailing on the weekend, after a quick stop at a diving gear tent sale. Next thing I know Susan's standing in the checkout line with $200

Susan: It was a gorgeous week, the best vacation I've ever had.

Susan: Three months later, Philip proposed to me as we hiked through the Presidio forests above San Francisco Bay. He sat me down on a log that had an ocean view of the Golden Gate Bridge and got on his knees.

Philip: And she said, "What is that? Where'd you get that?" Susan: Now my parents know why I waited so long to get married. I wanted to do it once and do it right.

Philip: She said, "What, are you kidding?" Susan: Then he pulled out this gorgeous ring

Philip: Even though we had to motor against the wind for 20 grueling hours to Catalina in 4-foot swells, Susan never complained. She was a real trouger. I remember thinking, Wow! I've found someone I can count on when things get a little tough.

Susan: I just want to add one thing: Never in my wildest dreams did I imagine I'd place or answer a personal ad, but that is what it took for us to meet, indirectly as it was – and I'm glad-

The subject is the landscape or cityscape of Southern California. We who live here and iscape or cityscape of Southern Calitornia. We who live here and see this environment every day inveitably feel a personal con-nection with such paintings, as they remind us of what our surroundings look like and at the same time attempt to reveal to us what those surroundings feel like. The sights, as depicted by these realistic painters, remain pretty much the same: rou-tine, day, shalby, dall, acclosula—no Alps, no Romantic chauns, no picturesque charm, no grandh Souderand. The Gelings are utterly different. For Wade Cline, the roads and trees and yanghareon, they are demanticed almost to the point of sur-realism, every drab street corner bursting with intensity. realism, every drab street corner bursting with intensity. And for Raymond Harriss, well, let's look at his paintings that Harris's oil paints are applied thinky, so that the texture of the canwas remains visible through them, contributing to an overall sense of lightness, simplicity, and transparency—or, looked at negatively, shallowness. There is nothing of the rich, subtle, complex luminosity that results when the color is built up by many layers of plazes over underpainting—that is evidently an effect Harris wants to avoid, as being inappropriate to his subject. The huss are operately warm, padd, with a preference for light others; greens, and sometimes violet in the shadows. The contours are blurred and blended, the color area softly flexed and retailed. Sometimes the treatment of foliage, paths, and hillsides suggests slight reminiscences of the geometrization of Cezanne or the color freedom of Gaugain, but in most of the paintings we are seeing the world pretty much as it was seen by progressive Prench landscape painters in the 1860s, with the significant difference that this is not the lash green countriside bordering the Seine but seem and Southern California, with its characteristic openness and patchiness. Occasional automobiles appear, on the overpasses or the roads, but never in great numbers or nerowded masses, for whatever the subject, Harris's vision of Southern California is of a sparsely populated, lazy, rural area — even when he is showing us the freeways and river channels associated with modern unbrail fit. Typical of the landscapes is Victory Bridge, with its unemphatic, ordinary, quiet, sunny view of reality. We see a dry hillside with random clumps of brush, a 1920s-style bridge (pleasant but undistinguished) over a river channel, yellow sunlit concrete, blue shadow of the bridge. A couple of small road signs (one green, one yellow and red), a couple of random card one red, one blue), the yellow-and-gray lanterns on the bridge—these are the only visual events in the akeey, sketchy, "accidental" landscape.

A smillar air of relaxed casualness pervades most of these paintings, which function like an even, lulling background music rather than as assertive statements, whether in their easthetics or in their commentary on nature, civilization, and the countryside we live in.

Josquin des Prez (c.1445-1521) was the greatest composer of the early Renaissance, and one of the very greatest composers of all time. Bach and Mozart are his peers — perhaps no one else. Unfortunately, however, medieval and

This recently (1987) formed ten-voice a cappella ensemble, under the direction of Rebecca Stewart of the Conservatory of Brabant, specializes in the polyphonic music of the 15th and 16th centuries, focusing on France and the Low Countries. Of the masters of this complex style — Ockeghem, Dufay, Obrecht, Isaac, Busnois, Brumel, Janequin, Arcadelt, Willaert, Clemens non Papa, Lassus, Sweelinck, Goudimel (not to mention the Italians, the English, and the Spaniards) — Josquin is supreme, in both sacred and secular music.

