Excreta Into Gold

In the mid-'80s I enrolled in one of Professor Michael Davidson's American litera-Davidson's American litera-ture courses at UCSD. I re-member three things about the class: (1) Zora Neal Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God (a book that, like the marbled Paradise Lost outside the UCSD library, is one of markind's crowning one of mankind's crowning literary artifacts), (2) David-son's brutally honest comson's brutally honest com-mentary on my papers, and (3) the B grade I got at quar-ter's end — the only one in a string of As earned in UCSD lit classes.

Davidson taught me to

Davidson taught me to value discrimination, the art of weighing and recognizing well-wrought literature like Hurston's; the importance of showing readers respect by keeping one's argument fo-cused; and the mutual benefit in shrewd judgment of a stu-dent's performance. These lessons served me well when I went on to teach and complete a Ph.D. in English at Boston University.

So, I read Dodie Bellamy's account ("The Debris of What You Really Do," November 19) of the Davidson-orches trated Archive for New Po trated Archive for New Po-ctiv — a sort of junk heap for poets who may or may not hit did — with reservation. I ap-treated the post of the po-trate that provides the po-tent all latary a dumission for the post of the po-tent all latary were impute to the post of the po-tent all latary were impute to the post of the post of the post tasty the rought, and death richely suits the Rouler's post of the post of the post of the post of post of the post of cant, and, as a tendor flow Simpson in doctoral disguise, I ate it up.

I also respect Davidson's point that the mass-produced text is but the "edge of an ice-berg" whose innards consist of the lifelong process of cultural reformation. Indeed, while writing my dissertation on Mark Twain and Christian Science, my most fascinating and productive hours with Mr. Clemens and Mrs. Eddy

Mr. Clemens and Mrs. Eddy were spen with their private letters and rough drafts, not their finished products. What worries me is that som.one is going to mine the literary dross collecting at the bottom of Central Library and present it to undergraduates as work (most isn't) with the same aesthetic and cultural value as a carefully turned and grandly or present or roduct. proudly presented product.
As Bellamy shows, living

As Bellamy shows, living poets are already turning their excreta into gold. I just hope Professor Davidson continues distinguishing between the crude, impetuous conversations that make up everyday communication and the refined, thought-through dialectic that is sharply edited discreture. Please, don't betray the need lessons you taught me. good lessons you taught me about discrimination, discern-ment, and fine art. Mark Johnson

They followed the harvests west through the border states and up and down California, from San Diego to San Jose, for three years, living in the camps, picking tomatoes, chilis, strawberries. In 1962 she settled in Southern California, working 6 years in one factory and the next 20 in another on the graveyard shift, awing money on babysitres. Except for the happenstance of her birth. That agent, swinging his beam between the pair of birth certificates in his hand and the two schoolchildren in the back seat, was confronting what classical philosophers termed the problem of unity: How can I know that something that changes so much through time is still the same thing it was before? How do I know the children before me are the same as the infants who births are attested by these documents? To prove the girl in front of you is Luisa, the philosophers decided practically, you either have to know that this person's body is the same one the infant Luisa sed or that this person has the memories and experiences that the person who grew out of that infant would possess. Unable to prove the first, the agent was, in effect, testing the latter. It's an archetypal scene. A border

LONELY GUY, white, 34, 6°, 240 lbs., Aries, likes rugged Jeep, four-wheeling, camping, movies, 91X, sci-fi. Seeking pretty, full-figured, sincere woman of similar likes for relationship. 🖶

Lyle: I gave up on women ten years ago, after a bad experience with a relationship. I said to myself, "That is it. No more. Who needs them?" But then I got lonely and started looking at women again. I though it would be nice to have someone to go camping or four wheeling with.

Paula: At ITISt, I was using rhone materies to find racquetball partners. But then I ran across Lyle's ad and thought, "Wow, here's a guy who doesn't think he's perfect. He sounds very honest." Lyle: I worked on my ad for several days, to get it worded just right. I wanted mine to sound real. Paula: A friend convinced me to call and leave a message

I was terrified. I just said, "My name is Paula and here's my phone number."

Lyle: I received nine responses and dated five ladies, in the exact order that the calls came in. The last two were Pauia and an 18-year-old.

Paula: He called me from work, while he was on a break. We talked for almost two and a half hours.
We spoke every night after that, for about a week, before we met. He came over after work one night. in his grubby clothes, riding his motorcycle. When he flicked up his face shield and I saw his eyes, I said, "Hey, I like this guy."

