Why does SOLID GOLD HOLISTIC ANIMAL NUTRITION CENTER NOT use animal fats in its HUND-N-FLOCKEN (means dog food flakes in German) DOG FOOD and KATZ-N-FLOCKEN?

Research facilities have (unfortunately) long used dogs and cats to research human disease. We looked into human problems and reversed these speculations into dog and cat conditions.

When you dehydrate animal fat (saturated fat), it may become rancid. Rancid fat could be toxic to the body. Some pet food companies may use BHA, BHT or ethoxyquin as a chemical preservative for these fats. Is othoxyquin in the food you are now feeding your pet? Reading the ingredients. He mean the manufacturer puts ethoxyquin in the food, the law says it must be listed part of the ingredients. He mean the manufacturer but of the food, the law says it must be listed apt of the ingredients. He next the manufacturer but of the food, the law says it must be listed to list it in the list of ingredients. We often wonder what the promotion therature of a pet food manufacturer means when it says, "no added

Solid Gold had its HUND-N-FLOCKEN, KATZ-N-FLOCKEN and Solid Gold Natural Herbal Dog Food assayed for the presence of BHT, BHA and ethoxyquin. None was found.

The February 1991 issue of Whole Foods magazine quotes a study of a risk factor of breast cancer and saturated fats. Breast cancer can kill your dog. It is called canine mammary neoplasia. It is the most common tumor in the female dog.

The December 12, 1990, issue of the New England Journal of Medicine stated that the more animal fat people consume, the greater the chance of getting cancer of the colon.

For years, the U.S. Surgeon General has been recommending that people cut down on animal fat (saturated fat) because of the link to cancer, bear disease and obesity. The Surgeon General also said that (23 of all health problems and deaths were diet related.

Solid Gold chose unstantated vegetable eils for its pet foods such as canola oil (known as an aid to heart circulation), and flaxseed oil is high in Omega 3 and Omega 6 E.F.A. (essential fatty acids). Omega 3 and Omega 6 are important herapies in allergic doips and cast, because they may lessen inflammation.

Solid Gold HUND-N-FLOCKEN and KATZ-N-H-COCKEN contain lamb, fish, millet, barley and rice. No soybeans, no wheat, no corn, no beef, no salt and no sugar—as in sugar beet pulp. We use blueberries for the eyes; yucca for bone and joint problems, as well as body and solo door control.

We use beta-carotene, which is being studied by the National Cancer Institute for its role in preventing cancer, as well as its role in preventing allergies in pets allergie to flea saliva; and finally, bee pollen — long thought an aid to airborne allergies and long life. As you can see, our dog and cat food is not another me-too lamb and rice diet. No other pet food can even come close to our superior

HUND-N-FLOCKEN is available in 4, 15 and 30 pounds, KATZ-N-FLOCKEN (high taurine, low magnesium) is available in 4- and 15-

Why did SOLID GOLD HOLISTIC ANIMAL NUTRITION CENTER choose NOT to use chicken/poultry in its HUND-N-FLOCKEN (means dog food flakes in German) and KATZ-N-FLOCKEN?

After reading Dr. Virginia Livingstone-Wheeler's book entitled Chicken: A Cancer in Every Pot, we decided to do further research.

After reading Dr. Virginia Livingstone-Wheeler's book entitled Chicken: A Cancer in Every Pot. we decided to do further research.

In March 1987, the 60 Minutes TV program surveyed the chicken/poultry industry. They found that 58% of the chickens they tested contained salmonella poisoning. Other chickens contained unnors and filth. These were the chickens that were considered fit for human consumption.

In July 1987, the Community Nutrition Center in Washington, D.C. recommended that the public boycost all products containing chicken or were talking about products that the government put a sign on all such products saying. "This product could be hazardous to your health." They link hally 1987 Price Club Journal, there is an article about consumption.

In the July 1987 Price Club Journal, there is an article about consummated food. It says chicken contains antibiotics, gentian violet*, nitrofurans' we dare not speculate where the chickens went that were classified unfit for human consumption.

Barbara Mejia and Rick Bunch are more angry at the I'V station handling of the allegations are station handling of the allegation gray at the I'V station handling of the allegation long them. "We can't blame Ross [Calvillo] for being irrational or for the others for being fright-ened." Barbara Mejia said. "But we can blame Channel 99 for irresponsible reporting." The I'V station sensationalized and distorted the charges. Mejia and Bunch contend, in order to make it appear that American (the I'V crew) an hour-and-a-half tour of the factory," Bunch said, "and they saw for themselves that chis is not a toxic workplace."

merican Fashion occupies a 144,000 opaser- foot warehouse on I. Street in a Chule Vita industrial park, just east of 1-5. The factory floor is wide open, like an airplane hangar. Rows of floorescent lights hang about 15 feet over the worker's heads, suspended from the ceiling on long conds. On one sale of the ceiling on long conds. On one sold other garment factories, they are all men — work with power saws on 60-foot-long tables. (Cutters are traditionally the highest-paid garment workers. They make up to 514 or 515 an hour. The steam rise from the pressing machines, which look like rounded ironing boards with metal lish, as the operators open and close them hundreds of times a day. Some of the seamstresses work just a few feet from these pressing machines. Get an indication why, despite the apparent validity of many of their complaints. A few moments later, other seamstresses complained to Mejia that the staples the factory uses in place of pins were cutting their fingers. Thus, while injection of the problems, both personal ("I have to leave for a dentit appointment") and professional ("Ny machine inst tworking"). Thus, while injection of the problems, most American Fashion employees apparently feel that they must look to the union to remedy their complaints.

Another obstacle to Calvillo's gaining supmigrant group working at the factory. Younger Asian immigrant are being hired to replace the retiring Medicain immigrants.
