Albright's Kid Stuff article in the November 23 issue. How dare this woman pass judgment on another human being. How dare she be either amused or sad about the differing lifestyle she witnessed in Mindy and Bob? But I realized I was vassing indement ized I was passing judgment on Anne in my anger. So let me just say: like sunshine, the miracle of love can grace any and all of us. Let's share it; let's and all of us. Let's share it; let's rejoice in the things we hold in common. Mindy and Bob will get by, maybe getting by a lot more fully and lovingly than we realize. Oh, and of course, remember the story of the Christmas nativity. It provides an opportunity for rejoicing about things loftier than our distort our story of the cars, who was not the cars of the ca diets or our shoes or the cars we drive.

That Is Not True

Your November 10 article
"The Great Cabbie Rebellion

Correction.

The number of Yellow Cab permits has remained con-stant since at least 1980. In the article, Nasser Tehrani is quoted as saying, "MTDB has given 15 to 25 medallions [taxicab licenses] to the Yellow Cab Company..." That is not true. In fact, MTDB has not issued any permits to Yellow Cab, nor to its owner doing business under any other while this error may not seem to be significant to the casual reader or to the general public, issuance of the additional taxicab permits must be in accordance with the policy adopted by the MTD Roard of Directors in 1988. Board of Directors in 1988. Concerning permits to operate in the City of San Diego, the policy requires a lottery process in the event new per-mits were authorized; none, mits were authorized, none, however, have been authorized. The number of City of National City permits is fixed, and none have been available from MTDB. New permits are available to operate in El Cajon. Imperial Beach, Lemon Grove, Poway, and Santee. However, MTDB has not issued any to Yellow Cab.

Boring, Flip-Flop, live Movies

Jive Movies
I just read Duncan Shepherd's review of Star Trek Generations (December 1). I really think you guys should get somebody who is a little more in tune with what American audiences like and with how wonderfully that movie came together. I've noticed in the past that every time Duncan past that every time Duncan Shepherd reviews a movie— if it's a popular movie— he continually puts it down with his idiotic and his "expert" his idiotic and his "expert" views. I think you should get somebody who is a little more in tune with reality, someone who doesn't give four stars to boring, filip-flop, jive movies that are playing at Hillcrest Cinemas or the Park theater. Those movies are good to an extent, but I still think that Duncan's critique of movies is Duncan's critique of movies is absolute crap. You have such a wonderful newspaper, I really think you should get somebody who's a little more in tune with what American movie audiences want, no just the ten percent that he represents.

No Logic Involved

Duncan Shepherd gives Casablanca, a timeless movie lassic, one star. By any defini tion a one-star movie is a bad movie, and bad movies rarel last out a season, let alone hall a century! Casablanca was re leased in 1943 and remains a classic, or it would not be cur classic, or it would not be cur-rently available for review by Duncan.

Question: Dear Duncan:
What, and where, is your logic? Probable answer: No logic is involved. I just don't like the damn film, or Bogart, or Bergman, or the Germans, or the French...

This is not the first letter I

This is not the first letter l This is not the first letter I have written questioning Shepherd's competency. Is he really a legitimate film critic? Or only someone who will generate more letters to the editor?

there will be some inevitable delay, you can't build anything big in this country without lawaitis, and some have already been filed on this project. Certainly, the project will go over budget, and there will be further delay grubbing for more money, but in the end, in the foreseeable future, the fix is on the our country is getting poorer. One way that fact shows up is the percentage of owner-occupied housing units. From 1970 to 1990, owner-occupied housing units in Chula Vista dropped from about 60 percent to approximately 50 percent. Induced City went down from 45 percent to under 30 percent. Imperial Beach sank from 40 percent to 27 percent.

"Imperial Beach has got a limited land area.
Let's say you're a farmer, okay, that's a simple way to look at it, and you've got 100 acres of land. How many cows can you run on 100 acres of land? You can run 22 cows, right? It don't matter what the hell you do. you can only run 22 cows. But now if I say, 'Wait a minute, we'll put 100 acres above the 100 acres.' Now you can run 44 cows. Now you might be able to make a profit. This city has only got so much land. The only way to build it is up.

I'd swear I was visiting a small town in the Midwest. The only thing missing is a feed store.

