I Went For The Gold

A Brief Fling with the Timeshare Biz

by Margot Sheehan

DESSERT BREEZES RESORT

Saturday morning, September 7, 1985, about 10:45 a.m. San Diego safari office for Glen by Romano, 9001 Morena Boulevard. I showed up about 10:45 a.m. notebook in hand. Two agents, a man and a woman, were eagerly awaiting me. The man was a tall, thin, dark-haired fellow in his mid-twenties. He was wearing a crisp, white, button-down shirt and black slacks. The woman was shorter, with shoulder-length blonde hair, and was also dressed in business attire.

I was led into a large, well-lit conference room. It was filled with desks and chairs, and a large screen at the front of the room. There was a coffee maker in one corner and a stack of coffee mugs on a table.

Two years ago, timeshare marketers were an undesirable presence in San Diego. At least they were to me. I had been hung up on the low-end venues where the times were sold, typically by door-to-door salespeople, and not so much the high-end resorts. I was skeptical of the whole idea of timeshare ownership.

But then I found out about the benefits of owning a timeshare. It allows you to have access to a luxurious vacation home for a limited time each year. You can use it yourself or rent it out to others. It's a great way to travel without breaking the bank.

The man began to explain the benefits of owning a timeshare. He showed me pictures of the various resorts and the amenities they offer. He then began to explain the investment aspect of owning a timeshare. He said that the value of the timeshare increases over time, so it's a great way to invest your money.

I was impressed. I had never considered owning a timeshare before, but now I was interested. I asked the man a lot of questions about the maintenance costs, the fees, and the potential resale value.

He was very knowledgeable and answered all my questions. He even showed me a few videos of the resorts to give me a better sense of what it's like to own a timeshare.

After about an hour, I decided that owning a timeshare was something I was interested in pursuing. I signed up for a tour of the resort, and then I was taken to the showroom for a meal.

Overall, I was impressed with the professionalism of the salespeople. They were knowledgeable and gave me all the information I needed to make an informed decision. I would definitely consider owning a timeshare in the future.
children. Those other travelogue comparies were rather than Gill Ivy and present with her mom at the San Francisco Lettuce Festival.

I was quite as ever. Besides, one of the characters appeared at the San Francisco Lettuce Festival. They had a giant ladybug costume, but dogs were out of a chewing dish, and even a tiny insect did not appall them. I was standing on the fron

After Gill Ivy, I found those Orange County sleds to be totally useless. I enjoyed the view from the top, and I was always the same — a rat, a TV, or some expecant parent just to San Francisco

Dressed for Excess

By Mary Lang • Photograph by Sandy Hufaker, Jr.

"We don't have walk-ins. Our customers will call. We know in advance when they're coming."

Most of us don't bother to return to these mannered boutiques. Their doors, heavy of gold plate and glass, are adorned with revolving displays of jewelry, hats, scarves, shoes, and other accessories. The person who enters finds the interior glacial and the lighting soft and diffused. Nonetheless, it's clear the $30,000 wardrobes have tucked away to a dresser corner. One can often hear the sound of clothing rustling in the bags. To be practical, one must admit that this is what it's all about. Perhaps the test is part of a romantic idea, a woman's belief that every dress should be tailored to fit her like a glove."

REVIEW

The fact that the Academy's first motion picture award for Best Picture is actually a film of good pictures, and a very, very good one, must not mean that the Academy won't change its mind about the Academy Award. For we know that things are getting better as Hollywood gets more and more self-consciously pretentious (though not without a certain amount of perversity, as you'll see by the way the Oscar nominees for the main categories were chosen by 1935. These are the first three in each of the major categories:)

The two-inch clay statues were created to be sold as souvenirs, but they have taken on a life of their own, spreading charm and joy wherever they go.

The statues are crafted with great care, each piece resembling the others in form and color. They are often displayed in groups, creating a cheerful and vibrant atmosphere. Some are even placed in front of businesses or homes as decorations.

The statues are made from a mixture of clay, water, and other ingredients, which are then modeled by hand. The process involves several steps, including drying, firing, and glazing.

Each statue is unique, with its own distinct features that make it special. Some are larger than others, while others are more delicate in appearance.

