Union-Tribune vs. Ed Miller: D.A. Cries Foul
By Thomas K. Armstrong

Last November, a few days after the "not guilty" verdicts came down in the Daley-Aoki child abuse and kidnapping case, District Attorney Ed Miller filed suit with the San Diego Union-Tribune to enforce a "no contact" order he obtained against his former wife, Martha Daley. Miller filed suit on November 12 in state court and requested that the Union-Tribune stop publishing stories about the case. The Union-Tribune refused to comply with the order, and the case was brought to the attention of state court. A judge ruled against the district attorney. The case went to the Supreme Court of California, which ruled against the district attorney. The case was then brought to the attention of the state court, which ruled against the district attorney.

Big Spending's Last Frontier?
By Jane Brehm

San Diego is one of the biggest abusers of the redevelopment process. Here's how you can tell when you have an abusive redevelopment agency:

1. The agency's budget is out of control. Staff and administrative expenses are too high. The agency's office expenses, including salaries, steadily increase over the years. The agency's budget is increased by more than 30 percent in one year.

2. The agency's projects are not benefiting the community. The agency does not provide adequate public input and public hearings. The agency does not provide adequate public input and public hearings.

3. The agency's projects are not benefiting the community. The agency does not provide adequate public input and public hearings.

How Many Gnats Can a Gnatcatcher Catch?
By Gordon Daly

By now, most San Diegos are familiar with the tiny bird called "gnatcatcher" and the gigantic prize it has performed. The field of single-grandeur bird calls are on the Palomar Mountain, San Diego County, where the gnatcatcher is found. Nowhere else in the world will you find this bird's gasp.

The gnatcatcher is a small songbird about 6 to 8 inches long with a two-tone dark brown and white coloration. The gnatcatcher's call is a high-pitched "chirp" that sounds like a gnat. The bird's diet consists mainly of insects, especially gnats.

The gnatcatcher is found in the Sierra Nevada, California, and up into the Rocky Mountains. It is also found in the Western Hemisphere, from the southwestern United States and northern Mexico to Central America.

The gnatcatcher's habitat is grassy fields, lawns, and fallen leaves. It is a common sight in the San Diego area, especially in the spring and summer months. It is often seen perching on branches or in the middle of a field, looking for food.

The gnatcatcher is a non-migratory bird and stays in the same area throughout the year. It is a social bird and can be found in flocks of up to 15 birds. They are known to be aggressive towards other birds and will defend their territory vigorously.

The gnatcatcher is a small but important part of the ecosystem. It helps control the population of insects and is a food source for larger birds and animals.

Genuine Black Humor

To Sleep with Anger

The last redwood trees remain
The last of the wild animals roam
The last majestic landscapes still
The last of the pristine waters flow

But the last true sense of humor
Is seen in the eyes of those who know

For with each passing day
The world becomes a little less

And humor, the last shield
Against the onslaught of what is lost

So let us cherish it
While we still have it
For humor is the key
To unlocking the door to joy.
Opening day, the Padres will give you a free hat on one condition. You have to take it off to Tony Gwynn.

At the season opener vs. the Braves, every fan will receive a free Tony Gwynn commemorative cap courtesy of Rally's Hamburgers. And 2,009 of the lucky fans will win a cap autographed by Tony himself.

Either way, it's a good deal. Tony had to blust 2,009 hats, equal 215 hours and play in 69 All-Star games to earn his cap. All you have to do to get yours is come to the game.

Fun Is a Misdemeanor

The daughters know precisely where the buttons are and just how hard to press...

Not too long ago, Saturday Night Live did a bit about a family in which the daughters were repeatedly pressed to play the role of the mother. The typical opening line: "The mom never says yes or no..."

It's not rare that children over the age of nine have their own opinions, their own sense of humor, and their own sense of justice. So it's no surprise that they often have different opinions of their own parents. The question is, how do you handle these differences?

In a perfect world, parents and children would be able to communicate openly and honestly, without fear of judgment or consequence. In reality, however, parents often feel that they must keep their distance from their children, both out of respect for their individuality and to maintain a sense of authority.

This can create a tug of war between the two generations, with each side fighting to be heard and understood. It's important to remember that both perspectives are valid and that communication is key to resolving any conflict.

In the end, it's up to the parents to determine how much control they want to have over their children's lives. But by being open and honest, and by allowing their children to express their own opinions, parents can help them grow into independent, confident adults.

Fun Is a Misdemeanor is a novel by bestselling author Dr. Raymond C. Kloppe. It follows the lives of a family of four as they navigate the challenges of raising children in the modern world. The book is available now at all major bookstores and online retailers.

By noon, women were committing the fashion and feminist faux pas of dressing in bikinis and combat boots.

A musicologist at the University of California at San Diego, who specializes in the history of women's fashion, said the trend was a throwback to the 1980s when women began to embrace more androgynous styles. He noted that the look was popular in the music videos of artists like Madonna and Prince.

"It's a way for women to express their individuality and challenge traditional gender roles," he said.

The musicologist also said the trend was a reflection of the current cultural climate, which he described as "hyper-feminine and hyper-masculine." He said that in recent years, women have been increasingly encouraged to embrace their sexuality and to assert their authority.

"It's a way for women to take control of their own image and express their own identity," he said. "It's a way for them to challenge the traditional gender norms that have been imposed on them for so long."

The Hip Hop Place For Easter

Being the whole family descendant of Franco Spanish, my kids always ask what day Easter is. I told them it's the day we celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ. My kids were excited because it's a day we get to celebrate and hug each other. We also get to eat delicious chocolate eggs and other Easter treats. It's a day we get to spend time with family and friends. It's a day we get to enjoy the beauty of nature and the warmth of the sun. It's a day we get to remember the sacrifice of Jesus Christ and the love that he has for us. It's a day we get to show our gratitude and appreciation for the blessings we have in our lives.

Phone Matches Work!

It's hard to meet men in the teaching profession. And I didn't want to date kids' fathers, so I placed a Phone Matches ad in February of 1990. I got 120 responses. I thought, 'Wow, this is great.' — Tracey Cohen

Jeanne & Larry Goodspeed

"Sometimes, when you're out there trying to meet new people, you run into women who aren't really looking for a relationship. What I liked about Phone Matches is that it eliminated all those cold shoulders." — Jeanne Goodspeed

Greg Gehrke & Mary Ann McCullum

"That's one thing I thought was so nice, that Phone Matches appealed to a wide variety, all types of people—and a lot of different ages: something for everyone." — Mary Ann McCullum

Steve Flanders & Tracy Cohen

"I placed an ad because I've always thought that people in bars put up facades. With Phone Matches, we had a chance to talk first and get to know each other. I found the things she said intriguing." — Chris Wright

Thomas Rogers & Lisa Hollinger

"I didn't have time to meet guys because I was always working. You have to separate business from pleasure. Phone Matches allowed me to have a wide variety of choices outside of my job." — Lisa Hollinger

Chris & Joan's Wright

"I didn't have time to meet guys because I was always working. You have to separate business from pleasure. Phone Matches allowed me to have a wide variety of choices outside of my job." — Lisa Hollinger

Susan & Philip Witt

"Never in my wildest dreams did I imagine I'd place or answer a personal ad, but that is what it took for us to meet, indirectly as it was, and I am glad I did." — Susan Witt

Charles & Doug Beard

"Phone Matches is a great idea because it gives you a nice, comfortable barrier between you and another person until you're ready to pursue further." — Charles Beard

Anne & Maxine Manduca

"I recommend Phone Matches to all of my women friends and daughters and anyone; you can get a much better caliber of gentlemen this way." — Anne Manduca
