They Ate The Ponies

They Ate The Ponies In "Calendar," January 27, Grrauo Husky says that in Scott's ill-fated race with Amundsen to the South Fole. Scott "actually at eth edgs." This is not correct. In a bock I read, I read one reason the Scott expedition failed is that they used ponies instead of digs. Amundsen, who was more experienced, used dogs. on the second of th dogs; if they ate anything, they ate the ponies. Later on the ponies died en route and Scott and his party were reduced to pulling the sled with mannower.

I'm not afraid to give out my number anymore.

Some of the men I've met were either rude, boring or just plain nuts. One kept calling until I finally took the phone off the hook ... for a week. But then, the people I wanted to talk to couldn't get through. Now I don't have to worry about annoying calls at home or unwanted calls at work.

This is the unexplored, unwritten part of the Committing Journalism inherent in Dannie's light and convincing journalistic style. This avoidance of the unpleasant underlying reality is what will and does sell the story he's telling. He makes it and does sell the store he's felling. On the surface, there are two stories in Committing Journalism. Peter Sussman gives one story and Dannie the other. Peter gives an objective view of Dannie that's entertaining and colorful and that Dannie himself. does not and cannot give in his first-person voice, even when describing his own experience. Peter also tells about the fact of Dannie's writing

> THE TASTE ~ OF~ SALT-RISING BREAD

BY JUDITH MOORE ophotograph by Sandy Huffaker, Ir.

Oack in what now seem to me to be the dark ages of my life, when I was a young mother, I made almost all our bread. I liked the rhythm that bread making added to a day; it was like having a pleasant, good-smelling house guest with whom, off and on all day, I could stop and chat. Late morning I would start the yeast, measure flour and sugar and salt into the mixing bowl, add liquids, stir and mix. That done, I'd plop the dough out onto the floured board and knead until the dough felt elastic and smooth. Then I'd put the kneaded dough into a big bowl, cover with a tea towel, and place the bowl in a warm spot.

But that is an other story,). Almost without exception, bread thought — fit to eat.

Why this "health" bread usually turned so untasty was, in part, its lack of wheat flour (flour is simply a powdery, pulverized sub-stance, and wheat flour is powdery, pulverized wheat seed). The wheat seed from which flour is made contains in its endosperm (the green plant's version of the mammal's placertal tis-sue), storage protein designed to feed a seeding photosynthesis, among these storage proteins are gladin and glutenin. These endosperm proteins when combined with water form gluten, which, basically is a complex network filling the intersices. Plours made from corefilling the interstices. Flours made from cere-als other than wheat, flours such as rye and barley, because their endosperm contains lit-tle or no gliadin and glutenin, form little or no gluten. fashion to claim oneself as God. The last 100 years have produced many such gods, and many people follow such so-called incarnations. In orand many people follow such so-called incarnations. In or der to protect the sincere spiritual asprrants from such false claims, the Lord has very carefully given us the Vedic scriptures, and these scriptures have been accepted by the most highly advanced spiritual leachers. (Georges), down teachers (acaryas) down through the ages. From Narada Muni and Shankaracarya to Lord Chaitanya and even Mahatma Gandhi, such books as the Bhagavad Gita and Srimad Bhagavatam have been accepted as the highest spiritual knowledge. Accord-ing to these scriptures, from which Satya Sai Baba often quotes, the Supreme Lord does descend (avatara) to this mortal world in different ages. But these incarnations can be understood by the descriptions in the revealed scriptures. In the Srimad Bhagavatam Lord Buddha's name, parents anne, and own of birth are all predicted 2000 vestes before he had been seen to be seen to be a seen of the seen of the seen of the divine speaker of Bhagavat had does not be seen of the seen of t

Just the fact that we have these material bodies and are suffering in this material world is proof that we could not possibly be the Supreme. God does not suffer. Nor does He ever "forget" His position

I understand that a film critic's job is simply to offer his/her opinion on a movie, and everyone, at some time, disagrees with an opinion a critic offers. However, no single piece of entertainment reporting has enraged me as much as Duncan Shepherd's article on Steven Spreiberg's excellent new film. Schnidler's Liu ("Still Spielberg," lanuary 20).

one paragraph long and said simply, "I didn't like this movie because I don't like Steven Spielberg" (which he makes clear in his second paragraph), I could have accepted that. At least it would have been honest. We have all at one time or another, been dragged to a movie and knew we wouldn't like it, perhaps use it features an actor w don't like - or in Mr. Shep herd's case - a director. I myself, have hesitated to see Tombstone (a film Mr. Sher herd gave no less than FOUR !) because I know that I'll stars!) because I know that I' find it difficult to take seri ously a movie directed by the same man who made Rambo: First Blood, Part II and Leviathan.

