STRAIGHT FROM THE HIP MATTHEW

Drew N.A.:

I was told that if you count the number of chirps a cricket makes in 15 seconds and add that number to 39, you would have the approximate temperature. Is that true or is someone pulling my leg?

— Brad. San Diegol Year see where you might suggest somebody's trying to sucker you into tome entomological version of the old stiple hunt trick. Deposit you out in the boomies some night to count cricker, they so they can have a good laught he next day. But unlikely as it may seem, this story's true. In fact, we're only four years away from the centennial celebration of one underappresided scientification of the story of the stor off for a fight. Under these circumstances, both crickets chirp the rivaly song while they're circling around one another, staing up the competition and waiting for the first punch to be thouse. Once the sculffle is over, the winner repeats the song just to kind of rub it in. Can't say I've even en this, but it sounds more enterstaining than I'V. No wonder in the Far East cricket flighting sense this, but it is common to the state of the state

Dear Matthew Alice.
Why is Garnet Avenue in Pacific Beach invariably pronounced "Gar-NEI" by locab? It's just one of the gentions treets, and I've never heard January's birthetone pronounced that way. Are these kinds of local pronunciation quirks common, or are San Diegons just a bunch of wheel the American Common, or are san Diegons just a bunch of wheel the sinds of local pronunciation quirks common, or are San Diegons just a bunch of wheel.

I think "quirky" captures one facet of the San Diego personality fairly well. A sort of Richard Ramiters meets-Perwee Herman thing, And we have a widespread reputation for tube-only too. But I'm not sure either explains the GARBERGENETH mixpu, We'll have to settle for the best educated guess, in this case, from the Pacific Beach Historical Society. As guesses go, it's a pretty sensible one: the streets that acquired its name decades ago, when P.B. was incorporated most the city of San Diego and duplicate street names in the two areas had to be eliminated. P.B.'s diego and the street has a set of the street that acquired its name of the street and the city of San Diego and duplicate street names in the two areas had to be eliminated. P.B.'s diego and the street was part of a series of genationes. The bow of the To Ching No. 212 looks like the nose of a fighter who should have quit sooner. Another almost 20 feet of deck rail caved in, without casualties probably, but how would we ever know? Now, pinned between a 60-meter partuiller and the Ensemad Navall Pier, she's no longer a danger. When Mexico officially seized the ship, its crew, and 254 undocumented Chinese passengers, it did the sea a favor and decommissioned her.

In the event of a major earthquake, the units will wobble and shake around, but they won't collapse in upon themselves.

By Lawrence Osborne

s Interstate 15 nears Escon-Adido, the bare hills on ei-ther side of the freeway suddenly give way to great swathes of spanking new subur-ban homes. From the road, they seem like film sets for some imaginary suburbia of mythical ghast liness. Row upon row of identical units, some wooden gingerbread, others stucco Mediterranean. Plushest of all of them, built Plushest of all of them, built around Scripps Vista Way just behind the Scripps Ranch area, are the Scripps Townhomes, a vil-lage of New England-style provincial gingerbreads being built by California Pacific Homes.

It is an odd sight in such a set-ting: a collection of Cape Cod houses with shingle roofs and houses with shingle roofs and pale grey, wood plank façades standing in a dry California hill-side. But that is what the devel-opers want. It is part of California's continuing pursuit of village-style suburbia with an accent on Old World nostalgia. And Scripps Townhomes, cannily hoping to catch an exodus of young commuters from Or-ange County flocking south into North County, is already almost sold out

The architects, Naegle Associ-ates, have worked hard to culti-vate the rustic-yuppie image. The exhibition models now open to the public are done out in light, chintzy fabrics, with smothering carpets, Old World kitchens, and a plethora of teddy bears in the bedrooms. On the coffee tables, big picture books with titles like Aerial Firepower indicate the in-tended market. Next door, the sales room has the usual cute scale model and two bubbly salespersons, Robin Biltucci and Joan Huke. "We've sold 138 out of the 164 that we're going to build eventually," says Joan, looking very pleased. "Mainly to first-timers and empty-nesters. The young and the old. You see, here you can buy the old. You see, here you can buy a house for $150,000. It's really some-where between an apartment and a house, but in effect you have isolation a lot of potential litigation because of the damp. As you see, the houses are ver-tical; they go into the ground, where the garages are. So the development costs a lot of money in terms of investment be-cause we have to look after the water problem. As for the units all being the problem. As for the units all being the same, I don't think people really mind that. On the contrary, I think they actually find it rather comforting."

