On the road to Megadollars

Larry Parkinson and family members discuss the prospects of winning a large sum of money in the lottery. Parkinson, along with his wife and children, have been preparing for the big day, setting aside a portion of their savings in case they do win. The family has been going through various activities, such as attending concerts and plays, as well as spending time together. Parkinson's mother, who is also a lottery enthusiast, has been observing the family's preparations, and has expressed her support.

Ron Roberts in Lego-land

The last days of Lego-land, a theme park in California, have been marked by a series of events that have led to its closure. The park has been a popular destination for families, but due to financial pressures and changes in the industry, it has been forced to shut down. The closure has been met with mixed reactions, with some expressing sadness and others feeling relieved.

Mayoral Appointee Embodies Ethnic Diversity, Cynily Considers Political Future

By James Rano

F

The new mayor of a major city is set to take office, and his political career has been marked by controversy and scandal. Despite his past, he has managed to rise through the ranks and become a powerful figure in local politics. His rise has been met with mixed reactions, with some expressing support and others expressing concern.

Family food on KPBS

Last Friday’s Child’s Corner column discussed the importance of public television stations like KPBS in educating children. The column highlighted the station’s programming, which includes educational shows, children’s music, and other content aimed at young viewers.

“When I went to bed, instead of saying ‘The boogeyman’s going to get you’ my parents would tell me, ‘The Republicans are going to get you.’”

Larry Lawrence and the Greasing of American Politics

By Thomas K. Arnold

During the 1991 presidential campaign, Michael Dukakis was a popular candidate. He ran on a platform of social and economic reform, promising to address issues such as healthcare and education. Despite facing intense criticism, Dukakis was able to win the nomination and go on to become the 39th president of the United States.

Lucy Glickman and the Cover-up

Lucy Glickman, a former White House correspondent, has been involved in a series of scandals that have come to light in recent months. Glickman, who has worked for several prominent news organizations, including The New York Times and The Washington Post, has been accused of misusing her position to advance her own interests.

Storytelling about the past has always been a popular form of entertainment. The Oral History Project is an initiative that seeks to preserve and share the stories of our community. The project has been working with local residents to collect and document their memories of the past. The stories are then compiled into a book, which is made available to the public.

“My son was a very good student,” said a parent. “He loved school and was always eager to learn.”

The parent, who requested anonymity, said that her son was a straight-A student and had a bright future ahead of him. The parent expressed concern that the school’s focus on test scores and standardized assessments was hampering her son’s education.

“Of course, the school is offering extracurricular activities, but they are not as important as the academic curriculum.”

The parent said that her son was involved in several extracurricular activities, including sports and music, but that she was worried that these activities were not being given the attention they deserved.

“I think the school should focus more on providing a well-rounded education, not just preparing students for standardized tests.”

The parent said that she would consider homeschooling her son if the situation did not improve.

“Of course, I love my son, but I want him to have the best education possible.”

The parent said that she would continue to work with the school to address her concerns and make sure that her son received the education he deserved.

Mayoral Appointee Embodies Ethnic Diversity, Coyly Considers Political Future
By Jimmy Reno

F ortune smiled on Jimmy Reno, an architect, and downtown apartment manager, when he was given the chance to build a public housing project in the Heights. He’s been a part of the community for years, and the people there are thrilled to have a local man in charge.

Reno was appointed to the Heights Housing Authority by the mayor, who is looking to diversify the city’s political landscape.

“People here are excited to have someone who understands their needs,” said a resident. “He’s been a part of this community for so long, and he really listens to what people have to say.”

Reno is coy about his political aspirations, but he’s not hiding them either. He’s been planning for this moment for a long time, and he’s not afraid to let people know he’s interested in public office.

Meanwhile, the mayor is facing criticism for his appointment, with some saying he chose someone who is too close to his own circle of friends.

Still, the people in the Heights are happy with their new leader, and they’re proud to see one of their own in such a high position.

The mayor has a lot of work to do, but he’s confident that Reno will be able to help.

