In today's installment of "let's-watchfilthy-rich-people-act-like-four-year-old-children-on-a-sugar-binge," we consider the meaning of "replace-meaning of "replace-ment players."

Replacement players, as they are called by their inferior (i.e. sports lawyers), are either "Addendum E" or "Addendum F" players. Both the Es and Fs signed a form promissing to replace striking major league shilplayers. The Es get $5000 of they last sunfil they play in a regular-season game. The Fs get the money up-front. The Es are the track-driving contingent. They played the track-driving contingent. They played based of the track of the track-driving contingent. They played based of the track of the track-driving contingent. The State own fast-food franchics and players. The Es-cape ball three or four years ago, lastred 2.21 for the El Centro Owls. Both Es and Fs. are simply opportunistic scabs, see the strike as a lucky fluke, hope they might score a good paycheck while getting themselves out of the house for a few weeks.

A legitimate minor heague player is not going to play replacement ball. The union has said it will regard such players as strikebreak-ers. Nobody needs 1120 lifetime enemies at work. And there's no penalty if minor learner of the strike-

And there's no penalty if mirror league players refuse. Saschall clubs aren't going to strong-arm or bunish their best prospects. Even base-ball escoutives realize there is a tomorrow, and their tomorrow depends on today's miror league players. Managemen has chosen to treat these players wish insincer nobility, saying in effect, "By golly, I the one-way bus ticket is instantly awarded, and the disloyal scum is sent home. Which makes sense. The rea son why Es and Is are at camp is to break the strike. Nobody believes they could have made it there on their own.

Now management says, "Hey, if you're not willing to be a strikebreaker, then what in the hell are you doing here?" Here's something interesting. Pick a team, say the San Francisco Giants. The Giants' general man-ager is Brian Sabean. His best minor league prospects aren't going to play replacement ball. Even the consid-erable number of the tire salesmen he has in tire salesmen he has in camp have said they will not play. Now, a normal spring train-ing camp will have 50 to 55 players, which is a typical roster of 40 men, plus some sur-plus meat. Sabean said he has a linte more than 30 bodies who have signed the adden-dum, or have said they will play. I can see it now. Brian Sabean turns to his number one scout, the gritzle-faced, tobacco-chewing Sparlyk Rathole. Brian stands before a map of Phoenis, his hand clasped behind his back, and borks. "All right Sparky, we got to get some ballplayers in here by noon tomorrow. I'll drive out to the S&H farm and talk to the ag-hands. you go down to Manpower and see who shows up for the 6:00 a.m., job call. Get anybody under 40 and bring 'em back here for a tryout."

Completely With Him

I picked up my Reader late this week, on Sunday, on my way home after church where the minister had spoken of the importance of being in the mo-ment. By the time I reached ment. By the time I reached the final paragraph of Hawkins Mitchell's "Growing Up Negro in San Diego" (February 16), 1 was completely with him. I was in that barbershop where he turned the page of Jet mag-azine to see the lynched Em-mett Till and his jubilant Ku Klux Klan killers on the next meet in and ms position! Not Spage, And I feet all the saidul black males turning to stare at him, powerless to protect. The next thing I knew. I was standing on my porch in the hot February sun learning. The only way I could stup was to look at my cat sleeping un-der the steps and reflect how I at least offer him protection. Mr. Mitchell's story is one that makes me cry every time I hinks of it, fow mararines have moved me that much.

If everyone would tell their
"one story" of the hurt that's almost too deep to tell, I believe it would set off waves of compassion or fellow feeling. I have pledged, as a result of reading "Growing Up Negro in San Diego," to write my
"one story." Of course, hope that a talented, feeling writer like Mr. Mitchell will now ask himself what is his soon! most himself what is his second most urgent story to tell. I would like to see more of his work. Thanks to the Reader for publishing this piece.

46 Postcards, Performance by Sarai Austin

arai Austin's upcoming performance, titled 46 Postcards, began as a work of mail art. Cards were mailed to friends, photographs of herself at different times in her life, each with a written meditation or observation on her past and the details of her daily world. Three years later, poet Austin realized there was a "kind of ritual element to 46 Postcards that I didn't really do at the time, and I feel this per-formance will enable me to complete that. To me it was tally in the character and the dramatic situation, creating authentic theater through her every sound and movement. Technically, the is at an ecceptionally high level of mastery. The colorativa is extraordinarily precise, yet full of spirit and an air of spontaneity. Bartols artic-spontaneity, Bartols artic-action of the formal structure of the music and the particular expressive executive of the music and the particular expressive nature of the piece at any given point. Whether degots, spirant, or macrats, the rapid series of notes are arrowardably given full words, the rapid series of notes are arrowardably given full words. It is addition, the colorature passages are phrased, often owing great wastiny, rather than being simply spilled out. The display of vocal promose is shaws in the service of musical shape and dramatic expressiveness, and in the control of the piece of the piec compelled to take an active in-terest in what is going on in those fabulous runs and those fabbious runs and roulades: where the music is going, and how successive phrases and passages fit together. It is not easy to single out individual performances in this consistently wonderful con-

Cravfish can grow rubbery if overcooked; these dissolved in your mouth. The red bell pepper sauce with a dish of cream was luxurious. Since the dish was a nightly special, it brought out the best in the chef.

Our meal went awny with the Caesar salad.

The romaine wasn't crisp and the tiny amount of dressing couldn't be identified as Caesar. The only Caesar salad I trust is one that is made before my eyes, as they did in the days before

I attributed the carelessness at Sirino's to the late hour. The chef may have felt too tired to prepare a fresh sauce. But how iong does it take to reduce wine and deglaze a bit of butter?

