Pension Board Not Retiring about Accepting Freebies

By Thomas X. Arida

While most San Diegans were packing up their vacation gear and getting back to work last fall, a lucky member of the county's retirement board was preparing to set off for Africa for a weeklong vacation tour called "Pensioners 2000." The trip included business expenses, but the board member said he was paying for the rest of the trip himself. During the tour, which was a part of a series of tours that the board is planning to take, the board member visited several countries in Africa. He said he was looking for a way to get free trips on a regular basis, but he was not sure if the board would approve it.

Toxic Cadmium's Mexican Connection

By Melinda Frey

Last November, San Diego Mayor Susan Golding heralded plans by Matsushita Electric Industrial Company to build two factories and relocate some of the company's operations to Mexico. In a press release, the mayor said the company would bring new jobs to the city and help reduce the city's dependence on imports. In a subsequent letter to the company, the mayor expressed her support for the project and said the city would do all it could to help make it a success. The letter was signed by the mayor and the city's chief economic development officer. At the same time, the city's mayor and council members were considering a proclamation recognizing the company's efforts. The mayor said the city would work with the company to ensure that the project was successful.
Sum of a Holistic Lawyer's Parts

by Bill Menees

A legal system where lawyers encourage clients to avoid them, having done their own investigations, and where lawyers on separate sides of aparticular case work to keep news of their work private. Unfortunately, that's not uncommon.

One lawyer, who wants to remain anonymous, spoke to me about a case in which he was representing a client who was under indictment by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The SEC was alleging that the client had defrauded through fraudulent offerings.

The lawyer, who did not want his name used, said that he believed the SEC had mischaracterized the facts and that the client
had not actually defrauded anyone.

He said that he had spent hundreds of hours
researching the case
and had found evidence that supported his client's position. But he decided not to use
this evidence because he knew that the SEC would not 认可 his argument
and that the case
would likely end up in court.

The lawyer said that he felt it was important to protect his client's interests and to keep
the case out of the media.

He added that he believed the SEC was using its power to force the

client to settle
out of court.

The lawyer said that he had considered taking his case to court, but he preferred to keep it quiet.

He said that he had spoke to other lawyers
who had had similar experiences and that they had also decided to keep their cases

The lawyer said that he believed that the legal

Phone Matches Success Stories:

Jennifer and Dean Sipes

I LOVE BAJA. camping. SCUBA. exploring beaches and the mountains. I'm 33, 29 with brown hair and green eyes. Yea. 30-40. professional, sincere. adventurous. 😊

Jennifer: When I moved back to San Diego after graduating from UC Davis, and I didn't really know anybody. Some friends told me that Phone Matches™ was a good way to meet people.

Dean: About a year and a half ago. I ran out of help myself. I met some nice people and made some friends. But nothing more.

Jennifer: I got about 30 responses to my ad. Dean stood out because we're both in medical professions - he's a parasitologist and I'm a veterinarian.

Dean: When we met I already had a trip planned to Mexico with a group of friends. Jennifer's ad said she liked camping and I asked her to come along.

Jennifer: I was still out on a beach in Mexico with no showers. We saw each other at one gathering.

Dean: When we made it back to San Diego. Jennifer's ad said she wanted to meet someone who was both ambitious. We were interested and decided to see a beat around the world. Some day soon.

Jennifer: But she handled it fantastically. I thought, "If she can make it through a sinking..."

Dean: What really did it for me was Jennifer's pack. It's bigger than mine.

Jennifer: We got married about a year later. On January 1st.

Dean: We were planning a big wedding that cost thousands of dollars, but one rainy afternoon we decided to use the money to buy a house instead.

Jennifer: That's how we called our families and our friends and said, "Can you meet us in Las Vegas tomorrow?"

Dean: Everybody dropped what they were doing and went. They spent the whole weekend with us.

Jennifer: Now we're working on the house together. We've painted, painted, painted. And Dean: We're both ambitious. We're doors. Jennifer: Some day, we'd like to retire and sail a beat around the world. Some day soon.
How to Read a Mug

The mouth, together with the eyes, is the window of our future. What our hands reveal is our personality and what our effects on other beings is our own reality.

A mug is more than just a cup; it's a reflection of who we are. Here are some clues to decode the language of mugs:

1. The Shape of the Mug
   - A smooth, rounded shape might suggest a friendly, approachable individual.
   - A stark, angular shape could indicate a more reserved or distant person.

2. The Handle
   - A long, thin handle may imply a need for control or a preference for independence.
   - A short, thick handle could suggest a more open and receptive personality.