"I'll take you down and show you a unit I manage. It's down by the school." Scheck and I walk outside to his parked Caddy, Now this is a Cadillac, early '80s, back when they made them, big, long, and white. We head down Palm Avenue, putting slow and low, make a right on Delaware. Scheck noods to his right, looking towards an ancient, one-story wooden structure. "This property is older than Moses. It's called a 'move on.' That's an old Navy barracks, that brown one. You'll find them all over town. The total orown one. Tou it find them an over town. The total square footage of that goddamn building isn't much over — what the hell do they run out at — 1100 or 1200 square feet, something like that for the whole damn building. It's 20 feet by 50 feet, and it's got two two-

If that burned down I don't think you could rebuild it. But here's your problem, there's a back yard there. Every Mexicain in the world, if he's go, and yack yard he's immediately got thing going into it. Both those tenants are Mexican. It's very low eren there, $250 and $500, something like that for each side.

"This is a constant buttle." The minute! tent to a Mexican! got to come by the next day and side there.

We crawl down the street. "Now this here has got ten-foot-high, ceilings and everything else, but that's been here, I don't know how many hundred years. This lot happens to be? Set levb 19 feet clause they deeded back 10 feet." He points next door to what looks to be an abandoned duplex. "Now this was multiple zoned, so it's an ideal lot, you could build a nice 20 units on it. What's wrong with 20 units here! You've got the school right there. It's a dead-end street, ideal, But oh no, now they 'got it zoned back."

He's another total hip. Seventy-three. He eled from east of the mountains to this king dom of insomniacs to lie, like the rest of us, it dom of insommiacs to lie, like the rest of us, in the changeless position of a fossil locked in its bed of stone. When the Seconal fails and then the Nembutol, does he crave some lullaby to soothe him to sleep? He's taped "Eddweiss" and "Lara's Theme": To the strains of Somewhere, my love he's blissfully dreaming, the tape deck, going around and around like a satellite in space, the music repeating.

It uses nighttime now for plotting and experimenting. I try, for instance, to make the music stop by changing the position of my head. I've noticed among the night nurses a certain riosity about the matter of the music. "I'm sure. Mr. Morley is asleep."

"I'm sure. Mr. Morley is asleep."
For a second my mind goes to the urinal.
Was it full? Then I hear her suggest that maybe

How to prevent Carbon Monoxide poisoning.

Dangerous levels of Carbon Monoxide build up if any fuel doesn't burn completely.

- If your home uses natural gas for cooking or heating, periodically check your equipment including stoves, water heaters and fireplaces to see that they're in good working order.
- Pilot lights and burner flames should be clear blue, although a small amount of orange is normal.
- Check chimneys for blockages, and when your furnace is on, open a window a
- Never use cooking appliances for space

Carbon Monoxide strikes without warning.

You can't see it or smell it. But one thing's for sure, Carbon Monoxide kills. Symptoms of Carbon Monoxide poisoning include dizziness, headaches, queasy stomach and drowsiness.

Not that a nuns' choir would sing this manifesty non-religious music, with its texts about men wounded by love and begging grace from their adorable but diedatiful ladies. The musical form of the motes had liturgical origins, but the 13th-century motest Anonymous 4 chose from the Montpellier Codex (a collection made around the Montpeller Codes (a collection made around 1400) have adapted and expanded the liturgical forms for a thoroughly worldly purpose the est-atiation of the declastic and sensual game of love known as amour courtou's ("courtly love"). This music has a number of peculiar features that make listening to it a challenge, until the modern ear has adapted itself to the most con-ventions. The voices (two, three, or four) have a great deal of independence. A long bestuded tune-viders a metrical underprinning (always in three-best units, three being the perfect numthree-beat units, three being the perfect num-ber), but the other voices go their own way, each having its own tune. Harmonic movement of the sort we have become accustomed to is absent. but consonance in the 13th Century means musicians of such taste, such type, such restraint, and such voca beauty to bring the medicul conventions to life and to convince the listener of herie validity.

There is another feature of the 14th century. There is another feature of the 14th century and the such that the such t

All this is significant for the way the music is performed, for it calls up the troubled issue of emotional expression is "early" music. The 13th early music. He rost is a passionate century; its history and its arts bear witness to that. It is the era of the exu-berant Gothic cathe-drals, of exciting and sentiment-laden verse romances. of the heart-on-sleeve courtly-love poems courtly-love poems used in these very motets. Yet modern performances of the in an effort to avoid in an effort to avoid the anachronisms of later styles (such as opera), tend to remove overt expressions of emotion altogether, leaving the music cold, impersonal, and pious-sounding, even when the texts (however unintelligible they may be) celebrate passionate, romantic, sensual love. What are performers to do? — perfo

That may be inherent in the music itself, for the compositional principles of secular and reli-gious motets in the 13th Century are identical.

