repression and ammesia, they will be terribly misinformed in light of current research." A gake cites a study conducted by Professor Ulric Neisser at Emory University that began in 1986.

"The day after the space shuttle Chailinger exploded. Neisser had everybody in his class write out where they were, what they were doing when they got the news. And they re writing their account within 24 hours of a lightly significant event. These pears were you doing when you found out about the space shuttle? A fall one-third were so far off that their response had absolutely no relationship to what they wrote initially, 24 hours after the incident happened.

relationship to what they wrote initially, 24 hours after the incident house. So, Neissers aid to them, 'Here's what you wrote three years ago, the day after it happened.' They read what they had written, and they said, 'Well, that's, not the way I remember it.' And they were absolutely sare that they were right about their memory, before, 'Men Neisser pointed out to them that they were obviously wrong, they had a hard time believing it.

"And that's the interesting thing, 'People can remember real, real wrongly and still be real darm sure about it. People want reconciling the fact that their memory isn't accurate continued to the ready of the real real ready and they ready they have the ready they are they are the ready of the parts of the pages. What therapits haven't come to terms with is that you can influence people either for the better or for the worse. You can lead people to believe things that aren't true that are destructive to them.

And here's the therapist who's in a possion-viewed as a credible expert. And what's mos-hypnotic of all, the therapist presents information in a credible way. When people aren's sure, they look for guidance. Uncertainty is one of the most advanced techniques of bypnosis, and it's called the confusion technique. The point is once the therapist has made up their mind that abuse must have courred, they slowly apply pressure to the patient to adopt that they have no alternate explanation for their symptoms, they buy the

There was one segment on PrimeTime Live in January that illustrated this very well. A woman's gone into therapy, and she's under hypnosis. She's going through all these terrible memories of ritual abuse stuff and how all these goys abused her, and her therapist asks her, 'How many goys are theret' And the patient is silent for a minute, then says, Twelve.' NPR reporters will have their eyes put out with red-hot pokers before they'll question the sanctity of a tax — any tax. Consider a story filed by Daniel Zwerdling, NPR's corre-

Location: S. alley of 5000 Santa Monica Blvd. Time: 2315

Date: 07/03/93 Victim's Statement: Officer Van Horn told me the following. Van Horn had just walked out of the lifeguard station (just north of Santa Monica Blvd.) when he heard a vehicle "burning rubber," northbound on Abbott Street. The driver of the vehicle stopped to pick,up a passen ger, and then sped off northbound, still squealing the tires. The driver, later identified as H., turned eastbound onto Saratoga. Approximately three-fourths of the way up the block, H. almost ran over two pedestrians who were crossing the street northbound. At that point officer Vanhorn activated

It is bad enough that San Diego residents congest our country's rivers and streams with their warped and sadiatic pastime, but to have this outsider, this Jud Weaver, a Washington resident, come a Washington resident, come a Washington resident, come all the way here to torture local fish is almost unbearable. Why doesn't he stay in his home state and destroy the wildlife there? Surely those beautiful Washington rivers of which Weaver is so proud are ample enough to accommodate his detestable hobby, It's all we San Diegans can do to hold on to our own rapidly dwindling native creatures, like the gnat-eatcher, without having gnat-catcher, without having terrorist tourists go tramping through our backcountry to irritate and injure animals. I dearly wish that someone would jab a fish-hook through Jud Weaver's upper lip and I would like to applaud the would like voin applaud the low of the would like voin and the would like voin a work of the work of dangerous as everyone says it is. We are all, in the end, going to die of something. Also, I have always thought it was very hilarious that people in Southern California worry so much about cigarette smoke.

If they are so worried about their lungs, why don't they move to some place like Montana or Idaho? For all we know, cigarette smokers may be protecting themselves from the dangerous effects of smog and ozone with the coating of nicotine and tar they have inside their lungs.

Also, I think the antismoking crusade is a kind of rich white person's political cause. Poor brown people in the Third World do not own refrigerators and air condi-tioners that leak the gasses that are destroying the ozone layer. Poor brown people do not own or operate the plutonium and uranium factories that are polluting the water tables across America. Most people who smoke are working clas which in America usually means brown or black peo-ple. Rich white people are cre-ating the anti-smoking laws that inhibit the freedom of working-class minority peo-ple, and rich white people are also doing the biggest things that harm the planet. G. Toussaint Golden Hill super-favorite snack of all Zippie Dogs.