“Jimmy’s got a plan,” said a local activist. “He knows what needs to be done, and he’s not afraid to take action.”

Reno’s appointment is a step in the right direction, and people are excited to see what he can do.

Ethnic Diversity

African Americans are the largest minority group in the country, making up about 13% of the population. They have faced significant challenges throughout history, from slavery to discrimination and violence. The civil rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s was a major turning point for African Americans, leading to the passage of landmark legislation like the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Today, African Americans continue to fight for equality and justice in areas like education, employment, and voting rights.

Shelley's case against Horton Plaza Associates is at least the fourth alleging false imprisonment, battery, and assault since the mall opened in 1983.

Alleged Mall Maui Victim Sues Horton Plaza for $2.25 Million
By Melinda Powelson

Webber was cited as the first person to charge the bull in the ring, and according to Webber, he was the only one who could get close to the bull. He said, "I was standing right in front of the bull, and I was about to get kicked in the face. I was screaming and yelling, and I finally got the bull to turn around and run away." Webber said the bull was about 20 feet away at the time.

Horton Plaza officials initially denied that any bullfighting took place, but later apologized and offered a $2,500 settlement to Webber.

Many shopping centers in the area have had similar incidents, including Victoria's Secret at the Horton Plaza, where a bullfighting event was reported.

In 2019, a federal lawsuit was filed against Horton Plaza for false imprisonment, assault, and battery.

HEAR MY HEART
POUNDING

BY RICHARD RANDEL

Heart of Darkness

A Southern Californian Meets New York's Most Dangerous Writer

By Abe Opincar
Illustration by Steven Cerino

o me, my question is: Where does one begin? With Heart of Darkness? With the origin of the novel? With the author's life? With the context of the time? Where does one begin? With the text itself? With the striking first sentence? "The night before an interview with Heart of Darkness..."

The novel begins with a scene on a steamboat, slowly approaching the Congo River. A man named Marlow is sitting on the deck, telling the story of a man named Kurtz, who has fallen into madness and death in the jungle. Marlow is a skilled storyteller, and he uses his words to transport us into the heart of the darkness.

"Heart of Darkness" is a classic of literature, and it remains relevant today. The themes of colonialism, imperialism, and the human condition are as relevant as ever. The novel is a powerful reminder of the dangers of ignorance and the importance of understanding.

"But what a novel!" said one of the listeners. "Just what I wanted to hear!"

"Yes," replied the other. "And what a story!"

"Heart of Darkness" is a work of art, and it continues to influence writers and readers alike. It is a testament to the power of language and the human imagination.
DEAD AGAIN

X-Rays, Fear, and Silence

BY JOE BROUDE

Last Saturday night, the television was turned on at my house. As the credits began to roll, an inky black and white film began to flow. It was the first scene from a classic horror movie. The camera panned across the room, flickering with the eerie light of the neon sign, "Dead Again." I felt a shiver run down my spine, and I knew that this night was going to be full of suspense and fear.

As the movie progressed, the tension increased. The characters were trapped in a desperate situation, their lives hanging in the balance. It was a heart-pounding experience, one that I couldn't tear my eyes away from. I found myself on the edge of my seat, my heart racing with every jump scare.

As the end credits began to roll, I breathed a sigh of relief. The experience was intense, but it was also exhilarating. I had never felt so connected to a movie before. It was as if I was right there, living through the horror alongside the characters.

I look forward to the next time I see "Dead Again." I know that it will be just as terrifying and exciting. The suspense is what keeps me coming back, and I'm excited to see what they'll come up with next.

A Few Good Men

REVIEW

A few good men - a movie title, as the poster claims, but a phrase, perhaps, that more aptly describes the story's main characters. The plot centers around a legal dispute between two companies, McAvoy and Nash, over the rights to a new technology. The two men, played by Jack Nicholson and Tom Cruise, are the key figures in the case, with Cruise's character, McAvoy, representing the plaintiff and Nicholson's character, Nash, representing the defendant.

Cruise, more so than Nicholson, has a much more compelling role to play. He is the underdog, fighting against the odds, and his performance is riveting. Nicholson, on the other hand, is more of a supporting player, but he still manages to hold his own.