Or — and this is not an impossibility — the same kind of music may have been performed in one manner when the motet was liturgical and the performers were clerics, and in another when the bject was courtly love and the motet was sun subject was courtly love and the motet was sung in a castle in the company of aristocratic ladies and their knights. Some early-music performance groups have at least dared to speculate on what that alternative mode of performance may have sounded like. In any case, Anonymous 4's way is historically and musically justifiable — and, as the audience at the Escondido Center can testify, the results are ravishoody looky.

gestions indicate larger entities. For example, previous Ghosts of Christmas Future have been 12 feet tall (i.e., a brave actor on stilts). This time, the Ghost is even bigger. Scrooge just looks up at something so vast, it must reside outside of the Lyceum Theatre. The mini malism is everywhere. Doors and stairs roll around on wheels. Smoke, shadows, and wheels. Smoke, shadows, and images on a wide blue curtain (back- and side-lit beautifully by Ashley York Kennedy) cre-ate parts of pictures the audience can fill in imagina-tively. Todd Roehrman's costumes, by contrast, are de-tailed layers of Victorian apparel. And even though they may be 151 years out of fashion, the costumes have a transcendent appeal (boy, do they look

For those interested in non-sea-sonal theater fare, the San Diego Black Ensemble Theatre is stag-ing Manuel Puig's drama of incarceration, Kiss of the Spi-der Woman (the play version— it began as a novel in 1978, was a film and theater-piece in 1985, and a failed musical in 1993), and a falled musical in 1993), at the Twigs Coffee and Tea Company on Park Boulevard. production is surrounded by drums. And though they ap-pear too exotic at first for the setting — hardly what one would expect to find in a grim prison cell — the drums serve as props and even speak as voices during the show. Overvoices during the show. Over-all, the production was not without problems (timing and adhering to the play's rhythms among them), but it certainly among them), but it certainly merits a larger audience than was in attendance on opening night. And Tviags Coffee and Tea may have given San Diego theater an early Christmas present. Its small but versatile performance space, next door to the coffee shop proper, could develop into a useful new site for readings and intimate productions. That's cause for cheer the whole year round.

problems that result," Rose says. "The tuning is greatly affected when you do radical effects like the tremolo bar. You'd always have to watch where you put those [effects], like at the end of a song, so [afterward] you could stop and tune.

that can wrench out that boundaringger sounds when the continuous continuous fine-tuning devices I invented. I was the first one to come up with adding tuners to tremolo bridges as opposed to fixed bridges."

How did Rose market this?
"I didn't actually. Randy was written up in Guitar Player magazine and mentioned the tremolo zine and mentioned the tremolo and what it did. The magazine in-cluded my name and address, and I got deluged with calls and letters. I didn't have to advertise, because I couldn't fill the orders I had. Then Eddie Van Halen mentioned it in a raticle."

Did Rose have to have his in-vention tooled and manufactured?

how to use it. I started whittling steel." Rose moved to the San Diego area a year and a half ago. He doesn't have to whittle steel in his basement any longer. The Flovd Rose tremolo system is now man-factured under licene by several companies, including Schaller in Germany. "They've been in the music industry for years and years making tuning keys, etc. I have. I making tuning keys, etc. I have, I believe, a dozen or more licensees: Ibanez, Gotoh, Schaller, Yamaha the next Christmas classic. Going into another season of holiday blockbusters, the final contenders may well be the chanting monks of Santo Domingo pitted against the singing cats of Los Angeles. If the stakes get much higher, the loser may be forced to leave town for good.

In truth, holiday shoppers are the engine that drives not just the record and publishing industries, but the national economy as well. With millions of once-a-year shoppers added to their regular, albeit panicky, impulse oriented clientele, a certifiable Christmas hit can be the difference between a label's great year or a lackluster one. With the bottom line of Christmas (Columbia) begins "Christmas is Mariah's favorite their ledger sheets firmly in mind, most record labels have been time of year." Oh, right. host of other luminaries singing the standard pabulum, er, favorites, about Jack Frost, sugarplums, reindeer, snow, and the ubiquitous symbols we associate with the holiday season. Most of the major Christmas releases this year, as is the case with most seasons, originate from pop and country artists.