His innovations in musical structure and in emotional expressiveness disturbed the more conservative elements of his century, such as the pedantic theorist (what other kind of theorists are there?) Glareanus, who upbraided this exquisitely graceful and serene composer for not "soberly repressing the violent impulses of his unbridled continued on page 80

We are that future - and in this concert Cappella Pratensis was the means by which we were permitted to delight in Josquin's art and to gain access to his greatness. Rebecca Stewart's group, as one might surmise, is thoroughly grounded in what we know of the authentic performance practices of losquin's time. One of the performance practices of losquin a time. One of the consequences of such historical accuracy is the peculiar style of vocal production we have come to expect from early music ensembles. The vocal apparatus (including the lips and jaws) is held in a state of high tension; there is no vibrato; the tone color is piercing or plangent, like a recorder or a shawm.

This unnatural way of producing the voice to which the singers must be rigorously trained, has several advantages. It tends to keep the voices from blending too much, which clarifies the polyphonic textures and gives a special vividness to the intervocal imitation that is the most pervasive device of Josquin's style. It also creates an atmosphere of "purity," which some people insist on associating with medieval and Renaissance music in general, particularly music of the religious kind. Most importantly, perhaps, this seems to be how singers of the period actually produced their sounds (at least according to musicological research), so that when a modern group sings this way we are carried more persuasively into the past, into the courts of Louis XII or Galeazzo Maria Sforza.

Still, such sounds are unpleasant in themselves, and the vocal technique that produces them is inherently inferior to the technique that produces the free, floating. ibrating voice of a modern singer. Josquin (or any Renaissance vocal composer) sung by normal modern singers with tact and a sense of style is just as lucid and far nore sensually attractive, even if not so authentic. I am glad that we have the chance to hear the "authentic" manner But I regret very much that nowadays virtually every group singing Renaissance music has adopted the manner, and that there is no chance to hear this great music performed in any other way. Those of us who insist on hearing Josquin or Palestrins or Byrd, no matter what, must either learn to like the archaic vocal production (as many lovers of early music have done), or (as I myself do) must resign themselves to a paucity of sensual gratification in such performances and take pleasure in whatever compensations of a different sort the performers may offer.

In the case of Cappella Pratensis, the compensations are so numerous that by the end of the St. James concert I found myself almost — almost — going over to the side of those who prefer vibrato-less singing in this repertoire. The strong point here is the rhythmic flexibility and snave dynamic shading that characterize the performances. Conductor Stewart, both in her physical movements and in the sounds she draws from the singers thereby, is at embodiment of gracefulness, responding to every nuance of sentiment suggested by the liturgical or poetic texts or implied in the musical settings. No orthodoxies about rigid metrics or about avoiding arched, "Romantic" phrasing interfere with her evidently passionate identification with the inner life of this wonderfully refined and expressive

These aspects of Cappella Pratensis's concert were far more important than the picturesque devices by which the group tries to reproduce the look of a vocal performance circa 1500: all the singers reading from a single choirbook on a high music stand, their hands on each other's shoulders (as in pictures of the period). Charming ideas — as were the narratives and dramatizations of some of the vernacular chansons on love subjects. But what really counted - and what makes this group so treasurable, among the performers of early music — was the deep understanding of the spirit of Josquin's music, of its simplicity within-complexity, its piece, its humor, its elegance, its vitality, its humanity. This is not a matter of rules but of intuition and empathy — both of which were richly present throughout the evening at St. James.

My Name Was Elka

REMINISCENCE

The day before I left New York last August was set aside for a trip to Ellis Island, where my grandparents had landed from Odessa, Russia, with only a feather comforter and a few rubles. But on the designated day the fog was so thick, nothing was visible from my hotel window. My traveling companion was less than eager to make the tour; unlike me, she knew little about her family's arrival on these shores, and she suggested a cozy morning at Bloomingdale's instead. I managed to persuade morning at Bloomingdale's instead. I managed to persuade her to come.

