SAN DIEGO'S WEEKLY

An Ugly Toad's Promise

The world is getting mad for the new AN UGLY PROMISE. I knew AN UGLY PROMISE when the other day I realized my head to drizzle below was total. Art for AN UGLY PROMISE among the totally different and unconnected. I notice heads in Chinatown.

Check out your Chinatown shops for these signed heads. Don't be shy.

THE TUNNELS WEREN'T BUILT TO LET THE CHINESE INTO SAN DIEGO...

I'm not making this up. Some are reddish, made of fish bone and feel like gauze. They look like gauze. Some are carved jade on a jade pedestal. They come in all sizes. The small ones held one can or their mouth. The larger ones held no cane. The carved ones are charged with fake jewels.

Local Head Shops’ Modest Boom May Go Up in Smoke
By Jamie
In the late 1980s and early ’90s, if you wanted to “feed your head,” as the Jef- ferson Airplane said in the stoner anthem “White Rabbit,” you cruised down to those head Shops. These were the places to be if you were a hippie, a 1960s-style flower child, a sixties hipster, or even just a fan of the music. They sold everything from tie-dye tees, tank tops, and “I love my hippie” mugs to incense, pipes, rolling papers, and more.

Now, the scene has changed. Head Shops are under threat from the increasing popularity of local marijuana clubs, which offer a place to buy and smoke cannabis without the hassle of dealing with street vendors. And while some head Shops are adapting by offering more products, others are struggling to stay in business.

For example, the Blue Sky Shop in San Francisco, which has been open for over 20 years, recently had to close its doors due to increased regulation and pressure from law enforcement. The owner, who has been in the business since the 1980s, said that it was becoming too difficult to keep the shop open.

But not all head Shops are facing such challenges. Some are finding ways to stay afloat by offering unique products and services. For instance, the Trippy Turtle in Hollywood offers psychedelic art, music, and apparel alongside their usual selection of incense, pipes, and more.

Despite the challenges, head Shops remain a part of the counterculture landscape. And while the boom may not last forever, they continue to play an important role in the lives of those who enjoy their products and services.

AN UGLY TOAD'S PROMISE

BY FRANK CHIN

The Ugly Toad's Promise is a story about the Cultural Revolution in China. It tells the story of a village where the Chinese people are struggling to survive under the harsh conditions imposed by the revolution. The story is told through the eyes of a young boy named Liang, who is forced to leave his village and go to the city to find work. Despite the difficulties he faces, Liang remains determined to return to his village and help his family.

The story begins with Liang's father, a farmer, being arrested by the Red Guards and sent to a labor camp. Liang's mother is left to raise the children on their own, and they are forced to live in poverty. Liang's oldest brother, who is a student, is also arrested and sent to the camp. Liang is left to take care of the younger children.

Liang decides to leave the village and go to the city to find work. He travels to Shanghai, where he finds a job working in a factory. However, his life is not easy, and he faces many challenges. He must work long hours for low pay, and he is constantly threatened by the Red Guards.

Despite the difficulties he faces, Liang remains determined to return to his village and help his family. He dreams of a better life for his children and his village. He hopes that someday they will be able to live in peace and prosperity.

Liang's story is a powerful reminder of the struggles that people faced during the Cultural Revolution in China. It is a tale of hope and determination, and it shows that even in the darkest of times, people can find the strength to keep moving forward.

Uncle Frankled sits in his truck at Mat's Kitchen, that food stand across from the police station in the small town of Crutcher. He's having a coffee and a cigarette, talking about the town and its history. "You know," he says, "this town was founded back in the 1800s by a group of settlers who came in from the Midwest. They were looking for a place to start fresh, away from the hustle and bustle of the big cities. They named it after a Native American tribe who lived in the area." Uncle Frankled lights up another cigarette, "And look at us now. A small town, a few hundred people, but we're close-knit. We help each other out in times of need." He takes a sip of his coffee. "You should come here, it's a great place to visit."