Lyle: I was attracted to Paula's smile. And she had the loveliest dark skin I had ever seen. I really didn't know she was black until she told me.

Paula: I had to go away the next day to visit my mother in Virginia. I returned to San Diego a week later and there were 15 messages on my answering machine. Most of them were from Lyte, using different voices. He did Peter Lorre, Vosemite San, Mr. T...

Lyle: After the first time we kissed, it was etched in stone. I stopped dating the other women. I guess I'm not a man of the '90s. I believe in "one guy, one girl."

> Paula: We met in October of 1991 and were married the following September. The ceremony was in Petersburg, Virginia, in the old City Hall that served as a headquarters for the Confederate

Do you have a Phone Matches"

Lyle: It's been two years since we got married but it feels like a lifetime. I guess that's because I didn't really start life until I met Paula.

Paula: People are always in such a hurry, trying to pack so many things into one day. I'm almost 35 years old and I raced through my wenties. It wasn't until after we were married that I became infatuated with Lyle. I still get butterflies when I see him.

But a physical description of this small room and its amenities doesn't really tell the story of Boomerang's. While in no way remarkable, it is remarkably comfortable — due to the owner/bartender, Ray. "Ray grew up in small-town Pennsylvania, centually movine to Southern Celiferinia ex-eventually moving to Southern California to work in the hotel business. On October 15, 1992, he opened Boomerang's, renaming what had been a restaurant in the local Dini's chain. The result is a place that is neither a full-menu cafe nor a typical, raucous sports bar but a friendly little tavern where you can drink draft beer, eat good food, watch a ball game, and relax without spending a lot of money. (One local sports bar, by comparison, is loud, impersonal, and filled with petulant employees and arrowant customers.)

impersonal, and filled with petulant employees and arrogant customers.)

Ray may have been predestined to be a bartender: his unforced hospitality, decency, and pleasant demeanor are unflagging.

This is obvious from the moment you walk in. If you are new to Boomerang's, Ray will introduce you to everybody at the bar; if you are a regular, he will greet you like a long-lost friend.

Ray's barside manner is just the approach Frank Sinatra had in mind when he sung the classic saloon song, "One for My Baby," If you feel like talking about your no-good, cheating giffriend or your rotten boss, Paywill jisten with sympathy; but if you choose to brood in silence. Dalton Lee and his wife Nicolina separately — contemplate the crazy turn their lives have taken. Menacing drug thugs with gifts of cash, mysterious G-men on their trail, benevolent homeboys play guardian angel.... In fact, everyone seems to have more questions than answers today.

Chapter Twenty-Two: Nicolina's Day

Back at the bookstore, Wanda walked lightly around Nicolina. Nicolina was strangely opaque today — Wanda couldn't tell if she was mad, sad, or blank. "I'm fine," Nicolina chirpred when she asked. She turned her lips down a little when she said it, almost a smile, but in severe. She scruited by a smile, but in reverse. She squinted her eyes a little and shook her head very slightly, quickly. "No," she repeated. "I'm fine!"

"Okay, honey," Wanda said. "Whatever you say. But old Dalton Lee isn't 'fine.'

you say. But old Dation Lee isn't fine. ' Nicolina felt a spark. She wanted to hear how Dation had sounded, but she couldn't possibly admit it.

"The property of the state of the the state of the state couldn't live a lie no more."
"What are you saying?"
"I'm saying you can't cut him so cold.
He didn't do nothing but love you. You going to leave him?"
"No! No way! Are you nuts?"

"Oh! I'm fine." Yeah, Wanda thought, right.

"Don't do him like that, girl," Spike said. "If he was my old man, I wouldn't cut him cold like that."

Wanda kissed her on the ear.

Manda kissed her on the ear.

"My peach", she said.

"Spike, uh, Pearl, "Noclinas aid." I think it's different in a hetero couple.

"On?" said Spike, "You know what? I was married for six years. No, he didn't beat me. He wasn't no monster oither. He was a sweet man from my homelown, and I didn't know no better, so I marrier for Cear Peach, and I danced with a woman, and, like, pow! It hit me. man. I was a

That poor dude, he didn't have no idea what hit him. I didn't either I, guess. But I suddenly, woke up., was what I was and I fell guilty ever since. Heen trying to find some way to what? I been trying to find some way to, what's the word, sweetheart?"

