Bouvia, a former San Diegan who has been par-alyzed since birth with cerebral palsy, became a celebrity in the right-to-dic debate when she asked officials at a Riverside hospital to stop feeding her. When the hospital refused to grant her wish to starve, Bou-via's story made headlines. She was profiled on a number of mational news shows, includ-ing 60 Minutes, and received thousands of letters — some supportive, others damning. "At one point during all of that, I was getting so many letters that they had to close down the public, the touchstone of "crip consciousness": an overwhelming sense of rage. For Milam, rage was slow in discovery. For years he didn't think of himself as crippled. For sonneone of his generation, disability was not to be acknowledged. The risks were too great. (Limbs paralyzed by pollo were sometimes amputated because some doctors felt the patients were better of without them.) Forty years ago, choices for cripples were few. The main task was to be unnoticed. When I got up in the morning I practiced this. When I got up to the standing position, it was really good at it, I did it so quickly that you didn't even notice arthing, I mean, people would always underestimate the extent of my disability.

And so Milam the Princeton.

And so Milam the Cripple went unnoticed while the other Milam proceeded into the world. But the world into which he proceeded was very different from the one in which he now lives. A fair measure of this difference is that when Milam enrolled in A fair measure of this difference is that when Milam enrolled in and arrived at Haverford, a Quaker college in Pennsylvania ("I wanted to get out of the South, and I didn't want to go back to Yale"), the school's administration made no allowance for his ected to amble about on crutches, climb 19 steps to the dining hall, as if nothing were wrong with his legs

These expectations were not in themselves exceptional—cripples, at that time, were either hidden away or, if they made their row just not public, were supposed to bend in with the able-bodied. However, these Quakers—and according to Milam, Haverford was a very Quaker school—never gove their expectation as second thought. These relative place that the state of the school period with the school period of th

The dutiful, acquiescent youth at Haverford, daily laboring up those 19 steps to eat, had eventually to become the anger eventually to become the angry middle-aged man who wrote The Cripple Liberation Front Marching Band Blues. This transition would require, of course, a crisis, perhaps two, something that would break him, once again, so he could, once again, recreate himself.

he first crisis, or really the beginning of a very long first crisis, happened in 1939. It was the kind of ironic scenario on which writers and philosophers thrive. Millam's initial existential crack-up occurred when he was, quite literally, set free. After finishing his education, he inherited a pile of money—an amount that today would be worth well over a million dollars.

Milam took it and ran to Spain.

A portrait of him from that period hangs in his San Diego house. It is a very Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man portrait black-and-white, slightly blurred, taken by an itinerant photographer black-and-white, slightly blurred, taken by an itinerant photographer in Malaga. Milam, bushy haired, wearing a dark sweater and round horn-rim glasses, looks like a young James Joyce, seated on a wrought-iron bench, flanked by two children. The photo has an oddly Third World feel. The image is faint, washed out, and seems like a memory from pre-World War II Europe.

The photograph was taken just before a battle, albeit one fought in Milain's mind. The Cripple's narrative meanders until Milam arrives in Spain. There it stops and acquires a terrible seriousness of purpose.

When Milam arrives on the Costa del Sol, he rents a small

When Milam strives on the Costa del Sol, he rents a small seatide house. In the fly-blown village where he stays, his story becomes less about crippled him and more about a man confronted with a tremendous dilemma. Without giving the plot away, it is enough to know that this story's drama is generated by a single moral disability. Milam's all-too-human flaw or hamartia, as the Greeks "Don't be

It's hard to think of another secular confessional so intently guided by self-betrayal. The Cripple's Spanish section belongs to an older tradition, for example, St. Augustine's Confessions. An agnostic, however, can be more unforgiving than God. Milam had no one to pardon him for his flaw. His self-pity was his constant no one to partion him for his thaw. Fits self-pity was his constant companion, his convenient, all-purpose excuse for manipulating and using other people, for, in short, doing wrong.