Now, the reason the Duchess asked this question was that the Ducke was old, misshapen, foul-breathed, and impotent; the Duchess herself was 18, healthy, and as lovely as the pink and white

The playwright Erik Ehn has found a sympathetic director in the Sledgehammer Theatre's

Scott Feldsher. Judging from Theatre E's production of Carthage/Fire, the same holds for lizuka and director Lisa Portes. Her previous direction of The Tax Man Bronte Blues I found too cluttered and needlessly obfuscatory. For lizuka, however, Portes was much however, Portes was much more assured, precise, and fully in service of the text. It helped that she had some fine local tal-ent working for her — Paty Sipes, Julia D'Orazio, Tracey Leigh, Linda Castro, Sioban Dixon, Sarah Gunnell, and Bruce McKenzie — and also that the space, a warehouse on 12th Street that was more an 12th Street that was more an environment than a conventional "set," helped give the piece its size. (Michelle Riel's design, lit handily by Pierre Clavel, had sand enough for side-to-side beach volleyball courts. And when needed, Brian Studler's sounds filled the Brian Studler's sounds filled the space mightily.) Portes has ob-vious affinities viith lizuka, who, word has it, has completed four more scenes and has more on the way. I look forward to their next collaboration.

King Lear
The Old Globe Theatre has staged a splendid Lear. It booms, it brays, Nightmare and Her Ninefold fire and fall back — but the chief excellence of the production is the way director Jack O'Brien unfolds the story with such amazing clarity. The story, told so clearly, is en-grossing. It's only after that one re-alizes how effectively O'Brien has alizes how effectively O'Brien has organized Shakespeare's vision of chaos. Harley Granville-Barker, the gifted directorietic, one said, "At best, the actor can be but a token of the ideal Leaf." This is true of Hal Holbrook's performance as the inferior superior who, in the end, becomes the ultimate equal of us all.

His is no Promethean Lear, and there are times when he slurs his lines so much he seems more drunk than mad. Holbrook lacks the metaphysical size needed to bellow Lear through the storm, bellow Lear through the storm, matching it verbal jolt for lighting bolt. But when Holbrook's in the middle and lower — i.e., more hu man-scaled — ranges, he's some-thing to behold. Holbrook has an admirable freedom of emotional empathy we can muster. The large cast is one of the strongest ever as-sembled at the Old Globe. Richard Easton's Gloucester, Kandis Chap-pell's Regan, Robert Sean Leonard's Edgar, and William An-ton's Kent (with rock-solid pa-tience, the virtue Lear learns to ap-

Taking Chances
This new "old-fashioned lesbian

Raylene J. Wall and Mary L. Smith (book) and June L. Vertucci (music and lyrics), is about coming out of emotional hibernation and, as the emotional hibernation and, as the tile says, risking once again, Caro-line ("Miss Perfect") and Lee ("My life has been like breakfast; it's ei-ther hot or cold") are about to be-come roommastes — a mismatch, it would seem, because like Felix Un-gar and Oscar Medison, Caroline is a compulsive cleaner and Lee is comfortable with an apartment in, well, modest disarray. They deny an attraction for each other, but an attraction for each other, but one morning they awake in each other's arms and...did they? And did Lee bet with friend Bernie that they would? Taking Chances re-wards all chances taken, with little threat that things might turn out otherwise. The rewards would be otherwise. The rewards would be more so if the threat were greater, however. The night I eaught the show, an almost full house at St. Cecilia's had several entertain-ing moments: in an appealing per formance, author Wall plays Lee

Lookin' Inside Their Brains

What would you have done, Pete, if you had been born a pretty boy?

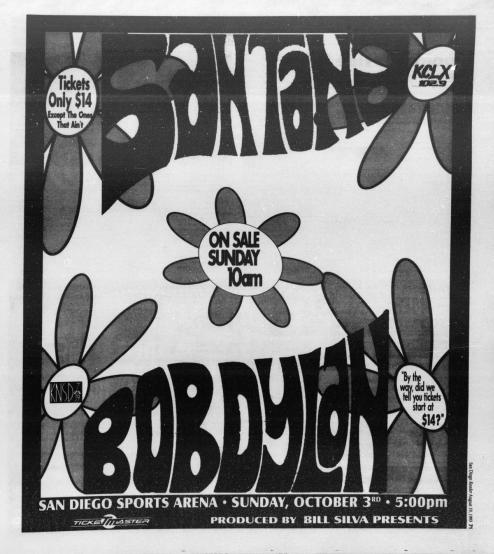

The following pieces were submitted in responit to an advertisement in the Reader soliciting music stories.