"Make amends?" Wanda offered. "Close enough," said Spike. "Yeah. He was a good man. He is a good man. I just Spike looked her in the eye. "Darlin", look," she said. "This ain't a man-woman thing. It ain't a woman-woman thing. It's a people thing. You keep this up, and Dalton-Pig-Woman-Lee is going to leave you." Wanda hugged her.

"The whole thing?"
"It's light, man."
"Oh, go ahead."
Bear sat down across from Dalton.
Dalton's menudo was souring in his belly.
"Look, pardner," Bear said. 'She's a

"Spare me the macho bullshit." "No, no, no. Listen, You brung her into your home, dude. Am I right? You promised her a life together. She's been out there alone a real long time. And you said, 'Come lay your weary burden down.'

"Where'd you hear that?"
"Folksong. So you were her hero. You had this Cam...Camaro...what the hell is it called?"
"Camelot?"
"Right, some deal like that. You gave her a home, a man she could count on. And then you start screwing around with your crazy shit and look what happens. I show up! Weird Mexicans with danger money."

"I let Nico down."
"It's that boysh charm," Bear said around a mouthful of chiffon. "Nico don't seem to love it no more."
Dalton thought about it. Lately, all he'd been doing was running around like an idiot. Miam. ghost stories, gang-bangers. He'd refused a job for his editor in Boston. And then there was the $15,000 and Mr. Williams.

Chapter Twenty-Three: Mr. Williams Makes His Move

Between this Dalton Lee and these new beaner drug cowboys, Mr. Williams was just about crazy. He racked his brain trying to work out a connection between them. He couldn't have imagined the tenuousness of their actual relationship; Mr. Williams wouldn't have given $15,000 to anyone as any kind of sesture: he wouldn't even have. wouldn't have given $15,000 to anyone as any kind of gesture; he wouldn't even have given a guy a sawbuck if the guy had saved his life. It was a personal thing. Yet Dalton had insisted this was the case. Mr. William nad insisted this was the case. Mr. William's was starting to suspect he'd been had. #### Why Do I Care?

David Stampone's write-up on the Meteors ("Of Note," November 3), although fairly accurate, contained a major error which I would like a chance to address. He was correct about the origin of psychobilly music (early psychobilly music (early '80s — England); however, he made a mistake in stating that it "peaked by mid-decade." It was actually at this time when a "second generation," a new, fast hybrid of early psycho and punk, began to reach a much higher level of popularity. This second generation was led by huge and growing scenes in Germany, Isana, and the rest of Europe. Groups such as Mad Sin (Germany), Nak Romantix (Denmark), Battmoble (Holland), Klingont U.K. (Holland), Holland (Holland), was actually at this time when genre to an enormous worldwide popularity. I don't blame Mr. Stampone for being un-aware, because the majority of of Autobiography of a Yogi, it took four American professional writers years to edit, polish, and rewrite the book. This should not be surprising, for Yogananda has gone on for Yogananda has gone of record regarding his poor aca-demic skills. The resulting product is full of erroneous in-formation, if not deliberate distortions. As an example, Yogananda was originally in-formed about Sri Yukteswar by his uncle, who wrote letters to both of them. Sri Yukteswar then sent a message to Yo gananda. The story line re-

1994-95 season with a production that fought Jungle to a draw. Given the nature of a play as Jungle to a draw. Given the nature of a play as dramaturgle, dquirky as it is dramatically im-portant, director Walton Jones and company should consider their effort a victory. The pro-duction, which concluded its run last weekend, the play does, Jungle is a battle for possession of body and soul, though the production chose not to stress the homosexual Arthur Rimbaud/Paul Verlaine contest Brecht said was at its core (what Brecht was after, in effect, was an ongoing rape). With street signs (all of which could have come from San Francisco, not Chicago), an El that Dopplered overhead, and silicoal treek that widened as they came down. railroad tracks that widened as they came down-stage (for a derailed train of thought?), the set looked like the lab of a mad scientist whose experimentation has taken an urban turn. It was remarkably cluttered (was that a half-decon-structed portrait of the Statue of Liberty on the rear wall?) and yet remarkably functional, offernumerous levels and playing spaces ing numerous levels and playing spaces — including a boxing ring that, with a simple flip of the floor, became a saloon.