The movie is successful in its portrayal of corporate greed and the legal system. The dialogue is sharp and witty, and the performances are top-notch. Overall, "A Few Good Men" is a great movie that will keep you on the edge of your seat.

A Review

A few good men

His patented kicked-in-the-head-by-a-mule expression has gotten a little old.

His style lacks the edge that was once the hallmark of the character. No longer the bad boy with the bad attitude, he now appears more subdued and lacks the charisma that made him famous. His performance is lacking in energy and is not as engaging as in past roles. The audience is left wondering what happened to the man who once commanded the screen with his magnetic Presence.

Many Parts Are Edible
The Strangely Versatile World of the Ubiquitous Frond

Pay palms and a human together and you get one of the world's most versatile plants. In a sense, it's everything: a food, a fuel, a paper, a medicine, a model and, after a few years, a great rug. The frond, the long, slender, frilly leaves, is used for everything from making palm wine to building a house. It's also edible, and it's easy to cultivate at home.

If you're not familiar with palm fronds, you might be surprised to learn that they can be used to make everything from paper to plastic. In some parts of the world, people even use them to build houses. And they're not just limited to the tropics - you can find them growing all over the world, from the Andes mountains to the Amazon rainforest.

"Imagery in Motion: An Exhibition of Prison Envelopes" in Balboa Park

I am writing this article to share my thoughts on the exhibition "Imagery in Motion: An Exhibition of Prison Envelopes" in Balboa Park. The exhibition is a unique and innovative way to showcase the creativity and artistry of prisoners who have been incarcerated. The envelopes, made from recycled paper and different materials, are a testament to the ingenuity and talent of the artists who created them. The exhibition is a powerful reminder of the importance of human rights and the value of art in expressing the experiences of those who have been wrongfully imprisoned.

The envelopes are not only visually striking but also thought-provoking. They challenge the viewer to reflect on the consequences of incarceration and the need for fair and just systems. The exhibition is a call to action, a reminder that we must continue to work towards a world where everyone is treated with dignity and respect, regardless of their background or circumstances.

The exhibition is open to the public from now until February 28th. I encourage everyone to visit and support this important initiative. Together, we can make a difference and ensure that everyone has the opportunity to express themselves and their experiences through the medium of art.
Seek Him in the Kingdom of Anxiety
Auden’s Christmas, Haunted by Doubt and Ecstasy

In his poem "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man," James Joyce reflects on the young man's search for identity in a world of confusion and disillusionment. Auden's Christmas, Haunted by Doubt and Ecstasy, is a reflection on the theme of doubt and existential uncertainty in the modern world.

Phone Matches Success Stories:
Arne Madruga and Maxine Brown

ATTORNEY-CAPRICORN'S 40th birthday wish: To meet relationship-minded man. Brynly, creative, honest, intelligent, open-minded.

Master: I'd like to publish in other publications for a long time. I see a few people here and there. I decided to place a Phone Matches ad, and got a really good response. Arne was the last person to respond to my ad.

Arne: We met on the couple of January and we met in 1999 (a little bit earlier actually).

Master: On our first date at Club's, we sat down right away. We discussed music; we both very involved in music. He plays the guitar and I'm a violinist.

Arne: On our first date, when I walked her out to the car, I asked if I could kiss her; she said, "Yes." Master: After that dinner for 1, 1, "I told her, "Let's do it again."

Arne: We've had great rapport from the very beginning.

Master: And we have fun together too. On Halloween we put black and white car over our suits and dress as Master and Mistress Mouse.

Arne: Then we were dancing in a costume party in Mimi's and stuck in corners.

Master: San Diego is a big place. I really don't think we would have ever met if I hadn't placed my ad in Phone Matches.

Arne: I just think we were a little special because of the traditional idea they're supposed to be sought and if they play at all, they find they're not being enough. It is not true. I recommend Phone Matches to everyone who's interested and wants someone you can talk to, a much better culture of gentleman this way.