3. The Design
   - Intricate patterns might indicate a creative or artistic personality.
   - Minimalistic design could reflect a more practical or straightforward approach.

4. The Color
   - Bright, bold colors could suggest a more lively and energetic personality.
   - Soft, muted colors might indicate a more calm and introspective individual.

By understanding these elements, you can better read the language of mugs and gain a deeper insight into the personalities of those you interact with. Remember, like all forms of communication, mugs can be deceptive, so always consider the context in which they are presented.

In the end, reading a mug is like reading a book—a glimpse into someone's soul. So the next time you're at a party or a gathering, don't just sip your beverage; take the time to observe the mugs and decode the messages they're silently conveying.

Vladimir Putin, Russia's president, has been a dominant force in this year's election, with his agenda and policies taking center stage. Putin's leadership style and his stance on various issues, such as the war in Ukraine and his approach to foreign affairs, have been crucial in shaping the political landscape of the country. The election has been marred by concerns over voter suppression and manipulation, with multiple international organizations expressing their concerns and calling for free and fair elections. Despite these challenges, the election has also showcased a growing economy and a strong commitment to human rights and democratic values in Russia.
I Want This Room in Flames!

These transitions reveal Vreeland as a theatrical woman in an undramatic role.

Her Red Line to Mark Hampton and Mary Favorite, with Paul Gallico, at the Century Center. The plays are by Criterion, the leading house for modern plays. Vreeland's passion for the arts is reflected in her projects. Her love for art is evident in her choice of settings and costumes. Vreeland's work is noted for its elegance and style. Her productions are always visually stunning. This is seen in her work on stage and in the film industry.

The emotional style of the woman. Vreeland's work is notable for its ability to elicit a range of emotions from the audience. Her ability to create a sense of suspense and tension is evident in her work. Her use of lighting and set design is masterful, creating a sense of depth and realism. Vreeland's work is a testament to her ability to bring out the best in her actors and her commitment to the craft of theatre.

Forget the Crunch, Let's Do Lunch

They may be Irish, but they run the place like an Italian family.

Carroll's Green sits at 618 University Avenue, and it seems like the perfect place for a spicy Italian lunch. The owners, who take pride in their Italian heritage, have created a menu that is both traditional and unique. You may find yourself craving the rich flavors of Italy, and Carroll's Green promises to deliver.

The restaurant offers a variety of dishes, ranging from classic Italian fare to contemporary creations. The menu includes such favorites as spaghetti carbonara, fried calamari, and chicken parmesan. The owners also offer a selection of Mediterranean dishes, such as grilled salmon and Greek salad, catering to a wide range of tastes.

Carroll's Green is not just about the food. The atmosphere is warm and welcoming, making it the perfect spot for a relaxed lunch or a casual dinner with friends. The staff is friendly and knowledgeable, ensuring that your dining experience is enjoyable.

Whether you're looking for a quick meal or a more sophisticated dining experience, Carroll's Green is a must-visit for anyone who loves good food. So, forget the crunch and head over to Carroll's Green for a delicious Italian lunch.
Coronado Beach Restaurant, circa 1888.
As the sign says, proprietor D.C. Fox offered good square meals for 25¢ —
"And Don’t You Forget It" — Fox’s place, like many fledgling business establishments on the peninsula, had its beginnings in a tent. A competing tent restaurant run by Mrs. Emma Garrison was pegged into the soil neatly, on the grounds of the Hotel Del Coronado.

Coronado almost never was — the name, that is. An 1886 contest to name the newly planted resort attracted some 80 entries from San Diegoans across the bay. The winning came? How does "Minutia" grab you? It wouldn’t until a public outcry that the resort’s owners reconsidered and Anglicized a name borrowed from the Mexican islands nearby;
thus was born "Coronado."

In their first meeting of the year, the San Diego City Council approved a $307 million budget for fiscal year January 1 to December 31, 1988. For the second year, there will be an increase for employees of 7 percent.

Fiscal pressures are mounting. Shortages are facing the city's police department, schools, and recreation centers. The council must also decide on the future of the convention center and the proposed city-budget at the same time as the state's budget is decided. The state has already indicated it will cut its support by $30 million.

The city's finance department is preparing a report for the next fiscal year. The council is expected to hear the report at its next meeting on Monday, January 11. The council will then take action on the budget.

In other news, the city of San Diego has approved a plan to build a new police station in the central part of the city. The station will cost $15 million and is scheduled to open in 1989. The council also approved a plan to build a new fire station in the north part of the city. The station will cost $10 million and is scheduled to open in 1989.