"This is a world and a kind of drama," Brecht "This is a world and a kind of drama," Brecht said of Junghe, "where the philosopher can find his way about better than the psychologist." That's great. But how do actors, trained more in human behavior than philosophy, find their way? David Wilater, as Garga, and Silas Weir Mitchell, as Shink, found only partial solutions. As Brecht wanted, Waiter looked like Rimbaud, with a semingly permanent Saison en Enfer gameface, but the script afforded him little variation beyond a ma-nia to survice. it squite another to puit them off. True parody must be dead for target, both in the words and the perfor-mances, otherwise it's just dead. One of the delights of the Theatre in Old Town's production, which Alessan-drim has directed, is that not only are the lyrics consistently funny, the performances are topnotch as well (all four have done other versions, in New York, on tours, and/or in the recent L.A. run). Although there's a sameness to some of the bits (who oes and doesn't get cast in movie emakes of musicals, for example). Burrows' smart and splashy me is that he admits to his connivi remakes of musicals, for example), the cast is remarkably versatile. Christine Pedi's renditions of Liza Minnelli ("Liza One-Note"), Ethel Merman, and Patti LuPone suggest she could do just about anything. The Peacock Screams When the Lights Go Out When the Lights Go Out Kelly Stuart has written a ferocious broadside that asks if "health care," especially for women, is an oxy-moron. In a world premiere produc tion, staged with equal ferocity by Scott Feldsher and the Sledgehammer Theatre. Powork reveals what remains of Anne's mind. Convinced that, "for me, failure is inevitable," and cultural binders. The play moves nonlinearly through her childhood, employment as an unsuccessful shoe clerk, an operation for breast cancer, and the post-operative hell that fol-lows. The scenes are Anne's memolows. The scenes are Anne's memo-ries, each a nightmarish coagulation (and where'd the nurses get those pointy hats, the Spanish Inquisi-tion?). They may be the last memo-ries Anne will ever have. In spite of a technically rough opening night — a Sledgehammer tradition — this is Sledgehammer tradition — this is one of the company's better efforts. The production is brash, all over the stage. It's got lumpy sections and parts that do go on. Michelle Riel's eye-opener of a set includes 12 mon-itors and what might be the inside of a woman's breast, stage rear. If there weren't many other reasons for seeing Paucock, what Linda Castro does as Anne would be sufficient; she's outstanding. In the show's two she's outstanding. In the show's two-plus, intermissionless hours, Anne must venture through the equivalent of a Halloween haunted house, only all the scenes and all the pain are hy-per-real. every rock show in every city on the planet. I became clear to Faithfull will before she broke up with Jagger (1971) that being the ap-pendage of a rock star was a less-than-satisfying vocation. Forever after, she has searched for creative fulfillment. First, "Sister Morphine" (a boast de-nied by the songwriting tag team of Jagger/Richards, to whom the work is legally credited). Then she glommed onto various musicians. Finally she various musicians. Finally she came up with Broken English, co-written by playwright Heathcote Williams and mid-wifed by Faithfull's then-boyfriend Ben Brierly.

"Not but what beauty is a sad snare for a woman." British au-thor Mrs. Gaskell wrote that about Mary Barton, one of her typically hapless heroines, who winds up debauched by the gentry and moldering in Manchester, circa 1848. The Manchester, circa 1848. The same thing happens, and for much the same reasons, to German-born singer Nico, who is discovered squatting in Manchester by author lames Young some 135 years later. Thus beat definitely proves that Faithfull's story is archetypal rather than unique. The snare that caught the one woman caught the other just as fast. But whereas Faithfull was bright enough to recognize her problem ("I wanted," she writes, "to destroy my face"), poor Nico's thoughts on the subject are left to the imagination. "She had traded in her glamour for something altogether more unapreadine." altogether more unappealing," Young writes. "But she didn't seem to care, insulated from elf-appraisal by the warm nul lifying reassurance that heroin songs like "I'll Be Your Mir-ror," "Femme Fatale," and "All Tomorrow's Parties." Nico was never well-liked by the band it-self; indeed, Warhol considered self indeed, Warhol considered her a human art project, ob-jectifying her and then dropping her flat. Nico occupied a more dignified position in rock than did Marianne Faithfull — not being saddled with the title "girlirend of is a big bonus when it comes to artistic credibility — but her abbequent career was similar in the details."

THE READER PUZZLE by Don Rubin

The two beads above the bar on an abacus are called altobrads, and the five beads below it, hypobauls. The bar, itself, is the axis along which any active computation is performed.

One altobead equals five

We'd like you to add the two abaci at the top, and then fill in your solution on the abacus at the bottom.

RULES OF THE GAME The prize for solving the Reader Puzzle will be a Reader T

shirt.