And the houses really are identical. The same spherical windows divided into four panes, the same wooden porches, the same gables. And inside, the same "Euro-look" Formica cabinets. The intention behind them seems to be—as far as one can surmise—the provision of sunlight. Each house comes provision of sunlight. Each house comes with a sun deck, which permits the owner to utilize California's ultimate as-

We were in partnership with them, and they cleverly got the higher land, from where you can see the ocean. Then they built cheaper units than ours, of inferior quality, and made a lot of money on them. People will simply pay for a sea view. And then we were hit by the recession. Now, you can't make a profit in construction. The banks won't lend money to anyone. You just keep your reputation intact and cut out without a loss, if you're lucky. That's what we're doing here. We won't make a profit on the Scripps Town-homes. We'll just make them well

We step into one of the plots, then climb up the surrounding soil walls to peer down into what are called "burrito packages," which are laid around the plot. These are bundles of crushed rock wrapped in fabric that keep the hillside water out. Going down again, we inspect the eight inch masonry blocks packed with steel that are pushed 26 inches into the ground, the post-traps and steel rods, the restrainingretaining walls of seismic-resistant steel.

By the enclosed pool, dimly visible through the security fence, blonde housewives disport them-selves. The fake antique gaslamps sparkle in a hot sun, oddly displaced from what one imagines to be their usual habi-tat. True freedom, as Hegel might have said, is the right to obey the tax collector.

The issue this time is of special interest to San Diegans, for the controversial project originated here. It was an "artwork" by David Avalos. Louis Hock, and Eizabeth Siece, consisting of dollar bill each, along with a printed sheet explaining that this was a protest against the notion that such people are a drain on the American economy. What artracted public interest was the fact that the project was carried out under the unified of the Museum of Contemporary Art.

Doubtless, some of you are once again trying to identify my own political label. "Hasn't he revealed myself as an antiabortion activist? But what about those caustic words about the Christian Right? Con-fusion, desperation — we've got to get him in a niche!" All right, here's my niche: I believe that institutionalized mendacity, which characterizes the loudmouths on both sides in most NEA controversies, ul timately has a more destructiv effect on the souls of human beings than either the legaliza abortion, either the tightening or the loosening of immigra-tion laws. I am agains ideologically motivated cenideologically motivated cen-sorship of art by government, and I am against ideologically motivated promotion of art by government. And with institu-tionalized mendacity and ideological bias endemic among all persons who could conceivably be put in charge of government arts organizations, that means I am against NEA altogether. there it is.

If I want to promote works of art defending the works of art defending the rights of undocumented Mex-ican immigrants, I am perfectly capable of doing so by myself, without the aid of government bureaucracies and peer-review ("the left hand rubs the other left hand") panels. So far, I have been talking about the content of art. There is another issue that, from my aesthetically oriented point of view, is even more important. Forget ideology, forget politics, forget Left and Right. By what distortion of language, taste, and intelligence can giving ten-dollar bills to undocumented aliens be categorized as a work of art? How did such a prepos-terous redefinition of art come about? There is a history to it, of course. Dada manifestations, Happenings, performance art — there has been a persis-tent 20th-century trend to broaden the definition of art so as to include, along with tradi-tionally fashioned objects such as paintings and sculptures, vir-tually any activity human beings engage in. Take off all your clothes in public — that's a work of art. Lick raspberry trip, burn them, and scatter the ashes — that's a work of art. The great advantage of this the degradations of poverty, the executions of the third of May 1808, the destruction of Guernica — these actually have had some effect in raising public awareness of contemporary issues. The impassioned commitment of Goya, Millet, Daumier, Grosz, Picasso (in the 1930s), or Orozco to social justice was one of their greatest strengths, giving additional inspiration to their creativity. But the results, the embodiments of their commitment and inof their commitment and in of their commitment and in-spiration, were rich, complex, and powerful works of art— valid in themselves, far beyond their immediate historical stim-uli. The South Coast Repertory Theatre's Loot is an on-again, off-again staging, often at odds with itself. Director Mark Rucker can't quite decide what to stress: Orton's ornate dia-logue or his "realistic" farcical situations (when Loot was first produced, Orton demanded that the show be devoid of "stylization" and "camp," an injunction Rucker is deaf to at times). The production has funny moments because Orton