If it seems strange Milam's book details the bowel habits of bed-ridden cripples and later adopts a high moral tone, it's important to remember that the ambittion of The Cripple is to say things that hadn't been said before about disability. Milam wanted to distroy

But juries proved unwilling to convict for illegal fornication, so prostitutes continued to be punished while their customers went free. Lower-class prostitutes were often picked up and ar-rested, while the mistresses of the affluent were ignored. Statistics compiled from San Diego Po-lice jail registers of the 1920s show that black women were more likely to be arrested on pros-titution-related charges than white women. When a girl was up, she greeted her diesel at the top of the statiss, waring a wrapper. She led him to her room, examined his penis for signs of disease, opened her wrapper and lay wrapper. She led him to her room, examined the client with warm premiscide laced water and song, dried him, saw him out the door and prepared for her next client. She gave a dollar of her fee to the madam. Call girls sometimes gave cabbies or hell crustains a dollar if they referred customers, although the vice caught considered this pinning, man they caught receiving a whore's take not pensis. If each girl plays 26 over yrick, paying the police $50 a month was a considerable share of her earnings. In return for this fee, she received "protection" — or at least she was not harassed.

Lyle Cuthric contends that "I'a girl ever stole a buck from a gwy, she'd never stake around. We'd throw her in jail. We'd hound her until the court either threw her in country jaif for six months, or we gave her a floatter' out of town. Very rarely did other girls would be right there. In addition to madams and girls in broth-els, Guthrie remembers a number of call girls. Guthrie claims even just led rist at every ho-tel — from the Maryland to the St. James to the U.S. Grant to the El Cortez — knew girls a guest could shup for a price. In the Casa is a release and an except from the tension of years of vegues, inabbtant, and the control of the control of the repair origin.

Palmer was born in 1879, the son of one of Queen Victoria's Jadies-in-waiting, seduced by the then-rak. But most people these days just want a nice bit of tiling and the odd period fountain. As one old friend noted of Palmer, "A sort of hapsob pervaded him." And this gives his house an anachronistic absurdity that nevertheless erily predates California's later peddling of ecletic mysticisms.

Originally, La Casa de las loyas was intended to be the home of the president of an architecture school, whose classrooms were to have been breated on what is now the La Jolla Beach and Tenic Ush. The Depression his to soon for that plan to materialize, and Palmer finished the boost in straightened circumstances. He and floor of dragged atomes from the above for the other contracts of the entrance hall, the pebble decoration of the

You feel his presence here so clearly that you feel as if you're being watched by him. He poured so much of himself into it that every inch of it has something of him in it. That's the house's charm." Much of the mini-palace's obvious oriental-ism, by reputation, was actually fostered by the two reinted lady interior decoration from Chicago, the property of the control of the control of the lady of the control of the control of the control of the lady of the control of the control of the control of the lady of the control of the control of the control of the lady of the control of the control of the control of the control of the lady of the control of the con

Miss Correlision, in a 1984 interview, said,
"A lot of people dislike the sharp contrast of the Far-Eastern with the modern architecture which spreads all over the La Jolla shores. If they knew how lovely, serene, and quiet this place really is, they would soon forget the clash of deigns." And her sister added. "When Palmer came to visit us, he was past 70. He said this house symbolized everything he ever dreamed of or hoped for, it was as he called the house."

It's a proselytizing and perhaps over-intense attitude to building house. And its quest for an elusive authenticity of feeling is clearly belied by the pastiche pseudo-orientalism of the design. Today, the traffic of Torrey Pines Road disturbs what must once have been the pastoral quiet of the little bamboo grove and the shady pebble paths, not to mention the meditative courtyrafts and domed rooms with their clusters of Indian columns and albaster arches.

The photo depicts the sad state of Tijuana. A beautiful woman, Tijuana. A beautiful woman, whom the artist claims is Tijuana, looks badly beaten, tattered and torn, bandaged and stripped of clothes, almost as if stripped of dignity. The rundown, powerly-stricken barrio

If you are trying to say that Tijuana is "not a city of prosti-tutes," you have sadly contra-dicted yourself. It seems to me that you have now become the biggest padrote (pimp) in

Have you no shame?
Where is this artist's integrity?
The real embarrassment is the sign. It is a slap on the face and a debasement of women. It says, "Tijuana is like a woman for sale."

I haven't seen or heard from her in over two years. I am more than a bit miffed at Armando Muñoz Garcia's representation of Ti-juana and La Mujer Blanca.

extent depriving it of its ring. There is no weakening of sup-port, no wobbling, no other signs of technical decay. But the resonances are different from what they were, and the resemblance to Bjoerling's voice is less pronounced. I was also disconcerted by a certain mannered quality in some of this singing, a sense of the artificial imposition of ex-pression by the mechanical use of routine devices, rather than the impression of a sponta-neous upwelling from the heart. I do not mean to exaggerate this criticism, for the mannerisms cessively assertive: they dwell, rather, at the edges of percep-tion, as slight though noticeable irritants. It is worth mentioning, by the way, that the inadequate printed program, devoid of notes or texts, created as many difficulties for the singer as for the audience, for Carreras found himself trying to com-municate to listeners who for the most part had little idea of what the words he was singing meant. This supplemental irri-tant in a concert that did not tant in a concert that did not need more of them was the fault of the singer's management, not of San Diego Opera, which would certainly have liked to give their very expensive guest artist and their very generous patrons all the support they could.