Because we were late in starting, we took a taxi down-town to Battery Park on the East River. I used to walk to Battery Park from my tenement building whenever I wanted to see a bit of grass or trugal moving water. Of course, everything had changed. Housing projects, red-brisked and uniform, spranded, along once-familiar streets, while chic restaurants and shops now enhanced the landscape. Wall Street and the financial dis-tict remained as imposing as in my childholding, a mother, Leaning against a gale was a large grandmothers. They falser, several wantel children. were attempting to take some pectures of themselves. I smiled, bowed, and said in English that I would be glad to help, I quietly rearranged them into a pyramid so that everyone would fit into the snapshot. They didn't speak English, but every member of the family wore brown sweatshirts with the Harvard University name and were purchased in New York or at Harvard, I will never know.

After several shots of them, they insisted I join the family in a photograph.
My atomishment on this inclement morning was to relize how many people—from children to the elderly—had

EL BIZCOCHO Rancho Bernardo Ins

We went first to see a film narrated by Gene Hackman about the great wave of immigration from 1890 to 1910, it had been assembled from old photographs, and the ones of the crowded, unanitary conditions in steerage broke my heart. It was on such a ship that my youthful grandfather contracted tuberculosis. I never saw my grandfather. He died at the age of 21, when my father was six months old. Though hundreds of sightseers trooped through each

Though hundreds of sightsers trooped through each room, the place was uncommonly quiet; the onlockers were lost in thought. Three exhibits startled me: one offered a dis-play of medical devices for giving women gynecologial exams; the speculum looked like an instrument of torture. Another was of simple wooden puzzle used by authorities to determine the intelligence of the immigrants. It must have been highly insuling to intellectuals like my gandfather—who was known as "Mikhail the wise one"—to be handed such a childflise stest. But the most hearthreaking eithbif of all consisted of photographic stills of people who had to be returned to their native countries because they were too ill or had been deemed mentally unstable. You couldn't look into those sorrowful eyes without crime.

I was sitting in the toilet in the outside hallway of the tenement when a rat the size of a cat leapt through the skylight. My enformous fright at the predator who fell from the sky with glistering skin and bared teeth stays with me still. At

But we had neither knowledge, nor connection with drugs, nor volent cyrine. Those who could, survived well: my brother, a victim of ghetto life, withdrew into schroohrenia.

On my return trip, on my way to a Fifth Avenue restau-rant, I realized I was a hundred light years away from my immigrant grandparents. Silently gave thanks to the indomitable spirit of my grandmother, who after the traumatic experience with the rat put a pencil in my hand and whispered, "Write, Elkaleh, write."

Mischievous But Non-Violent Fun

REVIEW

Although he sprang from the hero-forging British rock scene of the late '80s, guitarist Romine Wood has preferred steady employment to the inconstant path of the genre's shooting stars. Call it capsitulation to reality. Wood is not a great musican, and, like Ed McMahon before him, he realized early on that there is security and the Ed McMahon.

Like Ed McMahon longevity in playing second banana. realized early on that there is security and longevity in playing second banana.

Accordingly, Wood has compiled the thick portfolio of a lath-and-plaster rocker, whose handiwork is a triumph of serviceable function over puckish good humor, and rel-ative humility have served Wood well in his roles as co-

Jeff Beck, as a Sancho Panza to flamboyant Rod Stewart in the early-70s cartoon-saloon band the Faces, and, in his career's crowning achievement, as a mirror-image, albeit somewhat invis-ible foil to Keith Richards, in the Rolling Stones.

sible foul to Kenn Richards in the Roining Stones.
Being a latter-day Stone, of course, means thumb-twid-dling through epochs of inactivity. Over the last several months.
Wood, 45, has occupied himself with recording Slide on This, his first solo album since 1981; 1, 2, 1, 4, 8 on his previous efforts, Wood used materials from the rock-and-roll scrapyard to sculpt a modest masters work.

If nothing else, Slide on This is a fine excuse for the tour that brought the Ronnie Wood Band to town on Monday. continued on page 94

The long-lost sense of mischievous but nonviolent fun that is at the root of rock's allure is some-thing Wood selflessly shares with audience and bandmates

As with his all-hands-on-board approach to recording, Wood exercises democracy in concert, and the biggest bene-ficiary in the Rhythm Cafe show was vocalist Fowlet. A rendition ficiary in the Rhythm Cafe show was vocalist Fowlet. A rendition of the Sutherland Brothers 'Saaling' gave Fowler a chance to shine on a ballad popularized by and largely associated with Rod Stewart. While that might be wiesed as a risky maneuver, Fowler's effort earned him a share of the authority over the proceedings, atthough a labo foreshadowed the vocalist's penchant for unbashed miniry and overwrought singing, the proceedings, atthough a labo foreshadowed the vocalist's penchant for unbashed miniry and overwrought singing, the process of the proceedings of the process of the pro piano solo. When it was over, Wood broke through the fans' clamor long enough to introduce a track from the Stones' 1983 album, Undercover.