King of the Kosher Grocers Joo Minjare's feel-good (feel good — helf, Jef Jabuloun), puddle-deep comedy would make a great pilor for a TV siscom except that the ending — in which all the trou-bles of the multi-racial characters are solved for all time in what is truly the Best of All Possible Worlds — is so aggressively truly the Best of All Possible Worlds — is so aggressively yumny that TV may deem it too unbelievable even for the smarmy standards of that medium. The play marks a time of transition for Izadore Silvers. For 50 years he's been the "King of the Kosher Grocers" in North Minneapolis. Ne-glect brought change to his neigh-borhood, and now picky building inspectors and advancing age threaten to close down the market. Will it close? Sexual Perversity in Chicago
Anyone on the lookout for a hot late-night comedy should go to the Fritz. Theater — at its new location on Third Avenue — and check out David Mamet's expose of the singles scene. The "sexual perversity" of the title isn't what you think. It's actually about the ways veterants of the scene erect barriers to prevent them from intimasty. Danny and and causes cringes of musical memories at the same time. The acting is solid. Hope Engels's Joan could be more intelligent (she's the smartest character in the piece) and could show more effectively how show more enecuvery now she became such an ungiving black hole. But other than that, the cast is impressive. Bryan Bevell's Danny is just right, moving from a form of singles-scene innocence to the bit-single-scene innocence to the bit-terness of fames Watkin's Brem's Watkin's Brem's the Brem's Watkin's Brem's Brem's Brem's Bebornh, caught in the switch's Bebornh, capture and simply shows us how repulsive Bernie is and how, were it not for two very angry singles stolists (and boy, this is an angry play, in the characters and in Mame's angra the the condition), the and Danra characters and in Mamei's ange the condition), she and Danny might have turned out together just fine. (Note: Several cast changes have occurred since the show opened in April 1992.) Worth a try. Fritz Theater, 420 Third Avenue s I walked toward the three-car garage at Rancho Las Palmas on Rancho Las Palmas on the night of Niacin's debut con-cert, I was a man at war with myself. It was a classic battle between the right side of my brain and the left. The more ra-tional hemisphere was constantly reminding me that I knew just three things about Niacin: 1) they were two guys who went by the stage names St. Vitus and Dance; 2) their equipment consisted of three amplifiers, two guitars, and a microphone; 3) when I asked flier what type of music they'd awkward, limping rhythm that Niacin seems to favor, using it in many of their songs, playing thick chords amplified until you can feel them vibrating in your chest cavity. like Soundgarden with a bad hangover. The lead guitarist (who, someone kindly in-formed me, was indeed named Dance) laid down the melody with what appeared to be a $100 copy of a Les Paul. He stared at the ground, not granting the audience so much as a glance. St. Vitus, on the other hand, St. Vitus, on the other hand, stabbed away on his guitar, his facial expressions alternating between confusion and contempt. In the softer moments, La Bohelme could still be heard, hiding between crests of noise, until finally the song collapsed on itself.

Bohème in the background never seemed to be a gimmick, and often it was surprisingly ef-fective. At one point, the audience was informed that the audience was informed that the next song was titled "A Mid-night Afternoon" (the only spoken words in the show). As Rodolfo began to sing his love song to Mimi, St. Vitus howled into the microphone, "Tell me that you love me / So I can hurt you / When I find out that you're lying," repeated over and over. It was a classic moment of youth angst, a band at odds with its envi ately fighting against elements that are ultimately alien to Raise the Red Lentern — Oppressed, divided women in 1920s China, as viewed through the placid, studied, carefully had-anced, caresingly lit images of Zhang Yimou (Red Sorphum, In Pon). These are so intoxicatingly, wooningly pretty as to cast doubts on the strength of the director's convictions, Gong Li, as the Fourth Misconvictions. Gong Lt, as the Fourth Mis-tress in the house of a blueblooded noble-man (whom we never get a good, close look at, so as to underscore his remoteness), suf-fers sullenly rather than stoically, dispatch-ing silent editorials. 1991. ** (9EX). 407.427