Cumming, such a blade may carry specific meaningful asso-ciations, but for the ordinary museum-goer it cannot be any-thing but a common industrial object of scarcely any human consequence. Unlike Cezame's bottles or Van Gogh's boots, it is not portrayed so as to imply the lived human life in which it plays a role. This is a beautiful painting about nothine, and as an and as a second or and a second control or carried to the control or carried to the control or carried to carried ca magnificent (if enigmatic) Shield House of the South, with Sinear Troise of the South, With its Jittery array of partially opened awnings against a glow-ing sunset sky. Equally gratifying to the eye is the pleas-ant, lively, light-filled, culturally enriched domestic interior of Nine Line Light, Room and Nine Line Light, Room and Home, with its reflections on the polished piano lid, its per-spective composition leading invitingly into a further room, and its marbleized panels and fragments of capital-letter texts on the walls. Suggestive surre-alistic fantasies, such as painting about nothing, and as such it is emblematic of Cumming's work as a whole. He is a highly gifted technician, with a highly gifted technician, with a superb sense of design, but with virtually nothing of value to say about anything that really counts. Giotto had Christianity, Poussin had Christianity, Poussin had cure, Vermeer had domesticity, Delacrois had revolution; Piccasso had women; but as for Cumming. The last couple of years, I've been fooling around with floor tile patterns. Plain/Painted Parts (a mottled tan plain with odd mechanical and geometrical objects scat-tered over it) and Orbits Down, talent finds himself in a culture that cannot supply him with a deep, comprehensive, soulshaping view of life. The eye/ear logic of words will not do it, nor will the Warholian com nor will the Warholian com-modity thing. What is left is emptiness. Cumming's Cone of Vision is a monument to the tragic spiritual waste that seems to be the destiny of artists in our arid fin de siècle.

A Piece of My Heart
The Swectooth Comedy Theatre has extended the run of its most popular production ever for the scond time. Shirley Lauro's theater piece follows a familiar path.
It's about people who went to Vietnam looking for adventure only to become disillusioned and scarred, then to return home to even greater disillusionment — rejection are against the war. But there's a difference. Six of the play's seven characters are women, and A Pirce of My Heart, which is based on Keith Walker's oral history of the same name, chronicles who women went through as nurses, enterrainers, and in pelling the seven the government can't say with ac-curacy how many women served, since no records were kept. And obviously no records were kept for childing are many mentities acreed, the composition of the parameter of the composition o haven't seen all its efforts, this is by far the best production I've ever seen at Sweetooth. The intensity of the cast, directed with assurance by Margo Essman, overcomes the flaws in the script. There are no flave in the script. There are no week links among the cast (Paricia Zelinka, Lauric Lehman-Gres, Ianine Laure, Kintherby Stanphil, Amy Rogers Derringer. Demetrice Davis, and Mart Toylor. They begin almost too goody-goody, as they prepare to leave for Vietnam, but when it's time to dedirect the dramating goods, each doe: — oppercially Demetrice Davis, as the Army intelligence of little with his done in the distribution of the desired properties. Strunz & Farah

After capturing Billboard Magazine's 1991 World Music Album of the Year award. Jorge Strunz & Ardeshir Farah went from L.A. club musicians to international stars. Their new release AMÉRICAS is a delightful combination of Asian, African and Caribbean influences. AMÉRICAS defines the role of classical guitar in world music, and the guitar solos on the title track are nothing short of sensational.

WHIR BHOUSE

Trade us your tired, your overplayed, your CD titles that've lost their zing, and you'll receive anywhere from $1 to $6 credit per title on anything you purchase at The Wherehouse. Trade your used CD's toward new music, movies, video games and more. Or get up to $3.60 in cash on selected titles.

It's an easy concept. We want your used CD's, and we buy just about anything! Show up with Garth Brooks...take home Lyle Lovett. Or bring in Prince, leave with Queen and save a King's ransom. It's up to you.