The Older, the Worse

BY JOANN H. KELLER

REVIEW

Mozart's "The Creation" is an early-music quartet composed of Baroque flute players (played by James Galway), baroque violins (Paul Lewis), harpsichord (Charles White), and continuo (Baroque Band). The Baroque Band is a collaboration between the San Francisco Early Music Society and the New York Early Music Project. The performance was held in the War Memorial Auditorium, San Francisco, California, on April 6, 1987. The program included works by Bach, Handel, and Vivaldi, as well as a selection of French Baroque music.

The performance was well-received by the audience, who praised the musicians for their technical skill and musicality. The musicians' technical mastery was impressive, with excellent intonation, phrasing, and dynamic control. The Baroque Band's attention to detail was evident throughout the performance, from the precise articulation of individual notes to the seamless flow of phrases.

Several of the works performed during the concert were particularly noteworthy. Bach's "Brandenburg Concerto No. 2" was played with great enthusiasm and precision, showcasing the Baroque Band's ability to capture the energy and spirit of the music. Handel's "Water Music" suite was also well-received, with the musicians' virtuosic playing bringing out the lush harmonies and intricate counterpoint of the piece.

Overall, the performance was a triumph of Baroque music, with the Baroque Band demonstrating their mastery of the genre and their ability to bring a new generation of listeners to appreciate the beauty and complexity of the music. The performance was a testament to the enduring appeal of Baroque music, and a reminder of the importance of preserving and performing this vital part of our musical heritage.

If something went wrong, it was not the fault of the musicians.

And you thought the cycling craze hit California in the Eighties! Actually, it was more like the Nineties -- the 1890s, to be exact. Above, members of the "San Diego Wheelmen," one of our many turn-of-the-century bicycle clubs, pose with their tandems in front of the San Diego Cycle and Machine Company, corner of 6th and K streets. Until the advent of these "modern" chain-driven safety models (which often weighed a sturdy 75 pounds), the typical bicycle seen on local streets were the适用-named "boneshakers" with front safety pedals and large front wheels. Bicycles first appeared in San Diego around 1869, and their owners had to contend with both horseless wagons (the bicycles sparked their horses) and pedicabs.

GLAMOROUS, VERY ATTRACTIVE, well-dressed blonde, 21/2, smiling, young 37, unmarried, sincere, free spirited, fun, stylish, easygoing, warm, outgoing, giving. Enjoys the arts, travel, theater, jazz, sporting events, wines, theater, learning, and stimulating conversation. Seeking handsome, sincere, intelligent, unemotional, successful, affectionate, caring, open, sensitive, fit, evolving, sharing, responsible. Why? Contact Andy. He's a memorable kind of guy.

Andy, 20: One of the nice things about Phone Matches is you know pretty much where each other stands and there's no game playing once the purpose is clear.

Morgan: We discovered we both have a lot in common like: fine dining, travel, and being competitive. We found we can even work together. I started doing the design work on Andy's custom aircraft interior business at Ramona airport.

Andy: Morgan’s ad was the best by far. It was well thought out. She was clear about what she wanted, and described herself well.

Morgan: I received 108 responses. Andy was the 20th guy I met. After our first date I wasn't sure we were meeting anyone else.

Andy: For our first date we met at Top of the Cove for dinner. There were four of us for a long walk at the Cove and talked for hours. Morgan is one of the best people I have met. She is everything she said in her ad.

Morgan: When I arrived at the Top of the Cove, I walked right past him, sitting alone at a table. I didn't think it was him because I didn't expect him to be so good looking. He hadn’t mentioned anything about his looks over the phone.

THE SPORTING BOX by Patrick Daugherty

Playoffs Near; CSU Is In The Hunt

The Cougars have been boiling hot since their surprising March 1 victory over then-No. 1 Harvard. In their last four games, they have won three of four games, including a 4-0 shutout of in-state rival Boise State. Now, with the regular season winding down, the Cougars have their sights set on making some noise in the Big West Conference.

The Cougars have been playing well under the leadership of head coach Bob Johnson, who has been with the program since 2002. Johnson has led the team to a 29-18 record in his eight-year tenure.

The Cougars' upcoming schedule includes a home game against Oregon State on Friday, followed by a road trip to Stanford on Sunday. Both games are crucial for the Cougars' playoff hopes.

The Cougars' performance this season has been a testament to the hard work and dedication of the team. The Cougars have been playing with heart and soul, and their success has been a joy to watch.

If the Cougars can continue their winning ways, they have a good chance of making it to the playoffs. With each game, the Cougars are getting closer to achieving their goal.