Phone Matches™ Success Stories:

Randall Smith and Stacy Berrington

Randall Smith is a 31-year-old, blue-eyed, 8'1" professional basketball player. He's a bit of a character, known for his playful and energetic personality. Although he helps out in his brother's business in downtown, he's been looking for love in all the wrong places. His latest attempt was at Phone Matches, a dating service that connects people with similar interests.

Stacy Berrington is a 28-year-old, blonde, 5'4" fashion designer. She's been single for a while and was looking for someone who could appreciate her unique style. She tried online dating but wasn't finding what she was looking for.

Randall and Stacy met at a charity event and hit it off immediately. They decided to give Phone Matches a try and were matched within weeks.

Randall was nervous at first, but Stacy's infectious energy put him at ease. They went on a few dates and realized they had a lot in common.

Stacy: "I was worried about meeting someone new, but Randall was so cool. He made me feel comfortable right away.

Randall: "Stacy was exactly what I was looking for. She's creative, funny, and doesn't take herself too seriously."

Stacy: "We hit it off right away and have been going strong ever since.

Randall: "It's great to finally find someone who understands me and my love for basketball."

Stacy: "Randall is the perfect guy. He's funny, caring, and always has a big smile."

Weekend with the Old Battle-Ax:
Mother's Day Events

Hello, Mom!

Misty, the daughter of an ex-marine, is planning a special day for her mother. She wants to do something meaningful and heartfelt.

Misty: "I know my mom loves historical sites and stories. She's always been fascinated by the past."

Misty's idea: "We'll go on a tour of the Old Battle-Ax, a museum dedicated to the history of World War II. We can learn about the sacrifices made by our soldiers and the impact of the war on our country.

Mom: "That sounds like a wonderful idea. I've always been interested in history."

Misty: "It's our chance to make some memories together and celebrate Mother's Day in a meaningful way."

Mom: "I'm looking forward to it. Thank you for planning this special day for me."

Misty: "Of course, Mom. It's a gift you deserve."

End of story.
AnOther MIRACLE of the Virgin

The contemporary world all but disappeared.

With the news of the Roman Catholic Church's official recognition of a new miracle of the Virgin Mary, the world seemed to take a step back into a simpler time. The story of the miracle began in La Salette, France, in 1858, when two young shepherd children reported seeing the Virgin Mary appear to them. The visions continued for several years, and in 1925, the Catholic Church officially recognized the events as genuine, establishing the site as a place of pilgrimage and devotion.

In the 1960s, the story of the miracle was re-told in a new book, "The Virgin of La Salette," by Father Charles Pichon. The book became an international best-seller, and its story has been retold in various forms ever since.

The miracle itself is a simple one: the Virgin Mary appeared to the shepherd children and performed a miracle, which was witnessed by others at the time. The story of the miracle has been studied and debated by scholars and religious leaders for decades, and its authenticity continues to be a topic of discussion.

One of the most striking aspects of the story is the way in which the miracle appears to have been witnessed by people from different cultures and backgrounds, from all over the world. The story of the miracle has been translated into many languages and has inspired countless works of art, music, and literature.

In the end, the story of the miracle remains a testament to the power of faith and the human spirit. It is a reminder that, even in the face of adversity and struggle, there is always hope and a way forward. The story of the miracle is a reminder that, even in the face of uncertainty and change, there is always a way to find meaning and purpose in our lives.
Experiences of the Sacred — in a Contemporary Art Gallery

Not your usual late-20th-century American artist!

Christopher Bollyn, whose work has gained attention for its critical and controversial nature, is exhibiting a series of images that explore the intersection of sacred and secular, drawing from his own experiences as a photographer and researcher. His work includes a collection of photographs that depict the sacred in everyday life, from the mundane to the extraordinary. Each image is accompanied by a short text that explains the context and significance of the photograph. The exhibit is open to the public and is located in a gallery that is dedicated to contemporary art. The space is designed to be a contemplative and thought-provoking environment, inviting visitors to engage with the material in a meaningful way. The gallery is open from 10 AM to 6 PM, Monday through Saturday. Visitors are encouraged to explore the exhibition and to share their reflections with others.
The Chosen Have Judged the Damned

Lettice & Lovage has two wonderful roles for women, it is never less than gloriously literate, and it is always funny.