This is all about giving our customers more entertainment for the buck. We'll even give you one buck for any CD you bring us undamaged and in its original jewel box. Any CD!

So let your CD's gather more than just dust. Call I-800-825-2000 for participating store locations.

Ron Davis and Susan Lott-Davis

ADVENTURESOME, happy, intelligent, loving, creative, metaphysical sailor/explorer, 49, wants similar companion, non-smoking/drinking, physically active.

Ron: I'd been single since the mid-Eighties, living alone on my boat.

When I decided to put the boat up for sale and move back on land, I didn't really know how to get into the social scene. Then I heard about Reader Phone Matches.

Susan: I had a friend who got over 70 responses to Susan: 1 had a triend who got over 70 responses to her Phone Matches ad. She was busy breakfast, lunch and dinner! One Saturday morning I was screening some of her calls as a favor until suddenly I realized. "This is stupid! Here I am sitting with nothing to do on a Saturday night ..." So I looked in the back of the Reader for myself. And Ron's ad just jumped out at me. Ron: I got 12 responses. When I heard Susan's, I knew she Susan: I think I said, "Can Ron come out and play?" But when we met, there weren't any fireworks at first.

Ron: No, there wasn't a lot of excitement. We had a couple cups of coffee at a French bakery and just talked. I thought she was very nice,

Susan: Actually, we became good friends first, over several months, before we really "clicked."

Ron: But once that happened, we pulled the boat up into the driveway and moved in together. Then we were married in Presidio Park on June 21.

Susan: We got Ron a real estate license ...

Ron: Susan's been a broker for 21 years. We wanted

Susan: Now we share everything. And we really miss each other when we're apart.

Ron: Communication is the key. We've both been around a while; we know what it takes to make a relationship work.

Susan: Ron's a kind, gentle soul. And more importantly, he has a seeking mind; he's growing all the time.

Ron: Well, Susan's my angel. She's the most caring, concerned person ... I couldn't find a more

These two actors represent opposite approaches to their craft. On the one side, the grantie-like Fastwood, with fundamentally a fixed persona, alterable only to the extent of increased creases, heightened veins, deepened furrows. On the other, the chameleonic Malkovich (two lekyll-today or the chameleonic Malkovich another in a computer screen and another in a time-lapse application of makeup, untime-lapse application of makeup, un derscore the point), desirous to show that there is no role under the sun he cannot play, but so far unable to prove Nouse of Cards — An over-the-moon ode to Mother Love. A six-year-old girl, having lost her father on a Mayan pramid, withdraws into her own, little world, expressing herself through the plain-as-dry symbol of a ceiling-high house of cards. Her mother, he to-hel-with-disting Kathleen Turner, resists the diagnosis of "dissident Turner, resists the dispersion to the dissident Turner, resists the dispersion to the dispersion Orlando — Sally Potter's "ruthless distilla-tion" (her own words) of Virginia Woolf's imaginary biography slash historical novel slash literary criticism slash mash note on the poetic spirit in the Sackville family. (You'd never guess from the movie that it had anything to do with that). At first it seems most concerned with the glidy de-serms most concerned with the glidy deence.) But it is quite all right in these sorts ence.) But it is quite all right in these sorts of circumstances to miss, or misunder-stand, bits and pieces of dialogue. This can be chalked up a part of being a stranger in a strange land. There is the occasional sense, however, over and above the allowable level of incomprehension, that the storyelling is a bit dotted, with soft or missed or misunder that the storyelling is a bit dotted, with soft or missed when the storyelling is a bit and the storyelling is a bit with the sto lights of gender-bending in general an cross-dressing in particular. Tilda Swir the office of the particular This Sortion of States of Land Sortion of Sortio heads. The homosexual relationship that develops between two former childhood chums — one a Paki, the other a Brit — is an unexpected bonus and doubly unexpected in avoiding, despite often filtring with, the expected public revelation and reaction. The nicest thing about this turn of events — if a term usually used as a negaevents — If a term usually used as a nega-tive can be used instead as a positive — is its gratuitousness. It adds nothing to the analysis of British-Pakistani relations on the whole, and it helps to deflect the sledge-hammer irony of a feckless Brit going to work for a go-getter Paki. It contains no meast or tomatoes, just fresh vegetables and beans.