Strengthen Your Chin Without Lifting a Finger

Well, it's almost that easy. If a stronger chin would improve your appearance, just lift your finger and call Dr. Ronald Hecker and Dr. Craig Dever of La Jolla Oral & Maxillofacial Surgery to schedule an initial consultation.

Doctors Hecker and Dever will explain how, using the newest, safest polymer bone replacement materials and minimally invasive surgical techniques, they can dramatically improve your appearance.

This outpatient procedure leaves no visible scars, is performed in the comfort of their office, and is more affordable than you may think.

So, lift your finger and call 459-0862 to schedule your consultation visit.

•Two San Diego EMS personnel were injured Saturday when the ambulance they were driving to an emergency was struck by a pickup at the intersection of SH 44 and Dr. E. E. Dunlap. Both ambulance attendants were treated and released from an Alice hospital.

• The San Diego City Council held an emergency meeting on Tuesday to determine what steps needed to be taken to restore ambulance service to the city. The council authorized EMS director Sergio Garcia to continue his negotiations to rent a replacement ambulance. Late Tuesday, Garcia left for San Antonio to bring back a rental unit to be used while the city's ambulance is renaired.

Democratic Texas governor Ann Richards was defeated in her bid for a second term by Republican George W. Bush. In Duval County, Richards easily won local support. The governor received 2809 votes or 82.3 percent of the 3439 votes cast.

• Nearly seven years after a small group of Baptists organized the Mission Bautista Emmanuel. the faithful will have a permanent church building in which to worship. The mission church of the First Baptist Church of Alice saw the building go up over the weekend as a group of fellow Baptists from Annaville and Corpus Christi came to town to hammer together the structure.

The Republican Party won the U.S. Senate, U.S. House, and governouslips from here to Borneo...even the California Assembly, plane the Vice County, Newda, frorbid floard. The next we should abundon the walter state and rely on private charities. I can see in now, an East Coast, urdan, femal personalo, packing four small children on her hip, seeks private charity armed with a 2500-4 day crark hold had if this paral education. Today is Monday, time for our friend to drop by the Good Sisters of Charity for morning prayers and her weekly allowance. Yeah, that will work. The narrow-minded may well ask, "Do we have enough rivate charities to pick up the slack?" All you have to do is look at the homeless. Have private charities solved that problem? Are the homeless liv-

the insane at no cost to you. But all that is beside the point, and But all that is beside the point, and meaningless in the grand scheme of things. What counts is that Any Patron, Nevada Bob, and the Sporting Box all went one for three last week, and it wasn't much better the week before. Life is getting ugly, the world seems grim and depressing. The jolly light that once sparkled in our eyes has departed, leaving be-hind a bloodshot trail of tears. These are the times Nevada Bob told me about, long ago in the lounge of Gil's Club Exotica. You gotta understand that Nevada Bob has been betting THE VEGAS LINE sports for 30 years and earns 30 to 60K per annum. But once every season, Bob told me, you get down to your nut, and then you have to dig into your stash. At that moment, you question everything there are no guarantees you'll come back and hit a winning streak; you stand alone on the cliff and have to redecide hing streat; you stant aone on the cliff and nave to receive how you're going to live.

I was touched. I pictured Bob on a lifeless, windswept Mar-I an plateau, summoning the courage to rededicate his gambling life. It was a scene made more existential and tortuous since he had broken into his stash. I whispered softly across the table, "Bob, when that time comes, how do you decide what to do?"
"No problem with me, I'm a degenerate gambler, of course

I'll keep playing."

And so too, gentle readers, we here at the Box will carry on.

we here at the flox will carry on.

It wan't pretty San Diego fumbled on the opening kickoff, followed that with three more tumosevs. The homebow swer down 13 to aip by halftime. In the fourth quarter they let loo have the hall with less than two minutes left, and if the game lasted two more seconds that would have been nough, But it was the Chargers who came away with the seconds that would have been nough, But it was the Chargers who came away with the game to the ARC West, as that made more impressive because they've best every conference opponent on the road.

When we look at the ARC, theft is thing we need to do is get down on our knees and thank the golds and goddoess that the fulfallo list are live and five and we have a better than the ARC right now are Cleveland and Pittsburghr. Goldowed by Miams. On a good day San Dego could be dat noy them.

By Patrick Daugherty

a good day San Diego could beat any of them. They can't beat the Niners or Cowboys, but let's enjoy this one day at a time.