Master: Arne's been so supportive. Whenever I've asked him, he's been very nice. They were very welcome.

Arne: We've never had a fight, nobody believes that.

Master: His mother thinks we are the fighting.

Arne: We've decided to continue our relationship to the extent of having our relationship if you want.

Master: We plan each other on and we can even have "things." I believe you can have the part of you that works with the other person and keep it, and you. All the things that are going to be fun or exciting or meaningful or fulfilling, part of the person you fell in love with is gone.

Arne: We count on our foundations: daily exercise of humor, constant, enjoyable support and communication, love, affection, and of course, San Dieg.

Island. Perhaps Island Records' most important artist, Bob Marley's catalog has been re-packaged several times since his 1981 death. Songs of Freedom is an overview that cuts his career from his days in Kingston singing ska music with the Wailers, starting through his years as an increasingly reclusive man. The four-disc, 78-track package, which runs from 1968-80, was released on Monday's late Tall Gable label (Island via PolyGram). The enclosed 64-page booklet includes several essays as well as background information on all tracks and personnel.

Marina,)throws balance. The Monitor (Rake's Mongram 8921) is a four-disc collection focusing on the latter days of "The Sound of Young America." Some 30 different artists are represented, including some surprises as well as the obvious legends.

RCA: MCA, RCA's catalog department realized its big time this year with "The King of Rock N Roll"—The Complete "50s Masters. If ever there was a boxed set that needed to exist this was the one. Everything recorded by Elvis Presley from the last two years—1952 through the last single and all of the RCA sides. The 16-disc is great over a ten hour and a half Marathon, with the collection's pace back to Rock 'n Roll roots, solid sound quality, and makes the trip through future. And much better than the new box from King Writers and The Killers. The Middle Years is a four-CD collection of BBC sessions, interviews, and personal appearances.

Rhino/Round-trip records released the country piano The Piano Records Collection 1979-1980 record label. Arnold Ariste recorded the four-CD collection, now Icon CMG, over four sessions on the in-demand studio sound quality and ambiance, including the songs of "Somebody's On Your Side," "I Think It's Over," and "I Can't Say No." The Piano Records Collection 1979-1980 is divided into three sections: "Big Band and Orchestras," "Small Groups and Ca" and "Lilacs."

LA GRANDE PECORA (at 1210 14th St., 1030 14th St., and 1130 14th St. in the West End) offers some of the best Italian cuisine in town. The atmosphere is warm and inviting, with soft lighting that enhances the ambiance. The menu features a variety of pasta dishes, wood-fired pizzas, and an extensive selection of wines.

MALPASO (at 1120 14th St. in the West End) is another excellent option for Italian food. The restaurant is known for its fresh ingredients and traditional recipes. The pasta dishes are especially noteworthy, and the seafood is consistently high-quality.

The holiday adventure.
For a taste of the exotic, explore Starbucks.

It's that time of year when gift giving takes precedence. To be a great giver, a great receiver—each is an art.

After receiving an elephant from an admiring maharajah, Marilyn Monroe spent days fretting over how to graciously decline, finally confessing that her house was too small.

Had the maharajah settled on something a little smaller but no less exotic, like some Starbucks Arabian Mocha Java, Miss Monroe probably would have accepted with pleasure.

"WHEN YOU SHOP AT STARBUCKS, YOU'RE SHOPPING THE WORLD." — William Sibley, overheard

For inspired, thoughtful and imaginative gifts, there's no place quite like Starbucks. Where else can you explore Kenya, Colombia, Java, Costa Rica, Kona, Mexico and Arabia in an afternoon?

Not only do we offer coffees from the most exotic reaches of the globe, we also offer the finest brewing equipment and accessories, and something you won't find anywhere else: our people. They're what make the Starbucks experience truly a joy.

This Christmas, do all your shopping over coffee. Start your holiday adventure at Starbucks.

"WHEN WE SAY THAT WE'LL GO TO THE ENDS OF THE EARTH FOR THE BEST COFFEE WE MEAN IT." — Kevin Jansen, coffee specialist