Peter Townshend:

old fart didn't want us to steal any of his light, be-cause he knew were bad ass, kliller players, John Lee sits down with his back to us, facing, the people. We can't see his face on his guitar, he's a shadow in the bright light, a silhouette. The old man fres up a true called "Whikey and Women Almost Ruined My Life." Shift I get a little wor-ried. He's doin' the tune as slow as a he wrote it in the '50s, really alow. We'r ail jiacked up, ready to hout five years ago, I had just broken up with the love of my life, or so I thought, and my best male friend decided that taking me to see one of my favorite bands might cheer me up. That sounded like one terrific idea. The band was Journey, and except on the album covers in my record collection. I knew what they sounded like and

"The more they played, the more worked up I got, until finally my friend told me I was more fun to watch than the band — he had never melted. What a voice, and he had such presence. I was in awe. It amazed me that anyone could walk onto a stage like that and sing as if he were the most con-

pily strives only medium-high — a nosy-neighbor fable about the mounting suspicion that the brand-new widower in the apartment down the hall may also be his wife's murderer.

During a routine condolatory visit, Keaton discovers what looks to be an urn of ashes while searching in the kitchen cabinets for coffee beans. But kitchen cabinets for coffee beans. But what about the twin cemetery plots the grieving widower had supposedly purchased? Keaton's husband, a mind-your-own-business New Yorker through and through, proves to be a less receptive sounding board for her crime theories than does the attrac-tive divorcé (Alda) with whom she is tive divorcé (Alda) with whom she is currently negotiating a business part-nership. And at the same time that the husband (Allen) is becoming more and more convinced of his wife's lu-nacy, he is the object of discreet advances from an unattached novel-ist (Huston) under contract to his publishing firm. The extracurricular irtations and jealousies add some flirtations and jealousies add some useful complication to the snooping and sleuthing. The latter activities are worked out reasonably well, not to the standards of a straight detective case out of the files of, say, Ellery Queen (pre-eminent Manhattan murder er), but to those of low comedy porch., so if you're in Old Town and long to be seated immedi-ately, keep this low-cost Italian restaurant in mind.

The food is fresh and plen-tiful. Tortelloni verdi, a triangular spinach pasta, is still louted as the best dish in the house ($8.95). You'll find that this pasta, prepared on the premises, is very thick; as a re-sult the filling of spinach and premises, is very thick; as a re-sult the filling of spinach and cheese is lost in a heavy green dough. Fortunately, the porcin tree. (At the old Giulio's, the tortelloni were smaller, lighter, and contained more filling.) rolled into long strips, filled with spinach and ricotta, and covered with a pesto sauce. This dish also suffered from a lack of delicacy ($8.50). Overall, these doughs should be much thinner.

I did enjoy several items, including the minestrone soup, a fresh vegetable soup made without tomatoes. In some Italian restaurants, a large vat of minestrone soup is prepared and reheated until it becomes and released until to become acidic. This is not the case at Jack and Giulio's. I urge you to order a bowlful if you're in the area and want an inexpensive pick-me-up ($2.95). The sal-ads here are refreshing, though I would avoid the blue cheese I would avoid the blue cheese dressing (it overwhelmed the greens) and opt for the house Italian. My favorite dish was the angel hair pasta with fresh tomatoes, basil, and olive oil— as good as you'll find at any gourmet restaurant and a bar-gain a 157-95.

Scampi Giulio remains the same: lightly breaded, butter-flied, and served with a side dish of old-fashioned spaghett in marinara sauce. You get a full half-pound of shrimp sauded with mushrooms and gartic for 59-95. I reger that I didn't taste the spaghetti with chili, a dish that might be just the ticket on some cold night. But praise must sout the tearnists, served must go to the tiramisu, served in a large goblet and prepared by Giulio's daughter, who makes most of the desserts. I could have had two of them could have had two of them with no trouble.

HOW TO RESPOND TO PHONE MATCHES

1-900-844-6282

To respond to Reader Phone Matches™ ads, call 1–900–844–MATCH (844-6282) any time, 24 hours

If you choose an ad from the Phone Matches™ column, use the 5-digit mailbox number printed in the ad to listen to the person's introduction and leave a response. (An advertise may not have recorded an introduction by the time you call. If not, you can still leave a message in his or her mailbox.) The date at the end of the ad is the last day to reply to the mailbox. Or you can "browse" through all the introdu to the ones that suit you.

The charge for using Phone Matches™ will appear on your phone bill under "DATING." If you have any questions, call 235-8200, x268.

235-8200, x268.
Tyou're calling from a rotary phone, you cannot listen to box holders' introductions. To use the system, stay on the line until you hear the rotary phone instructions. After the tone, leave your message including the number of the mailbox you're responding 10s. Rotary phone users can only respond to one ad per call; you must call back to respond to another ad.