The pop contingent is led by a trio of -Mariah Carey, Donna Summer and Natalie Cole-whose battle for chardominance will be an interesting sidelight to the usual onslaught of superstar releases that flood the holiday market.

few popular Christmas songs have become so entrenched in the holiday repertoire that Christmas without them is like Rudolph without his red nose.

You know that the holiday season is upon you as soon as you hear Alvin and the Chipmunks' "The Chipmunk Song" (EMI) blaring from radios on sleighs all over your his record of "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer" (Columbia) remains a favorite of cowboys and city folk alike.

"Silver Bells," that song about Christmastime in the city. popularized by Margaret Whiting and Jimmy Wakely (Capitol), gets an equally nice treatment by Doris Day

"The Little Drummer Boy," made famous by the Harry Simeone Chorale (Mercury), dates back only to 1958 but definitely has a timeless carol-like quality about it.

Leroy Anderson's recording of his own composition "Sleigh Ride" (MCA) is the perfect choice of music as you address your Christmas cards-especially if they depict a onehorse open sleigh dashing through the snow of the first songs many of us ever learned. Frank Sinatra has a nice version of it on his Capitol Christmas album

Eartha Kitt's plea to Santa to hurry down the chimney on her record of "Santa Baby"-available on Rhino's Rillhoard Greatest Christmas Hits: 1935-1954is a favorite of many, but Madonna fans naturally will want the Madonna version (available on A&M's A Very Special Christmas).

"What Are You Doing New Year's Eve," though not really a Christmas song, is something you should sing all through the holiday season, just to make sure you're not alone on December 31st. Ella Fitzgerald's version (Verve) is a good one to learn it from.

Nat King Cole's rendition of "The Christmas Song" (Capitol) has been heard so many times that we know it simply by its lyrics, "Chestnuts roasting ..." etc.

The winner and champion is, you guessed it, Bing Crosby's "White Christmas" (MCA), still the alltime best-selling single, Christmas or otherwise. Here's wishing you many, many white Christmases

Christmas canon to augment a brief seven standards. Variety magazine designated Carey as the biggest-selling female artist of the '90s, so it's only appropriate that disco diva Donna Summer, the megastar from the '70s, has added Christmas Spirit (Mercury) to her catalogue. Not to be undone by Ms. Carey, Summer has also written three new songs. Natalie Cole rounds out the festivities with Holly And Inv (Elektra), noteworthy for its inclusion of her dad's standard "Christmas Song."

The country and folk contingent has a trio of big-name performers as well. Judy Collins reprises her "Amazing Grace" and debuts her self-penned "Song for Sarajevo" on Come Rejoice! (Mesa). The American heartland will be receptive to Sammy Kershaw as he follows up his gold and platinum hits with Christmas Time's A Comin' (Mercury). Trisha Yearwood's The Sweetest Gift (MCA) can only solidify her reputation as one of the most exquisite interpretive singers to come out of Nashville.

Some other noteworthy holiday recordings are also in the works. Neil Diamond follows up 1992's seasonal effort with The Christmas Album Volume II (Columbia). Diamond's audience will undoubtedly want Miracles by Kenny G (Arista). whose press release says it all-"once again, his saxophone will stand out as one of the great voices of our time." The hyperbolic sensibilities inherent in these releases call for a dose of integrity and who is better suited to serve as a voice of Garrison Keillor's Now It Is Christmas Again (Angel). His Lake Wobegon Christmas is replete with Scandinavian carols, choirs, and the whimsical stories that made him a star. His radio colleague, jazz pianist Butch Thompson, also has a new recording, the all instrumental Yulestride (Daring). cat-obsessed culture.

was the year of Chant, will its Christmas be known as Chant Noel (Angel)? Well, the monks from Spain are back with a limited edition of Latin ons celebrating the season. Expect to find crowded malls of aimless shoppers mouthing "must have chant" as the monks hypnotic Medieval Muzak" send their audience into a holiday torpor

Recently, a Maryland-based boutique label added a third Recently, a Maryland-based boutique label added a third holiday title to its growing roster of Celtic-inspired music. Ancient Nells (Maggie's Music) promises to be a departure from the previous hammered dulcimer recordings by label founder and performer Maggie Sansone. This holiday season finds Sansone playing traditional ethereal melodies with the Ensemble Galilei, a chamber group well-suited to the traditional demands of the Medieval and Renaissance repertoire. There is a sense of integrity in the music of Aucient Noëls that is found wanting in so much of the holiday treacle we hear today.