First-time director Steven Zaillian (several First-time director Steven Zaillian (several-time screenwire) spends the bulk of his time making difficult choices between a closeup and an extreme closeup. And when, for variety, he throws in a mere medium closeup, he makes sure that it has so narrow a focal range that it will be pressing right up against the plane of the screen, and against against the plane of the screen, and against the spectator's none, anyway. Cameraman Conrad Hall, a notorious fancy dan, has adorned these massive images with a lot of decorative lighting effects — half-light, shafts of light, pools of light, puglides of light — so that the movie seems continually to be grasping after the top-money prize in a Sunday Supplement photo contest. The Secret Cardon — A good children's movie. To split hairs a good movie for children and also a movie good for children. We concluded with banana flan, placed on flaky patry, surrounded by fresh fruit. The plate was decorated with raspberry purée, a stunning conclusion to an edectic, stimulating meal. There's a note on the menu indicating that on busy evenings, sush orders may take up to 45 minutes to arrive. I suggest you visit Cafe Iapengo on a Monday or Tuesday night, avoid the wait, and enjoy some relative calm.

At the other end of the spectrum is Corona's, which features Mexican and Argentine cuisine. Ever since Tango Argentina closed downtown, people have asked me where to find Argentine food. You will be pleased with the offerings at Corona's.

The restaurant is operated by a family, for families. You'll find two-year-old children in the kitchen and adults of all ages anxious to make you feel at home.

We began with the empanada, an Argentine meat pie ($1.50 each). The crust was delicate and the filling (pot roast meat) was succulent. These steam engines and hose carts with garlands of flowers.

Note the handsome team of draft horses pulling the cart; at one point in the late 19th Century, penny-pinching city fathers had replaced the horses in the traces with actual firefighters! That idea didn't fare well, and the horsepower was eventually restored - until its permanent disappearance in 1916. (From the Ticor Collection)

To respond to Reader Phone Matches™ ads, call 1-900-844-MATCH (844-6282) any time, 24 hours

If you close an ad from the Phone Matches" column, use the 5-digit mailbox number printed in the ad to listen to the person's introduction and leave a response. (An advertiser may not have recorded an introduction by the time you call. If not, you can still leave a message in his or her mailbox.) The date at the end of the ad is the last day to reply to the mailbox. Or you can "browse" through all the introductions and respond to the ones that suit you.

You're Single. We're Free. Why Wait?

Introducing Reader PHONE MATCHES, a Great Place to Meet Single People.

You are provided with a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds. You also receive a free "voice mailbox"— a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: To place a free Phone Matches ad, fill out the coupon below and mail or FAX it (233-7907) to us. (If faxing, please photocopy the coupon first and then fax it.) The deadline for receiving free Phone Matches ads is Saturday at 7am. No free ads will be accepted over the phone or in person. We'll send you a 5-digit mailbox number (to be printed in your ad) and a 4-digit security code for exclusive access to your responses.

You may also place a late ad until 6pm Tuesday by phose (235-8200), in our office (1703 India St. at Date St., downtown), or by FAX (233-7907).

The charge for these late ads is $20 for the first 25 words plus $1.20 per additional word. Ads placed by phone or by FAX are with Visa.

NCW TO USE YOUR VOICE MAILBOX: After you receive your mailbox number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction.

Call 527-1966, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions.

To listen to your responses, call 527-1966 any time, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You must have a touch-tone phone to record a personal introduction or listen to

San Diego is not the wretched collection of mediocrity we grew to loathe so recently in the past. Neither are they a first-tier team, too n in the blocking, catching, receiving, and running departments (what they call football) and not a brilliant quarterback. You can fake a couple of the above, but you have to have a brilliant quarterback to run with