"Right now, we'd like to do a song called 'Pretty Beat Up," Wood said. "At this point in the tour, that's pretty much how we feel."

Perhaps the hand's road fatigue contributed to the rub-bers stretch and-snap they gave this funky cut, which led to a wild reading of the Faces. "Silcone Grown." As it turned out, this hot flash would spark the concert's final stage, which included turbochinged versions of "Listle Red Rooster" and "It's Only Rock in 'Roll (But I Like It)."

"It's Only Rock in' Roll (But I Like It)."

That last rocker, a hit from the Stones' album of the same name, actually began life as a jam during rehearsals for Wood's debut solo album, 1974's I've Got My Own Album to Do. At the time, lagger and Wood were playing guitars, Willie Weeks was on bass, the Faces' Kenny Jones was on drums, and David Bowie was helping with vocals. lagger and Richards later nowne was neiping with vocals. Jagger and Richards later reworked the song into a Stones classic, in effect squeezing. Wood out of the songeriting credits. But at the Rhythm Cafe, Wood reclaimed "It's Only Rock in Roll" with a vengeance, capping an evening of the kind of boiler-room rock seldom heard these days.

Rose, a thirty-something former Venice Beach boardwalk performer, wore standard-issue black jeans and vest; no shirt to cover up his worn and weathered torso. He has big, bloodshot Keane-eyes, perfectly round, which he would open as wide as he could at appropriate times. He's vaguely attrac-tive, mostly because of his smooth delivery and pointed banter. As master of ceremonies, he was onstage the entire show, providing commentary on the other acts and doling out the necessary props, assisted by his young (and mate?) French wife, BeBe the Circus Queen, attired in tutu, tights, revealing bustier, and with her hair firmly pulled back. Bebe was Barnum to Rose's Bailey — no, Koo Koo the Bird Girl to his Jolo the Dog-Faced Boy. At one side of the stage, a tuxedoed man the todg-racer boy. And usade of the stage, a funcation much a mohawk sat behind a synthesizer, playing accompaniment for each act—circus ditties, show tunes, "Misty."

Rose kicked off the show by showing a screwdiver up home, then an inch-thick, half-foot-long railroad spick, which he hammered in—hard The Human Blockhead. He stood center stage, with his toos hanging a little over the edge so everyone could get a good look from below.

BeBe handed him a tray with a smoking cube of dry ice. "Hopefully it won't stick," Rose announced, "and I will blow smoke rings from my nose and mouth." (His stage voice was projected with the exaggerated enunciation and gravity of an old-fashioned orator.) He held up the cube with a pair of oid-tashioned crater.) He held up the cube with a pair of tongs, showing off a cloud of fog. I am a little gan my because last week! got a cube stuck to my tongue and had to rip it off with plers. Remember that kid in grade school who got his tongue stuck to the flagpole! "The crowd screamed back, and Rose said, "I mak kid." He patt the cube in his mouth and blew rings of white, fluffy air, It didn't stuck. Rose's feast of daring, which he demonstrated throughout the show, in between the other four acts, were of the more ordinary sort: lying on a bed of nails while three audience members stood on his body, or having Bebe throw darts into his uncovered back. The Human Dartboard.

"Eat your heart out, Harry Connick," began Rose's introduction of the first freak, "and give a warm welcome to our answer to the world hunger problem, Sig..." Stug was actually the synth player. He got up from behind his key-board and walked to center stage, a big dopey guy, a little effeminate, with a gold mohawk and no eyebrows. He looked overdressed in his tux, replete with frills and gold trim, like a '50s sitcom character, the kind who would scare the wacky neighbors and then break out into a tune from Show Boat — a cross between Harvey Fierstein and Lurch.

a cross between Harvey Freestein and Luren.
From among the crowd, Rose pulled a young woman onto the stage. "If I didn't involve the audience," he declared, "it would be a PBS special." She, wearing a pretty, flowered dress, was handed a Tupperware bowl. It contained worms. lots of them, still alive. Slug was now kneeling down with his head thrown back, mouth wide open, waiting. The woman began daintily dropping worms, one by one, into his mouth. They wiggled and squirmed as they dangled from his lips.