I advised my friend to stop parties and signaled the water.

in a meat sauce.

Many years ago, before the Fontainebleau Restaurant at the Wentgare Hotel settled down, I was served cog au vin — chicken in wine sauce — laden with cannod beef gray. I was shocked. But to offer salmon I advised my friend to stop-eating and signaled the waiter. He quickly defended his prod-uct by saying that diners no longer wanted buttery sauces. Does a meat sauce have fewer calories and less cholesterol? Give me a break!

There must have been a devilish look in my eye, because after some moments the salmon was whisked out of sight and a fresh piece with an appropriate wine sauce appeared.

After all of this, would I go

MULTI-FACETED PERFORMER, writer, technician, 39, fit, 6'2", 180

Thomas: San Diego is a really tough city to meet women. It seems like there's a general attitude that all men are jerks and aryone who tries to start a conversation is putting the make on you. I just gave up on dating after a while. Then I started fishing in Phone MatchesTM.

Lisa: I didn't have time to meet guys because I was always working. You have to separate business from pleasure. Phone MatchesTM allowed me to have a wide variety of choices outside of my job.

Thomas: I'm a professional astrologer, and I was able to do computerized charts on all the women who answered my ad. Lisa was my fifth compatible response. I know it may sound too scientific or cold-blooded, but it worked!

Lisa: I also knew exactly what I wanted. I had a list of all the things that are important to me. I was looking for someone who is tall, financially motivated, and Italian. A lot of me fit into my checklist, but the chemistry wasn't there. But I stayed with III, and it worked. I got it all, and I got a lot of bonuses, too!

Thomas: We talked a lot on the phone a long time before we finally met. On the day before our first date, my cat, Dirthag, had kittens.

Lisa: He called me up and said, "It's a girl! It's a boy! It's a girl! It's a boy!

Thomas: The week after we met she moved into my apartment. On the third date, I asked her to marry m

Thomas: We got married on Christmas Eve. It's been two years and it only feets like days.

Lisa: We're a classic wrong-side-of-the-tracks romance.

I'm from Los Altos Hills and he's from South

Philadelphia. But I've never met another man or woman who can read me like he does.

Thomas: As soon as I found out she likes horses, guns, and Harleys, I knew she was mine.

Lisa: We're going to be DINKS - double income no kids. We've already gone into business togethe distributing nutritional products.

Thomas: When we put our heads together, and work toward a common goal, it happens.

 Nearly 260 area residents turned out Monday for the formal dedication of the Glossbrenner Unit. The Texas Department of Criminal Justice facility is located 2.3 niles south on Farm Road 1329. The facility has been open since January I and already has taken in 495 of its 504 projected residents. It is South Texas' first prison for chemically dependent inmates.

The Texas Department of Health confirmed the rabies virus in two dogs submitted to them for testing by San Diego city officials on Thurnday. The city quickly issued calls for immediate action from all per towners.

The San Diego City Council ward, at their regular meeting on Wednesday, to drill a test well in the north side of town to provide water to the Glossbernner Unit. If a good well is found, the city will seek to trade it with the Duval Country Conservation and Reclamation District for its Hinojona well, which is closer to the state's substance-abuse facility.

• The Association of Texas Professional Educators (ATPE) has announced that the Droval Courny Picture has been chosen as the recipient of the 1994–95 ATPE. Alfair Hammert Media Avaria in the print category. The award is presented annually to media organizations (one print and one broadcart) that have taken an active role in promoting public discussion in their respective community.

In the bitter year of 1988 I was banished to San Diego, California, to become a wife there. It was summer, I was buying groceries under the Yin and Yang sign of Safeway. In the parking lot, the pupples were howling to a familiar trune on a guitar plucked with the zest and angst of the ixties. I asked the player her name.

She answered:
"Stone Orchid, but if you call me that, I'll kill you."
I said:
"Yes, perhaps stone is too harsh for one with a voice so pure."

She said:
"It's the 'orchid' I detest; it's prissy, cliche and forever pink."

From my shopping bag I handed her a Tsing Tao and urged her

She sang about hitchhiking around the country, meons and lakes, homeward-honking geese, scholars who failed the examination. Men leaving for war, women climbing the watchtower. There were courts, more courts and innermost courts, and scions who pillaged the country.

Suddenly, I began to feel deeply about my own banishment. The singer I could have been, what the world looked like in spring, that Motown collection I lost. I urged her to play on:

Trickle, trickle, the falling rain.
Ming, ming, a deer lost in the forest.
Surru, surru, a secret conversation.
Hung, hung, a dog in the yard.

Then, she changed her mood, to a slower lament, trilled a song macabre, about death, about a guitar case that opened like a coffin. Each string vibrant, each note a thought. Tell me, Orchid, where are we going? "The book of changes does not signify change. The laws are immutable. Our fates are scaled." Said Orchid — the song is a dirge and an awakening.

Two years after our meeting, I became deranged, I couldn't cook, couldn't clean. My house turned into a pigsty. My children be arme delinquents. My husband began a long, Justy affair with another woman. The house burned during a leverish Santa Ana as I sat in a pink cranny above the garage singing. "At twenty. I marry you. At thirty, I begin hating everything that you do:

One day while I was driving down Mulberry Lane, a voice came over the radio. It was Stone Orchid, She said, "This is a song for an old friend of mine. Her name is Mei Ling, She's a warm and sensitive housewife now living in Hell's Creek, California, I've dedicated this special song for her. The Song of the Sad Guitar.

I am now beginning to understand the song within the song, the weeping within the willow. And you, out there, walking, talking; seemingly alive — may truly be dead and waiting to be summoned by the sound of the sad guitar.