Charles Brown, the venerable blues pianist, also knows a lot about integrity. Like Sansone, his efforts are always first-rate and his audiences are always receptive and select. His new holiday collection, Cool Christmas Blues (Bullseye Blues), recapitulates many blues standards associated with the less publicized aspects of the season—depression, loneliness, and separation, factors most frequently associated with Christmas

Very seldom does a holiday season go by without an offthe-wall novelty item coming along to start the cash registers singing. Past Christmas "stars" like Stan Freberg, Bob Rivers, Elmo and Patsy, the Barking Dogs, Spike Jones, et. al. have given Dr. Demento's career a second life, not to mention a new lease on life for the singing Jingle Cats. Expect to hear even more from these chirping felines: cat-food giveaways, cartoons and videos, stuffed animal toys and of course, a full-length recording to satiate the appetites of our Christmas-crazy

There is something pleasant about hearing a band you know nothing about, not where they refrom nor what stupic rock camp they're supposed to belong to. Freed of preconceptions formed by MTV videos, you can assess the band's character without resorting to pat visual images. Silkworm's allown Libertine is ferring, rather, to those unavoidable bumps in the road when a writer as capriciously violates the "rehearsal" Premise.

Those last few conceits aside, the movie, as its title forthrightly an nounces, is more documentary than fiction, a continuation and final clo-sure of the theatrical work-in-progress, a filmed record of it, so that in Malle's ditions do not in the least atter Gregory's plan, but neither do they add a lot to it. They are little indeed. Seeing this movies in odouble lost trou-bed of a copy of the play and reading it by yourself. That, though, is a strong a recommendation as it can get from me. Of Malle's body of work, it is one of the more amputable parts. The Ken Cleman tomorrow em-branch was a seven-day, seven-film retrospective of the works of Stanley has turred out just review of them. As has turred out just review of them. a filmed record of it, so that in Malle's own words it could "get to be seen by an audience." The slightly bobbing, sliding image, riema write's the, plays up the documentary aspect. And in COTChehov's learn moderamatic ones: a couple of pistol shots are fired, but one gets this! is not strictly an issue for the film critic. Nor, come to that, is the quality of the theatrical production, though I can't help but not exceed the couple of pistol shots are forced by the couple of the couple that the actors, who lived with their roles for so long, work minor mira-cles in making it all song, work minor mira-cles in making it all some the sound actual soundations. Their delivery, that is, always sounds like that, it doesn't at all interesting the soundation of the soundation of the Moore's ingenious trick of laughing while reciting the unmerriest of lines: "He must think I'm mean" or "Oh, while reciting the unmerriest of lines: "He must think I'm mean" or "Oh, so to bed, You digust me." And nor an I referring to Brooke Smith's small Medionas— on a line like TLord, why did you make me so plain?" I was re-ferring, rather, to those unavoidable ferring, rather, to those unavoidable

Ihave a very large extended family besides my husband and two kids. There are in-saw, bruthers and a sister, their kids, In my family we party, and a few works before the party, and a few works before the party we draw names. Each adult gets one other abult, and that it has ing around 550. Everyhoody elec's present it limited to something output in literally save hondreds of dollars. We started this about seven years ago when out of introuble and they almost dishift come to the family get -ingelther out of bring gifts. There was the party of the pa embarrassnent because they couldn't bring gifts. Enough's enough. Christ-mas is supposed to be about good-will and love. In our family, we just enjoy being together and celebrat-ing the fact that we all made it another year.

If you'd like to see yourself with a stronger chin, call Dr. Ronald Hecker and Dr. Craig Dever of La Jolla Oral & Maxillofacial Surgery and let them show you.

Using computer imaging software, Doctors Hecker and Dever can give you a clear image of how their new chin augmentation procedure will give you the strong, confident looking chin you've always wanted.

This outpatient procedure leaves no visible scars, is performed in the comfort of their office, and is more affordable than you may think. See how terrific you'll look with a stronger chin!