Lettice & Lovage, by Peter Shaffer, has a cast of four: Lettie (played by Anna Paquin), Mercia (played by Amanda Lawrence), Lettie's husband, Jonathan (played by Michael Sheen), and Mercia's husband, Julian (played by Mark Strong).

The play opens with the four characters sitting in a private members' club in London, discussing a recent news story about a group of women who have been convicted of witchcraft in the 16th century. Lettie and Mercia are both members of a women's rights group, and they are discussing how the women were treated unfairly and how the charges of witchcraft were used as a way to suppress women's rights.

As the play progresses, we see Lettie and Mercia's relationship become more complex, as they begin to explore their own identities and the ways in which they are defined by society.

The play is a poignant and thought-provoking exploration of gender roles, power dynamics, and the struggle for equality.

Woo and Wow the Hairdos

Zander is still pretty, and more than a couple of balding dates were feeling ignored as their partners went ageless over his big instrument.

Favors, two-venience and a method for thinking outside the box were discussed this week at the Riviera Theater's biggest event of the year. The show featured a variety of performers, including Zander, who took the stage in a spectacle of theatrical splendor.

The crowd was captivated by Zander's performance, which included a dramatic reading of a Shakespearean monologue, followed by a live orchestral piece. The audience was further drawn into the performance by Zander's use of visual effects, including projections of Shakespearean scenes on the theater's large screen.

As the performance came to an end, Zander took a bow and received a standing ovation from the crowd. The atmosphere was electric, with the audience buzzing with excitement and anticipation for what was to come.

The Riviera Theater is known for its unique approach to live entertainment, and this year's event was no exception. With its cutting-edge technology and world-class performers, the theater continues to redefine the possibilities of live performance.

PICTURE STORY
by the San Diego Historical Society

Looking as if they had just been ordered up from central casting, two "newies" paroch the first San Diego Tribune-San "extra" announcing Japan's offer to surrender in early August 1945. Massive bombing raids on the Asian nation, continuing in June of 1944 and culminating with the dropping of atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki on August 6 and 9 of 1945, had prompted the Japanese offer.

In San Diego, peacetime payrolls dropped one-third from $111,000,000 as wartime industries shut down. Returning veterans swelled the population to 362,000, and soon competed for jobs with 30,000 newly unemployed war workers. Down at the 32nd Street Naval Station, LTV warships went into mothballs. Peace had come to San Diego — but at a price measured in more than lives.

One Arrest and Impounded Ballots

By Alfredo Cardenas

The San Diego City Council voted unanimously to approve the creation of a committee to investigate the events surrounding the impounding of ballots in the city's election.

The vote came after a heated debate during which council members expressed concern over the process used to impound the ballots. Some members questioned whether the impoundment was necessary and whether it could have been handled differently.

Councilman John Dierksen, who authored the resolution to create the committee, said the move was necessary to ensure transparency and accountability.

The committee will be made up of representatives from various city departments, including the police and the inspector general's office. It will also include members from the district attorney's office and the attorney general's office.

The committee is expected to release its findings within 30 days.

Meanwhile, the San Diego County Registrar of Voters has been ordered to release the impounded ballots to the city. The registrar has until May 9 to comply with the order.

The impounding of the ballots was ordered by a judge in a lawsuit filed by the city against the registrar. The city claimed that the registrar failed to properly handle the ballots during the April 4 election.

The lawsuit was settled out of court, and the registrar agreed to impound the ballots for the city until the matter could be reviewed.

The move has sparked criticism from some residents and members of the council, who say the impoundment was an overreaction.

Councilwoman Barbara Bry, who voted against the resolution to create the committee, said the impoundment was unnecessary and that there were other ways to handle the situation.

The case is expected to be settled in court soon, with a hearing scheduled for May 2.