Instead, he gives us a so-called review that is so biased and so clouded with irrelevance that it takes up almost vance that it takes up almost two pages and offers only one paragraph that actually dis-cusses the film. Mr. Shepherd observes the fact that Schindler's List has received much attention because Spielberg shot it in black-and-white. He goes on to say, "There was by contrast no such talk ... when Woody Allen shot Shadows and Fog in black-and-white, or Steven Soderbergh Kafka." In Woody Aller.'s case, Shadows and Fog represented his third venture into black-and-white, so the attitude becomes "what's the big deal (not to mention that Shadows isn't even a good movie)?" As for Steven Sodernted his third ventu bergh — who cares? No ca-sual moviegoer (and few fre-quent moviegoers) know who he is. Mr. Shepherd says were it not for "the many predecessors" about the Holocaust, we would get lost in the "muddy and dawdling exposition of the first hour." I have never seen these predecessors, and seen these predecessors, and not for a moment, while watching Schindler's List, did I become the least bit confused about what was happening on the screen. Nor have any of my friends who didn't even know that any other such movies existed. Lastly, what kind of person calls this moving, emotion-filled drama, wherein millions nurdered mercilessly and subjected to physical and psycho-logical pain, a "feel-good Holocaust movie"? He says Spielberg shows an "absence of vision." However, I would much rather be absent of vision than be absent of heart. Mr. Shepherd is absent of Dean: About a year and a half ago, I ran a couple of ads myself. I met some nice people and made some friends, but nothing more.

Jennifer: I got about 70 responses to my ad. Dean stood out because we're both in medical professions he's a paramedic and I'm a veterinarian.

Dean: When we met I already had a trip planned to Mexico with a group of friends. Jennifer's ad said she liked camping, so I asked her to come along.

Jennifer: One whole week on a beach in Mexico with no showers. We saw each other at our grubbiest

To go against the cultural grain in this way animals, naturalism, monumental figurative sculpture, marble, bronze — reveals a healthy proccupation with a reality outside the artist and outside art, as well as a stubborn resolution to obey the dictates of the artist's inner creative force rather than those of a self-chosen critical force rather than those of a self-chosen critical eite. In her independence of mind and her re-lentless fidelity to a subject chosen by herself, Murrill is the real artistic revolutionary among hordes of pseudo-rebels. the animals are wild, living in an autonomous universe in which we are mere interlopers, the barrier is all it he more impenetrable. Murrill captures this qual-ity magnificently. Her animals—which range from daydreaming domestic dogs to daydreaming domestic dogs to domestic captures the state of cougars—are shown as unfor design and urge toward form.

Yet these design elements are at the same time in the ser-vice of Murrill's aim to communicate the essence of her subjects. The simplified faces suggest the generic identity of the animals, the way each of them experience existence less the animals, the way each of them experience existence less as a specific individual (in the human manner) than as a rep-resentative of a type or an archetype, driven by biological urges common to the whole species. The absence of eyes, those traditional windows of the soul, re-emphasizes our fundamental lack of access to the animal's internal being. The estheticization of the animal's forms, in composition and surforms, in composition and sur-face treatment, gives them distance, a majesty — all of which contribute to our per-ception of what animals really are, and how far they are from us even when they seem so "Majesty." Yolie's has a great deal of potential and should attract diners because it's unique. But a restaurant shouldn't open its doors until every detail has been perfected. There are few second chances in the restaurant business; first impressions can prove to be your last. I hope that Yolie's turns its atmothat Yolic's turns its atmo-sphere around in a hurry and cashes in on the Brazilian menu, which includes feijoada (assorted meats cooked with black beans), a Brazilian spe-cialty that I so much enjoyed cialty that I so much enjoyed at the late Palmier. I'll be back to Yolie's in a month. By then, people could be waiting on the sidewalk to get in.