OUT THE JAMS, YOU SILLY MOTHERFUCKERS IN CHRIST! OUT THE JAMS, TOU SILL MOTHER CLARES IN CITION: but I felt my heart warm up knowing that not all those who have been saved leave behind that rush of pagan excitement. The question you must be yearning to ask is, how do they rank musically? From all evidence, they serve a few more masters than the Lord. At some points they play generic arena rock, which is equal parts Toto, Boston, Def Leppard, and AC/DC. At other times they grunge out old hoary blues rock with the sensuality of Humble Pie during their "Stone Cold

Fever heyday. They will summon orchestral synthesizer and affect a Yes/Styx mode before revving it up for a Stones/Faces-type rave-up. They even find time to do a mock imitation of type rave-up. They even find time to do a mock imitation of the Temptations, but being white dudes with elementary thyfim in their bones, they only muster a decent imitation of Hall and Oates or the Bee Gees. The songs themselves are riff-heavy, hook-laden, and depend on the more common lures familiar to MOR rock.

continued from page 103 of the throng in attendance I felt, well, in the presence of the unfamiliar. Of course, there were nubile lasses galore (with a strangely higher rate of attractiveness than usual). There were man Server, Masson Fills, 'The Subsect Assessing put the Subsect Assessing put the Subsect Assessing put the Subsect Assessing the usual gaggle of party-hearty swabbies, disenfranchised hippies, and leatherbound types, But, lo, the conversations I heard around me! No banter about pulchritude, sculptured anatomy, or post-concert imbibement — indeed, when a pack of Kools dropped from my jacket, a kindly sister retrieved the cigs and said, "Here are your tickets to ruin, but remember lesus and I love you." Put more simply, what pruient thoughts befogged this evil set of eyes tell away before I could feign contrition.

Concessionaires were selling T-shirts, CDs, and video casettes. Why should not our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ profit when the soul is at stake? when the soul is at stake?

Petra doesn't play as poorly as some of their secularpeers and a lot better than most. Lead singer John Schlitt displayed a welcome sense of humor when he declared, "It's not

You're Single. We're Free.

Introducing Reader PHONE MATCHES, a Great Place to Meet Single People. You are provided with a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds. You also receive a free "voice mailbox"— a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone phone.

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: To place a free Phone Matches ad, fill out the coupon below and mail or FAX it (223-7907) to us. (If faxing, please photocopy the coupon first and then fax it. The newspirit doesn't reproduce well.) The deadline for receiving free Phone Matches ads is Saturday at 7am. Free ads are 25 words or less and run for two weeks. No free ads will be accepted over the phone or in person. Ads with more than 25 words cost $1,20 per additional word. We'll send you a 5-digit mailbox number (to be printed in your ad) and a 4-digit security code for exclusive access to your responses.

You may also place a late ad until 6pm Tuesday by phone (235-8200), in our office (1703 India St. at Date St., downtown), or by FAX (233-7907). The charge for these late as is $20 for the first 25 words plus $1.20 per additional word. Ads placed by phone or by FAX are with Visa or MasterCard only. Limit one Phone placed by phone or by FAX are with Matches ad per person per two-week period.

HOW TO USE YOUR VOICE MAILBOX: After you receive your mailbox

HOW TO USE YOUR VOICE MALIBOX. After you receive your mailbox number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction. Call 527-1966, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. Use your introduction to tell more about yourself than your ad does (see below for guidelines). Give your first name; but DON'T give your last name, phone number or address. Make sure you ask your callers to leave their names, phone numbers and the best times to call them. You can re-record your personal introduction once per 24-hour period. All introductions are reviewed by the Reader and go on-line within 24 hours.

To listen to your responses, call 527-1966 any time, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You can replay any response or move ahead to the next one. If you choose to move ahead, the previous response will be erased, so have a pencil and piece of paper ready! You must have a touch-tone phone to record a personal introduction or listen to