Our two pastas were penne aromatiche and spaghettini puttanesca. The first, a penne with basil, mushrooms, and black olives, was spectacular — I had to stop myself from eating a whole plateful. The accond, which many people order because the name means whore, was less satisfactory because for me it had too much anchoy factory because for me it had too much anchovy paste and tasted too fishy. The next time I'll order the pasta primavera, which my friend (who doesn't eat men) assures me is one of the best vegetarian pastas in the city.

I should mention that I took home a great deal of what we had ordered. For breakfast the next day I at the minestrone — soup for breakfast is wonderful because it's caffetine free and will keep you going for hous. The cold pitzs for lunch hous. The cold pitzs for lunch to the past of the

You're Single. We're Free. Why Wait?

Introducing Reader PHONE MATCHES, a Great Place to Meet Single People. You also receive a free "voice mailtox"—a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone phone.

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: To place a free Phone Matches ad, fill out the coupon below and mail or FAX it (233-7907) to us. (If faxing, please photocopy the coupon first and then fax it. The newsprint doesn't reproduce well.) The deadline for receiving free Phone Matches ads is Saturday at 7am. Free ads are 25 words or less and run for two weeks. No free ads will be accepted over the phone or in person. Ads with more than 25 words cost $1.20 per additional word. We'll send you a 5-digit mailbox number (to be printed in your ad) and a 4-digit security code for exclusive access to your responses.

You may also place a late ad until 6pm Tuesday by phone (235-8200), in our office (1703 India St. at Date St., downtown), or by FAX (233-7907). The charge for these late ads is $20 for the first 25 words plus $1.20 per additional word. Ads placed by phone or by FAX are with Visa, MasterCard or Discover only. Limit one Phone Matches ad per person per two-week period.

WOW TO USE YOUR WORK MAILBOX: After you receive your mailbox number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction. Call 527-1966, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions.

Use your introduction to tell more about yourself than your ad does (see below for guidelines). Give your first name; but DONT give you last name, phone number or address. Make sure you ask your callers to leave their names, phone numbers and the best times to call them. You can re-record your personal introduction once per 24-hour period.

All introductions are reviewed by the Reader and go on-line within 24 hours.

on-line within 24 hours.
To listen to your responses, call 527-1966 any time, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You can replay any response or move shead to the next one.
If you choose to move ahead, the previous response will be errased, so have a pencil and piece of paper ready! You must have a touch-tone phone to record a personal introduction or bisen to responses.

Okay, the All Star break has passed, and San Diego still has a long way to go. I know. It now. As of Tuesday, the Padres have nailed down last place in the NL. West, proudly carrying a won/lost record of 3 to 56, 66 games out from first. More importantly the Padres are one game behind the second worst team in the Unitary, the expansion Colorado Rockies. San Diego is ripping along at an We can be confident, as the season wears on, that Colorado will pull away. They've won seven of their last tree, after season wears on, that Colorado will pull away. They've won seven of their last tree, after san Diego dumps McGriff and maybe Benes, the Padres will be set to make a run.

Don't kid yourself. Our situation isn't as roay as it looks. For instance, right work he hadres are not, repeat, are not, the worst team in baseball. That honorous he hadres are not, repeat, are not, the worst team in baseball. That honorous he had to be a support of the hadron o mnument:

Now it is true, if the Padres keep going at this pace, by next year we could make a real run for it, depending on winter trades, spring training, and a few lucky breaks. But this year, realistically, we can only hope for the modern record.

And it's not going to be easy.

Let's say the Padres finish the year at a .350 won-lost rate — which is probably a little high, but would mean that they would win another 24.85 games and lose 46.15 games, which in turn means, when Johnny Sac. Frost rolls around — the Padres will have a 57.85 to 102.15 won-lost record for 1993. It's impressive, but the 1962. Mets finished with 40 wins and while losing 102 games. You see the problem — but hey, that's what it takes to get in the record book. To see the problem— but hey, that's what it takes to get in the record book of baseball was going to be eary. Do have a chance, the Padres are poing to have to step up and play at a .250 clip from here on out, day-in, day-out, on the road and at home, in order to elsow their wey past the 1952 Mets. It's going to be are do not pennant drive because the 1993 Mets are going to fight them all the way and pennant drive because the 1993 Mets are going to fight them all the way and pennant drive because the view of the season. Talk about your classic dog fight of down to the larg sume of the season. Talk about your townk right and day to cheapen the team, but even with all that, it's going to take a ream commitment, even a community commitment.