THE SPORTING BOX by Patrick Daugherty

Ah, late summertime. This is where we at The Box pause and quietly set aside quality time from our hectic and important days to survey American culture, and to identify exciting new trends. Trends that track the spirit of our age, and more importantly trends that will make the health and the set.

more importantly, trends that will make you a bundle of easy money while sitting at home, money you're going to need after you've been laid off from your ting at home, money you're going to need after you've been laid off from you'd ady job.

Tiend One: A friend, when hearing about the latest McDonald's massacre, this one in Kenosha, Illinois (2 dead, one wounded), remarks, "Oh, it's another restaurant silling." This is a far different cry than one heard after last january's massacre at Brown's Chicken & Pata Restaurant, also outside of Chicago (7 dead). At that time his exclamation was, "My Goid, how can anyone do sometime gilde fulls" Mineteen mineyt-there is the year that massacres have become the control of the contr generic, as in, "It's another mall killing" (six dead, four wounded), or, "It's generic, as in, it's adouter mais king lists dead, row "wolmode," or, it's another office killing" (101 California St., San Francisco, 8 dead), or, the original and still heavyweight champ. "Oh it's another post office killing."

Okay, listen up. How can those unfortunate incidents make you big, easy money while working at home!

worth of computers, last can learn, "Now, this day, run out and out ya 23,000 worth of computers, laser printers, scanners, spend another ten grand on training and then create and sell the MASSACRE TODAY! newletter. Price it at a buck apiece, target every relative and acquaintance you can remember. Count on ads-a-plenty, courtesy of gun shops, security firms, Mace manufacturers, guard dog re-sellers, perimeter search light distributors, fence companies, and alarm installers. Also, remember home products, because that's the key, that's your constant ad hook, "Hey, are you thinking about leaving home? Why take the risk?"

throwing the equivalent of one-third to one-quarter of a stack of dynamite into a group of fan so how ever vaiting patiently quadret of a stack of dynamite into a group of fan so how ever vaiting patiently three people, two of whom were children.

This is an exting development, and we, at The Box, are ahead of the curve on this one. It's ground floor time people! We call it, "The truming word or one," and as the year progression will see more and more professional athletes break under the pressure of low self-essement. Hey, I'm only making 53.4 million a year. I don't even have a goldarim endorsement Trend Two: "We're mad as hell and we're not going to take it anymore." Vince Coleman, a member of what a dwindling few regard as a professional baseball team, the New York Mets, faces his next round of courtroom appearances in Los Angeles this Cotober. Coleman is charged with the felony crime of throwing the equivalent of one-third to one-quarter of a stick of dynamite into contract, and Clinton hits me with a tax increase." We believe 1993 will be the year superstars finally realize they've had a bellyful.

I can see it now. Marginally talented, 238-hitting outfielder Barry Van Whine, pulling in $4.1 million a year, takes his third strikeout of the day and slowly shuffles back to the dugoust while the crowd heckles him. That's right, the crowd heckles Barry Van Whine. Whine sits, regards his unendorsed playing shoes and then snaps. As shocked teammates watch dumbfounded, Whine strides out of the dugoust, turns to the baying crowd, and instead of doffing his cap, pulls an Ak-47 from beneath his field jacket, sersems. All right, so I didn't get a hit,' and sprays the crowd with 190 rounds or my percing, high-cal reacheduled to take place immediately after the playoff. Whine's trial has been scheduled to take place immediately after the playoff. Hine's trial has been scheduled to take place immediately after the playoff. the field. Influing to see those tight, super-actuate passes, to observe those unblinking eyes back in the saddle and deep in his trance you couldn't help finding yourself on the edge of a chair thinking, "How long can the greatest keep it up?" and then, "Come on, Joel" The odds are way against Montana having a Super Bowl year; he's too old and Kansas City isn't that good, but the res ing a Super Bowl year; he's too old and Kansas City isn't that good, but the rest of us will get a one-in-a-lifetim ride while he goes about his business. Against the Bills, Montana, as usual, managed to impress the opposition. Here's Tim Rooney, New York Giants personnel director: "He threw the ball inside well, and he took hist. The big hings is he looked quick--setting up quick, throwing quick, hinking quick. He got rid of the ball quick, hards of the defense." Meanwhile, back in San Francisco, starter Steve Young is out with a broken thumb abockup quarterback Steve Bono is out for five to eight weeks with a separated shoulder. Let's not forget third-string quarterback Bill Mugrawe, currently out with busined ribs.