PICTURE STORY by the San Diego Historical Society

Pifty years before it became stylish, San Diego High School and Junior College students held a walkout to protest the dismissal of 19 of their teachers by a newly elected school board coterie of "The Solid Three." This photo was taken on June 6, 1918; two days earlier, dismissal notices had been mailed to 19 San Diego High School teachers for reasons never adequately explained. One explanation: the 19 were considered loyal to a school superintendent, Duncan MacKinnon, that the Solid Three disliked and had effectively neutralized with their majority vote. A second, more sinister explanation was that the 19 had failed to adequately answer a questionnaire/quasi-loyalty oath that was distributed to San Diego teachers in May of that year.

Over 1500 students took to the streets and marched to the town plaza; a resolution was drafted and presented to the school board. The students resolved not to return to school until the board gave reasons, "other than political," for the dismissal of the teachers. In reply, the Solid Three (alternately called "The Royal Three") wrote a chilling letter to the San Diego Union in which they claimed several of the 19 teachers were "under surveillance for Pro-Germanism and ... were dropped for that reason." The allegations proved unfounded. After a public outcry, the board offered to reinstate 18 of the 19 teachers, but most had already entered other employment. An outraged citizenry began a recall of the Royal Three (ultimately successful by a 3-to-1 margin), and San Diego students returned to school in late August.

weeks. San Diego Independent School

For the second time in as many weeks, San Diego Independent School District trustees have backed up a punishment administered by high school officials. They upheld the two-day suspension of a high school senior who reportedly made obscene and inappropriate gestures at a year-ending pep rally.

 Volunteers and City of San Diego personnel will spend Saturday cleaning the San Diego Gemetery. The entire cemetery will be cleared of overgrown vegetation and debris. The St. Francis de Paula Columbian Squires have volunteered to help with the cleanup project. · Claudio Tibilier is returning home to San Diego this Saturday to introduce his gourmet product to San Diego and the surrounding area. He will be at El Mercado to demonstrate his line of gourmet foods, all of which contain anywhere.

Other NFC wildcard contenders:
Philly (7-6), losers of their last four games, Insia with Pithstupgh, NY, Glants, and Cincinnati. They should win two. but it and could fold completely. A step back, at 6-7, are Arizona, NY, Giants, and Atlanta,
As always, forget Atlanta, and the Giants have to play Dallas again. It's weird to say like Arizona. The Cardinals have not like Arizona. The Cardinals have not allowed any opponent to score more than two touchdowns, except for Dallas, since two touchdowns, except for Dallas, since September. Arizona ends the year playing Washington, Cincinnati, and Atlanta. They should sweep and as the playoffs begin we will hear noted football sociopath Buddy Ryan tell us what a smart guy he really is.

One more time.
I'd kind of like that, actually.
The best team in the AFC is Pittsburgh (10-3). Fittingly, the Steelers play San Diego on the last day of the regular season. Pittsburgh has won five straight, keeping opponents to an average of 10 points per game. Superb defensive and a mistake-free (if average) offense has been enough to put Pittsburgh clearly above the rest of the conference. They play Philly, Cleveland, and the Bolts, and should sweep, if they do they'll have home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. One of they Dallas and Pittsburgh. The Browns will beat Seattle December 24 and back into the playoffs.

Pittsburgh. The Browns will beat Seaue sessents. The San Diego "Not-Ready-For-Prime-Time" Chargers bleve a big one last Monday. At 9-4 they still control their fate in the AFC West, but must finish against the 49ers. Jets, and Pittsburgh. Paril lose two, as regard, but the Broncos, winning seven of their last integrants, are playing footbull again. The Raiders... who knows? This one ain't over vert.

The he AFC East, Miami (8-5) choked on the big one last Sunday, Iosing to the beast that would not die, the brother-law who is just going to stay for a few days, the eternal party-crasher, Buffalo, Miam has lost three of it last for urgames. Miamin has three of its last foru games. New England is on a roll, winning its last our. The Partots finish with help, Buffalo, and Chicago and should win two, enough for a clean shot at the playoffs. The Jess and Colts, both 6-7, have a short about the conducting a discrete affair. In the AFC East, Miami (8-5) conducting a discreet affair.

So, who's what? Dallas and 49ers in the NFC championship game. Pittsburgh and Miami in the AFC final. At Super Bowl XXsomething, it's Frisco versus Pittsburgh. Frisco wins and covers the spread. That will be a hundred bucks, all
